Disarmament, Sweet Word.
San Francisco's Week.
Too Many Lawyers.
Too Many Dead Mothers.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

DISARMAMENT IS vital to the revival of business, said President Hoover to the International Chamber of Commerce, adding:

"Of all proposals for the economic rehabilitation of the world, I know of none which compares, in necessity, or importance, with the successful results of general disarmament."

General disarmament, if feasible, and if those agreeing to it would act loyally, would save many billions a year.

But who will disarm first? Why not let those begin disarmament who have started all the important international wars of a hundred years past? THIS COUNTRY HAS NEVER STARTED ONE.

When it was suggested that the death penalty be abolished, a witty Frenchman replied:

"Que messieurs les assassins commencent." "Let the assassins commence."

In disarmament, the warmakers might commence.

SAN FRANCISCO celebrates "Achievement Week," and, wisely, it concentrates on efficient advertising what San Francisco and all of California have done, and wonderful results produced.

ACHIEVEMENT TODAY consists in doing something worth while, and letting the world know by advertising that you have done it. Have what the people want, then tell them you have it.

California revolutionized the production and distribution of fruits and vegetables, creating a gigantic demand, and supplying it.

In the way of achievement, San Francisco can point to its steady growth, financial power and prosperity, its skyscrapers, and its climate, that no San Franciscan would exchange for anything between Heine's "lonesome pine tree" in the north and India's coral strand. No matter what else you may miss on this round, whirling globe, do not miss seeing San Francisco.

CALVIN COOLIDGE, whose articles deeply interest readers of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, the Seattle Post-Intelligencer and other papers, says we have too many lawyers, and too many not of the right kind. We only need 4,500 new lawyers each year, and about 10,000 are admitted to the bar. That helps explain several things.

AS TO THE necessary number of lawyers, Calvin Coolidge does not agree with Peter the Great of Russia. When Peter was told that the men in white wigs, running in and out of the English law court, were all lawyers, he was amazed. Said he:

"There are only two lawyers in Russia, and, as soon as I get home, I'm going to hang one of them."

MARRIAGES IN New York state last year were fewer than in any year of this century, excepting 1908. That is more important, and discouraging, than the low prices for stocks.

Young women should realize that the only career worth while is marriage, the only possession really important to a woman is a fine baby, and her greatest possible pleasure on earth is watching that baby learning to walk, and to say "Papa."

THIS NEWS about marriage, and the dropping birth rate, should make the government interest itself in a statement by Dr. Howard W. Haggard, professor of physiology at Yale.

"To our disgrace, we lead the world in childbirth mortality rate. Ten thousand mothers die each year in the United States, merely from lack of aid."

Dr. Haggard says, and you will agree, that we should do some missionary work at home, devoting "less sanctimonious talk to Mother India, and other benighted countries."

MOTHER AMERICA deserves attention now, especially as next Sunday we celebrate "Mother's Day."

One baker advertises ready-made cakes with "Mother" written on them, suitable for Mother's Day. But mother, as a rule, will bake the cake herself, and the children will eat it.

SEIJI YOSHIWARA, an able young Japanese pilot, on his way from Tokio to this country, finished yesterday the first leg of his flight, from the Japanese capital to Numasaki, 368 miles.

Seiji Noma, Japanese newspaper publisher, supplied the cash for Yoshiwara's light, all-metal seaplane. The Japanese navigator flies without radio. Yoshiwara will be welcome here and find everybody glad to see him, when he finishes his trip at the White House.

THE STOCK MARKET was described as "firm and quiet" by one Wall street writer, who tried to imagine that the death of George F. Baker would cause "an absence of selling."

That is a foolish thought. The late Mr. Baker was not a seller, but an accumulator. It will probably be found that his fortune even in these "depressed times" was nearer a thousand millions than five hundred millions.

No sane man will begrudge anything that he had. He worked hard up to the week of his death at 91 years of age, gave away millions and gave them wisely. And what he did not give away he left behind him, as we all must do.

World Will March on to Greater Economic Progress, Secretary Tells Bankers

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—Out of the present economic depression—described as among the most severe the world has ever experienced—will come a new era of prosperity and a resumption of the onward march of progress, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon declared today at a luncheon given the foreign bankers attending the International Chamber of Commerce meeting by the American Bankers' Association. Mellon said:

"I have no means of knowing when or how we shall emerge from the valley in which we are now traveling. But I do know that, as in the past, the day will come when we shall find ourselves on a more solid economic foundation and the onward march of progress will be resumed."

NEW OPPORTUNITIES

Mellon said that there should be no discouragement as to the ultimate outcome. He expressed the belief that the opportunities which have so multiplied in the last generation "are only the forerunners of others, and perhaps greater ones, which will come as the result of forces now at work and constantly being discovered, so that it is impossible to predict what may be the opportunities that lie immediately ahead."

Asserting that present standards of living must be maintained at all costs, Mellon continued:

"One must not underestimate the seriousness of the present situation. And yet, we must not lose our sense of perspective, for we know that the present crisis is not unprecedented, but that, on the contrary, the world is going through one of those transition stages which come from time to time and entail

Miss Doris, daughter of William W. Dempsey, Jr., York, Pa., owner of one of Pennsylvania's largest lumber companies, found by police in New York after she had been missing two weeks.

CHILD HEIRESS FOUND; TELLS OF RUNAWAY

'Don't Want to Go Home,' Doris Dempsey Declares; Held Along With 3 Men

By CROSWELL BOWEN, JR.
International News Service.

NEW YORK, May 5.—Doris Louise Dempsey, the 15-year-old heiress who ran away from her home in York, Pa., to glamorous Broadway, was found in a rooming house today by two detectives. She was living with a girl describing herself as Jean Murray, formerly of Elizabeth, N. J., who said she was 19, but appeared to be much younger. A youth found in the house, and two men, whose actions led detectives to the girl's trail, were detained with the girl in a police station.

But despite the fact that her father, a wealthy lumberman, was on his way here to get her, Doris wanted to stay. With a petulant toss of her head, she asserted:

"I don't want to go home. I can take care of myself.

"I want to be a short story writer. I am writing a story now, and I know no better place to obtain material first hand than in New York City.

"I left home because I couldn't get along with my family."

The total capital of the two girls and the three men was 65 cents. Her financial plight, however, did not seem to worry the determined Doris. She was attired in a blue ensemble, with blue pumps and chic blue hat. Her brown bobbed hair was carefully arranged.

She described her runaway visit here:

"When I arrived in New York, I went to a small hotel. This was on April 22, I believe. There I met a young man, Marshall Martin. I told him I was without funds—that I didn't have

TIRE RECORDS OF AUDITOR DESTROYED

Data Gathered for Probe Here Seized in Dispute At Findley (O.) Factory

FINDLAY, O., May 5.—Interest in Pittsburgh's dual audit of the Department of Supplies centered here today as result of disclosures that some of the data and papers M. C. Conick, a representative of Main & Co., one of the firms participating in the audit, had collected here had been taken from him by someone in the Cooper Time Company office here and destroyed.

Conick, a Pittsburgh auditor, came to Findlay with a letter from Dr. James P. Kerr, City Controller of Pittsburgh, requesting that he be given permission to examine the Cooper Tire Company records of its tranactions with the City of Pittsburgh.

Conick, it is said, collected considerable data, among which was an item concerning "blemished" tires. He asked a number of questions relative to the matter, during which an argument arose. In the argument the papers and other data collected by the auditor were said to have been taken from him and torn up.

RENO BEAUTY DEMPSEY PAL

RENO, Nev., May 5.—(INS.)—The most beautiful young matron of the Reno divorce colony is Mrs. Ruth Dodd Bach, an Atlanta (Ga.) society girl.

The "big shot" in the divorce colony just now is Jack Dempsey, prize fighter. He is establishing residence to divorce Estelle Taylor, the motion picture star.

And conforming to the old copy book truism, "Like attracts like," Jack Dempsey and Ruth Dodd are chummy. It's really Ruth Dodd now, she having divorced her man Bach, New York stock broker, over the week-end and had her maiden name restored.

The couple have been seen dining, dancing and gambling together. Dempsey is said still to be in love with Estelle Taylor and that may explain his interest in Ruth Dodd, who is remarkably similar in appearance to Estelle. She is a striking brunette, slender and tall.

HOUSE KILLS MEASURE BY 99 VOTES

Governor's Own Forces Turn Against Him in Stunning Defeat; Plan Denounced

By E. W. PRENDERGAST
Staff Correspondent.

HARRISBURG, May 5.—Gov. Gifford Pinchot today sustained one of the most decisive defeats of his career when the House, which his forces control, turned against him and buried his coal and iron police bill under an avalanche of negative votes.

The measure, known as the Wilson bill, was defeated 142 to 43.

The vote came after a stormy session in which the Governor was denounced and his ideas on the state's industrial police force flayed. The attack was led by Representative M. A. Musmanno, of Allegheny County, whose rival coal police measures, backed by state labor interests, previously had passed the House and were sent on to the Senate, where they have since reposed in committee.

Chief criticism of the Wilson bill was leveled against its provisions whereby the state's sovereign powers could be "farmed out" for a price to industrialists hiring the police force.

WILSON OPENS FIGHT

Thomas Wilson, its sponsor, opened the fireworks, explaining the measure repeals the Mansfield act and sets up a protective force reporting to and subject to the governor. The members of the force will be trained and be as much like the state police as possible, he said, emphasizing the fact that the authority rests solely with the governor. The bill requires the governor to investigate the need of protective police.

The bill tries in every way to protect state labor and capital, he added, asserting such policemen cannot attend company meetings or take employment with concerns until a year after they leave the force.

Musmanno ripped the measure, pointing out that the provision which would seem to limit the force to 250 is in fact an unlimited proviso. He said:

"The 250 may be appointed month after month, or week after week, day after day.

"This bill has had no word of support. If you pass it, it will make the Governor's name a

Peter Arno in Reno; To Wed Florence Rice

NEW YORK, May 5.—(AP.)—If Peter Arno, cartoonist, is granted a divorce in Reno, the American said today, he intends to Mary Florence Rice, actress and daughter of Grantland Rice, sports writer.

Mr. Arno is now on his way to Reno to establish residence. Miss Rice is already there, seeking a divorce from Sydney A. Smith, wealthy broker, to whom she was married last June. Lois Long, writer and wife of Mr. Arno, said they had come to an amicable agreement.

KLINE TO QUIT HOSPITAL SOON

Reports that Mayor Kline was to leave St. Francis Hospital today were denied by Dr. William O'Neil Sherman. He said:

"The Mayor will leave the hospital, as near as I can tell, within the next four or five days, or possibly toward the end of this week."

It is a month since the Mayor was taken to the hospital from Cambridge Springs suffering from malignant carbuncles.

Even Coffee Grounds Go in Divorce Mill

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Ladies are rushing to Reno for bargain divorces. One left New York by plane, hundreds took the trains. And we don't know how many thousands are on bicycles.

They ex you in six weeks out where men are men but women prefer their freedom.

Reasons? Not necessary. Just tell your scenario to the judge and your lawyer wires it for sound.

Only one man left for Reno for a Nevada quickie. He seemed to have a legitimate squawk.

His wife had ground the coffee in the pencil sharpener.

But the ladies, alimony bless 'em, desire that weekly insurance awarded by the beneficent law.

In less legal phraseology, they want single blessedness with double indemnity.

It's all right with us. Lincoln freed the slaves.

Reno is freeing the more beautiful drudges. That's as it should be. Why should a marriage license last a lifetime when you have to renew your automobile plates every year?

BOGUS $1 BILL PLANT SEIZED

Counterfeiting paraprernalia for making $1 Federal Reserve Bank notes and molds for 25-cent pieces were reported to have been seized last night by Secret Service operatives and city detectives at 1225 Reddour street, North Side. George Kirkup, 45, of the same address, was sentenced to jail for five days by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg, in Central Police Court, today to enable the federal officers to make further investigation.

Kirkup was arrested in the basement of the North Side address, where detectives say they found counterfeiting plates, paper, paints and cameras. He has been under surveillance since the arrest of Earl McWhirter in January on a charge of passing counterfeit 25-cent pieces, according to the secret service men. McWhirter is serving a year's sentence at Atlanta.

Secret service operatives also said several counterfeit $10 bills had been seized several months ago at 1407 Sherman avenue, North Side, where Kirkup former resided. The seizure followed McWhirter's arrest.

Prosecutor Wants Diamond in Jail

ALBANY, May 5.—(INS.)—Although physicians said Jack (Legs) Diamond was still too weak to be moved, Attorney General Bennett today rushed plans to put him behind bars.

A physician will tomorrow examine the gangster and if he is in a condition to be moved, Bennett planned to send him to the Catskill Jail.

Trolley Conductor Crushed by Car Dies

Joseph Liesenjohn, 56, of 133 Margaret street, Mt. Oliver, veteran Pittsburgh Railways Company operator, died in St. Joseph's Hospital early today, two hours after he had been crushed between a street car and a wall of the tunnel car barns. For some time he had been operator on the Brookline night car.

48 Deaths in R-101 Declared Accidental

LONDON, May 5.—(AP.)—A verdict of accidental death was recorded today by the coroner at the resumption of an inquest into the death of 48 persons in the wreck of the dirigible R-101.

Health Officials Attribute Death to 'Parrot Fever'.

The death of Mrs. Ella May Weiss, of 1918 Buena Vista street, in Passavant Hospital May 16, and the serious illness of her husband, Harry C. Weiss, apparently were caused by psittacosis, "parrot fever," Dr. Philip E. Marks, director of the city's Bureau of Infectious Diseases, reported today.

Dr. Marks submitted his report to Dr. C. B. Maits, head of the city Health Department, at whose instigation an investigation of Mrs. Weiss' death was started.

The report also said that two other deaths, those of Mrs. Anna Lindner Weigand, of 1966 West Beckert avenue, Reserve Township, and her father, Joseph J. Lindner, 61, of 836 Lovett way, could not be blamed on a similar infection.

Mr. and Mrs. Weiss, Dr. Marks said, apparently were infected by two "love birds," a small species of parrot.

The birds, bought in Philadelphia, have since died. Dr. Marks said, and he believes it was these from which the Weisses caught the disease. The other two birds, under examination, in Passavant Hospital, have shown no trace of psittacosis, Dr. Marks said.

Dr. Maits said he would ask Weiss, who has recovered, for the name and address of the Philadelphia store where the birds were purchased, so as he can warn its owners of the danger of infection.

McGovern, Armstrong Tilt Over Payroll Quiz

The questionnaires sent to county employes last week was discussed at the meeting of County Commissioners today, without result. It was brought up by Commissioner C. C. McGovern, who said:

"My attention has been called to a card the chair is sending out asking employes to submit the names of five sponsors, also the election districts and wards of the employes. I want to ask if the purpose of these cards is political?"

Armstrong replied:

"All the big corporations do this. We want to know our people."

McGovern countered:

"You could get the information from the controller's payroll."

To which Armstrong replied:

"That's true. But there is nothing political about this. I play my politics out in the open."

Replying to a question by McGovern if it were an attempt to coerce the payroll, Armstrong said:

"We don't do any coercing. If we don't like a person, we let him go."

TRUCK CRUSHED BETWEEN TWO TROLLEYS, NINE INJURED

PASSENGERS CUT BY GLASS

Driver of Auto, Street Car Motorman, Girl Among Victims; 2nd Ave. Crash

Nine persons were injured, one seriously, early today in a collision of two Greenfield trolley cars and an automobile truck in the 3600 block of Second avenue.

The inbound car was crowded.

Traffic was tied up about 15 minutes.

John Sizoli, of 753 Forward avenue, truck driver, is in Homeopathic Hospital suffering from internal injuries.

Most of the others injured were cut by flying glass, among these being: Anna Kuema, of 4211 Haldane street, Hazelwood; Elias Superfisky, of 1213 Mastuna street; H. Dietrich, of 7 Augustine street, and Frank Mazzy, of 4319 Graphic street.

Motorman W. T. Dayton of the inbound car received slight cuts upon his hand. He has been a motorman for 25 years and this accident. Motorman row, of the outbound uninjured. Both cars ed, but were taken to the Greenfield avenue barns under their own power.

The accident occurred when Sizoli is said to have tried to pass the inbound street car on the left side of the street and was caught between the two.

2 FACE HEARING AS 'BOOKIES'

Two alleged race track bookmakers, arrested yesterday after one of the patrons told Chief of County Detectives George A. Murren that they had failed to pay off $500 he had won on a parlay bet, were to be given a hearing before Alderman George S. Anderson today.

J. G. Ash, of 310 North Prospect street, Connellsville, told Murren late yesterday he had placed a $10-bet parlayed on three horses, in a "bookie" shop on the second floor at 410 Third avenue.

All three horses won, Ash said, but the "bookie" refused to pay him his $500 winnings.

When county detectives raided the place they arrested Frank Meyers, of 1401 Brownsville road, and James Thompson, of 1428 California avenue, on charges of keeping a gambling house.

FORMER KAISER BACKS FASCISM

BERLIN, May 5.—(INS.)—The first definite admission that former Kaiser Wilhelm is committed to the cause of Fascism in Germany was made at Munich today by his son, Prince August Wilhelm, a staunch defender of Adolf Hitler's National Socialist Party.

In a speech before a group of Fascists in the Bavarian City, Prince August Wilhelm revealed that his once imperial father, now chopping wood at his exile castle in Doorn, Holland, considers the Nationali Socialist Party as a "grand national movement," and is glad that his son has become a "martyr" to the cause.

THE WATCHMAN -:- By Quin Hall

GIRL'S WATCH MURDER CLUE

SAN DIEGO, Cal., May 5.—(INS.)—The small wrist watch worn by pretty Hazel Bradshaw when she was stabbed to death early Sunday by an unknown assailant offered one of the important clues today in the investigation.

When the girl's body was found in Indian Village the watch had stopped at 9:43 o'clock, indicating, according to Deputy Coroner David Gershon, that the girl was stabbed to death at that hour, and one of the dagger thrusts had stopped the small time piece.

This new discovery will be one of the points on which M. E. Garrison, admirer of the dead girl, is to be questioned, detectives said.

After hours of questioning, Garrison was suddenly confronted with the body of Miss Bradshaw. He spoke endearing names and kissed the girl's forehead repeatedly.

Garrison then broke down and wept and was led from the room.

Father of Seven Slays Wife and Self

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., May 5.—(AP.)—Authorities gave out a verdict of murder and suicide in the deaths of Joe Gump and his wife, the parents of seven children. Mrs. Gump was found dead in a chair at their home. Searchers found the body of the husband in a nearby field. Both were riddled by shotgun pellets.

Police believed Gump shot his wife and himself because of jealousy.

CITY OPENS 12 PLAYGROUNDS

To keep children from playing in the streets, with the coming of warmer weather, Director Edward G. Lang, of the Public Works Department, yesterday ordered 12 city playgrounds opened.

The attendance was good despite the fact that much of the equipment was not yet in place, and one, the Magee playground in Beechwood boulevard, not entirely completed. Equipment was requisitioned in March, but the contract was not awarded until last week, according to Col. W. R. Dunlap, of the Department of Supplies. It is expected in a few days, he said.

Playground leaders reported, however, that the lack of equipment did not deter the children from having a good time. They devised their own forms of entertainment, and the playgrounds were crowded until closing hour.

In previous years playgrounds were not opened until the public schools were closed for the season. Under the new program, 12 recreation lots will be open daily from 3:30 until 9 o'clock. They will go on full schedule July 1.

WOMAN SLAYER FLEES PRISON

BOISE, Idaho, May 5.—(AP.)—Mrs. Lyda Southard, serving a sentence of from 10 years to life imprisonment for the fatal poisoning of her fourth husband, escaped over a wall of the Idaho Penitentiary late last night. She used a rope to flee from the women's ward.

Mrs. Southard was convicted at Twin Falls, Idaho, November 4, 1921, of second degree murder in the death of Edward F. Meyer, her husband. Her three other husbands previously had died mysteriously.

Warden R. E. Thomas said it appeared the woman was picked up by an automobile stationed on a mountain road adjacent to the prison.

KING OF SIAM GIVES HOOVER SILVER BOWL

Ruler Avoids Diplomatic Bar by Presenting Rich Token as 'Individual'

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service.

NEW YORK, May 5.—Just as one man to another, a king showed his appreciation for the hospitality of an American president with a "little" remembrance.

Before leaving Washington on the occasion of his recent visit to President Herbert Hoover, the King of Siam presented the Chief Executive with a silver bowl, two feet in diameter—worth a king's ransom. It was inscribed:

"To Herbert Hoover from Prajadhipok R., April 30."

In case you don't know your royal algebra, R stands for "Rex" and that is democratic language for "king."

The phraseology of the inscription was a forethought of the Siamese potentate to overcome any diplomatic restriction of an American president's accepting gifts from a visiting monarch—so it was just Prajadhipok to Herbert.

Nor did the absolute monarch of far-away Siam forget his hostess.

A miniature photograph of himself set in a diamond crown was presented to Mrs. Hoover by King Prajadhipok.

Revelation of the gifts by the King of Siam to President and Mrs. Hoover was made today to International News Service by Prince Svasti, father of the beautiful Queen Rambai Barni, consort of the absolute ruler of Siam.

Identify Suicide As Cheswick Man

The body of a man with a bullet wound in his head, found in a field near the Valley Heights Country Club, Plum Township, last night, was tentatively identified today as that of Arthur Shoop, 55, of Cheswick.

Police declared the bullet wound had been self-inflicted. They found a revolver nearby. The body was discovered by Frank Hulton, Jr., a caddy.

Perfect No Trump Hand Nets Man 3,330 Points

The perfect no trump bridge hand, bringing to its holder 3,330 points, was dealt Charles Cunningham, of 206 Burgess street, North Side, last night. The first bidder passed, Cunningham came next and bid seven no trump. The third player, startled, doubled his bid, and Cunningham's partner redoubled. Cunningham threw down his hand and took 3,330 points. The other players were W. H. Stanton, 223 South Millvale avenue; Ed Merz, 740 Maryland avenue, and Herman Pokrant, 3345 Middletown road. The hand contained four aces, four kings, four queens and the jack of hearts.

OMAHA, Neb., May 5.—(INS.)—William Harwood, of Dayton, O., wild animal trainer and owner of Jan, 15-month-old lion which attacked a 6-year-old school girl in Cincinnati last week, is in Omaha, it was learned today.

Harwood has with him his lion and two bears, intending to fill an engagement which called for the exhibition of the small menagerie in Omaha grade schools.

Meanwhile, Cincinnati authorities were reported seeking Harwood, who, they assert, promised to stay in Cincinnati two weeks while the pet lion was placed under observation for rabies. Harwood left the city, police aver, taking the animals with him.

hissing word in every district. His best friends are against it. Labor is against it, the United Mine Workers, most concerned, and every church and fraternal organization in Western Pennsylvania are against it.

"This bill creates a system malicious and diabolical, a throwback to the dark ages."

REVIEWS KILLING

Reciting the history of the John Borkowski killing, Musmanno asserted:

"The murder of Borkowski became the symbol of coal and iron police brutality. In his name and the name of those who may still be subjected to possible repetition, I ask you to vote no."

An attack on the sincerity of Gov. Pinchot preceded the vote and stunned the House. Carl Baldridge, of Allegheny County, charged that Pinchot in his last administration pardoned Lyster, a coal and iron policeman, for a killing in Somerset County. Lyster later went to Allegheny County and took part in the Borkowski killing, Baldridge said, stating:

"I supported Gov. Pinchot in the primary and general elections. But I am beginning to doubt Gov. Pinchot's sincerity on the coal and iron police situation.

"Let's come out in the open. This police bill would make the Governor a dictator, and we want no dictators in Pennsylvania, especially over police power."

WILL 'TELL ALL' IN OHIO PROBE

YOUNGSTOWN, O., May 5.—(AP.)—Former Traction Commissioner Harry Engle, the man who precipitated the complicated controversy between Prosecutor Ray L. Thomas and Mahoning County's five Common Pleas judges, today was called before the special grand jury investigating relations between utilities and public officials. He promised to waive immunity and "tell everything."

It was Prosecutor Thomas' charge that Engle had a secret agreement with the Penn-Ohio Company for special compensation that started the investigation more than two months ago. Since then Thomas and the judges have battled over who would conduct the investigation and Thomas has brought disbarment proceedings against two of the judges.

Judge George H. Gessner, one of the judges who insisted that Thomas was not qualified to conduct the investigation, was another scheduled witness today. The probe is being conducted by two special prosecutors named by three out-of-town judges. Judge David G. Jenkins, who six weeks ago enjoined the Bethlehem Steel Corporation - Youngstown Sheet and Tube merger, was the first witness yesterday.

MRS. MILLIKEN WINS ALIMONY

ST. LOUIS, May 5.—(INS.)—Mrs. Mildred McCloy Milliken, formerly of Pittsburgh, who is suing her husband, John T. Milliken, Jr., heir to part of the Milliken fortune, for divorce, was granted a temporary alimony of $300 monthly and attorney's fees of $1,500 against her husband by Judge Hoffmeister in Circuit Court here yesterday.

Judge Hoffmeister also allowed attorneys for Milliken fees of $2,500. The court set June 1 as the date for the divorce hearing.

Milliken is also suing his wife's relatives and friends for $300,000, charging alienation of affections.

Weather Conditions.

There was a slow eastward drift of the pressure units during yesterday and last night, with a corresponding change in the accompanying weather. The principal feature of the map this morning is the long narrow trough of low pressure over the central valleys, and the high pressure following it. The low is producing generous rains over the plains states, accompanied by thunderstorms in the South, and the high is causing a marked drop in temperature following the rain. Killing frost and freezing temperatures occurred as far south as Nebraska and below freezing temperatures prevail over the Dakotas, Eastern Montana and the Canadian Northwest. The lowest temperature reported is 22 degrees at Minnedosa, Quappelle and Prince Albert. There was a rise in temperature over the Ohio Valley states and the lake region.

COMMISSIONER URGES ACTION BY COUNTY

Seeks to Speed Delivery Of Demonstrators for Use Before Election

County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern today urged his colleagues to take steps to speed up delivery of Allegheny County's allotment of voting machines for demonstration purposes by May 15, at the latest.

McGovern told of his recent visit to Baltimore, where the machines are to be made, and said the delivery could not be made by May 15, as had been promised orally.

McGovern said:

"My attention has been called to a verbal agreement for the delivery of voting machines May 15, which will not be fulfilled.

"I understand the Secretary of the Commonwealth went to the plant to find out when mass production would begin, but he could get no satisfaction. I also went to the plant and I do not want to criticize the company, for it may be able to do what it says, but the intervening time is short.

"I saw no evidence of activity. There was nothing to be seen except a soap box containing about 15 pounds of small fittings.

SAW EMPTY BUILDING

"I also an empty factory building where it was said the machines would be assembled. I am merely mentioning the facts, so this board will do everything in its power to encourage delivery of the machines."

Chairman Joseph G. Armstrong told McGovern he had been sending the company a telegram every 10 days emphasizing the urgency of immediate delivery and said he had been advised the company would make delivery at the specified time.

BOY VOLUNTEER WINS DYING REQUEST

Apparatus Carries Body to Church Grave, Pallbearers Officiate in Uniforms

The deathbed wish of Franklin Starke, 19, was granted today when he was buried with impressive ceremonies, his former companions in the Heidelberg Volunteer Fire Department acting as pallbearers and the fire apparatus serving as his hearse.

Dying in Mercy Hospital, after a futile appendicitis operation, young Starke, who lived at 720 Washington street, Heidelberg, told his mother, Mrs. Mary Starke Black:

"I know I'm going to die and I want the fire engine to be the hearse and my friends, the firemen, to accompany my body to the grave."

Today the fire engine, draped in black, bore Starke's flag-covered casket from his home to St. Luke's Roman Catholic Church in Carnegie, and from there to St. Joseph's German Cemetery in Glendale.

Fellow members of the fire department, to which the boy had belonged for two years, marched beside and behind the auto.

They were dressed in their firemen's uniforms and a color guard headed their procession.

The funeral cortege wound through the streets of Carnegie to the Catholic church.

There it stopped and the firemen-pallbearers lifted their burden shoulder high and carried it into the church.

TWO GIRLS SHOT ON STREET

CLEVELAND, May 5.—(AP.)—Two girls were shot as they were walking home in different sections of the city last night and early today.

Not long after Miss Geraldine Marko, 20, of Cleveland, was shot in the neck by one of two men who drove past her in an automobile, Miss Louise Gaudig, 17, of Johnstown, Pa., was wounded under similar circumstances. Police believed the same two men might have been involved in both shootings.

Miss Gaudig was believed in a serious condition. She came here yesterday to visit her cousin, Miss Viola Buettner. Last night she went to the home of another cousin, Miss Olive Desmond, where a party was being held, and went out with Miss Desmond to purchase food. A car drove up and a shot was fired without warning, Miss Desmond said, the bullet striking the Johnstown girl in the head.

3 BOYS HELD IN 2D HOLDUP

Three youths were held for court today, the second time in two days, by Magistrate Rothenberg in Central Police Court, after admitting a holdup of an alleged disorderly house at 39 Tunnel street.

Yesterday they admitted robbing a house in Grant street.

Margaret Ross, who said she ran a boarding house in Grant street, and Dolly Stark, who said she did the same in Tunnel street, were fined $50 each in Morals Court this morning on charges of keeping disorderly places.

The boys gave their names as William Handlas, 23, of 2111 Branch street; Peter Morian, 25, of 128 Sitler street, and Henry Christian, of 127 Burr street.

Patron Admits Drys As Man Flees Raid

A squad of prohibition agents, invading a second-floor club at 6255 Frankstown avenue, was admitted by a customer while the alleged proprietor made a hasty departure by way of a window.

The patron looked through the peep-hole and admitted the agents when they made known their identity, the agents reported. Confiscation of whisky, wine and beer was reported. The customer was not arrested.

'BUCK' CROUSE EXONERATED

Albert E. (Buck) Crouse, pugilist of two decades ago and at present director of the Rev. James R. Cox's unemployment relief agency at Old St. Patrick's Church, was cleared of all complicity in the theft of supplies from the agency's stores at a hearing in North Side Police Court today.

Anthony O'Donnell, 35, arranged with two women and another man, for the theft, retracted a statement which police claimed he had made when arrested and in which he said Crouse had told him to take the food and clothing.

The four were discharged. Schneider saying he had received a letter from Father Cox asking that the prosecution be dropped.

Those discharged were O'Donnell, who said he was Crouse's assistant and lived in the parish; Della Malloy, 28, who gave the same address; Thomas Conley, 33, of 213 Voightly street, and Mrs. Elizabeth Weisfoot, 21, of 1604 Howard street.

The four were arrested Thursday in Conley's room.

Clothing and food, valued at about $200, which had been taken from the relief agency's stores, police said, were found in the room.

U.S. GRAND JURY INDICTS 21

Twenty-one persons were indicted for federal law violations in 14 true bills, according to a partial report made today by the federal grand jury. Those indicted included Thomas Allen, Edward Smith, John C. Williams and Thomas E. Jennings, accused of having robbed Cyrus Markle, Greensburg rural mail carrier, of $4,000, January 8. Allen and Jennings also were indicted on a charge of passing counterfeit $5 Federal Reserve Bank notes.

Persons named in indictments charging dry law violations were: Ralph Hart, John Orsis, Henry Goltsman, Edward A. Schuster, Louis Paull, John Russo and Fred Roth, of Pittsburgh; Harry Guest and Walter Moorhead, of East Pittsburgh; Edward T. Lebarton, of Castle Shannon; Ray F. Montague and Chris Augustine, of Somerfield, and Peter Severian and the Glock Association, of Springdale.

Steve Zigler, Carl Calysti and Wesley March were indicted on charges of transporting stolen automobiles.

Man Tried as Driver Of Death Car Freed

Frank Pawlak, 33, of 218 South Canal street, Brackenridge, was acquitted of manslaughter, when Judge S. John Morrow, of Fayette County, ruled on a motion of Louis Little, defense attorney, he had not been identified as driver of the death car that killed David E. Niel, of 634 Fourth avenue, Parnassus, in Freeport road, March 11.

Coroner Holds Man In Fatal Auto Crash

Albert M. Stillwell, 5429 Walnut street, was held for the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter today at the inquest into the death of James F. Kelly, 43, of 1049 Murrayhill aveune, April 5. Kelly was a passenger in Stillwell's car, when it hit an iron pole in Shady avenue.

GIRL PUPIL, 15, SHOOTS SELF

A 15-year-old Baxter Junior High School student, today was recovering in Pittsburgh Hospital, from an allegedly self-inflicted bullet wound in the right shoulder.

The girl, according to police, shot herself with her father's revolver in her home last night when her parents objected to her keeping company with boy friends.

Attracted by a report of the shot, the girl's mother rushed into a bedroom and found her daughter lying on the floor and a revolver nearby.

Because of the girl's age the Sun-Telegraph will not publish her name.

3 IN PRISONER FRAUD BAILED

Attorney Samuel Y. Rossiter, Joseph Donovan and Lester Beals, all of Erie, who were sentenced by Federal Judge Nelson McVicar here yesterday for their participation in a prisoner substitution case, were at liberty today on $10,000 bond each pending an appeal to the United States Circuit Court.

Rossiter was sentenced to serve four months in Cambria County jail, to pay a fine of $2,500 and the costs of the prosecution; Donovan to six months in the Allegheny County jail and Beals to three months in the Beaver County jail. Joseph Warner, self-confessed conspirator in the substitution case, was sentenced to one month in the Beaver County jail and a three-year probation at the expiration of his jail term.

NEW LIGHTNING ROD PERFECTED

A new type lightning rod, which officials of the Westinghouse Electric expect will save the country millions of dollars yearly, has been perfected in the company's East Pittsburgh plant, it was announced today. The inventor is J. J. Torok, of the Westinghouse engineering staff.

In addition to preventing the annual ravages of lightning, the new rod is expected to effect great economies by protecting insulator strings on overhead transmission lines supplying communities with light and power, Torok said.

The rod, known as a "De-Ion" lightning protector, consists of a hollow tube about the size of a woman's umbrella and does away with patrolling of power lines.

A discharge of 132,000,000 volt-amperes was absorbed by one of the rods in a test at the Westinghouse plant yesterday.

Car of Telephone Poles Takes Fire

Damage estimated by Capt. Michael Brown at $800 resulted when a flat car loaded with telephone poles caught fire on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad at Rand Station early today. Firemen were called to Rand on a still alarm. Members of the train crew said they noticed the car aflame after the train passed through a tunnel.

Lincoln Highway Gets Oil This Week

Announcement that oiling crews will operate on the Lincoln highway this week was made today by the Automobile Club of Pittsburgh. Route 80 in Allegheny County will be oiled from Peterman's crossroads to the Westmoreland line. Long stretches of highway in many other sections of the state will be oiled during the week.

Coolidge Lauds Jewish Relief Efforts in U. S.

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., May 5.

To the Editor of The Sun-Telegraph:

The American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee is starting an effort to raise $2,500,000 for the relief of their race in Central and Eastern Europe. The need for rehabilitation in that area is great and the organization for collecting and disbursing money is effective and complete. Our benefactions for foreign countries are very large. Scores of millions have gone to Near East relief and hundreds of millions to other agencies. But the work is not yet done and should continue.

Mr. Coolidge

This is only an example of the constant and enormous charities of our country. In 1929 the amount of contributions is estimated at about $2,500,000,000, which is more than one-half the cost of the national government, and about 3 per cent of the national income. As an example of the generosity of a whole people there was never anything to compare with it in magnitude. Instead of putting all the emphasis on the great amount of wealth our country has accumulated, some thought should be given to the amount it is continually giving away. These are our permanent investments on which the returns are most satisfactory.

FIGHT TO REVIVE SUNDAY BALL BILL LIKELY

Schwartz Measure Fails to Pass Owing to Absentees, But Gets Majority Vote

By ED PRENDERGAST
Staff Correspondent.

HARRISBURG, May 5. — A motion to reconsider the Schwartz milk and Sunday baseball bill may be made in the House today, to revive the measure which went down in defeat before a rule last night, although it showed a one-vote edge in the balloting.

Two members who voted the measure down in the wordy contest on the floor, must be persuaded to ask reconsideration.

The vote was 102 to 101 for passage, but the constitutional majority of 105 was not available, due to the absence on the floor of five members who previously had voted for the baseball amendment.

FIVE 'AYES' ABSENT

John A. Rhodes, of McKeesport, who last week was listed among the ayes, was said to have missed his train. Other aye voters who failed to appear included Representative Millar, of Philadelphia, whose automobile broke down en route, it was said, Byrne, Eveland and Squibb. No reason was assigned for the absence of Byrne and Eveland. But upon physicians' order Squibbs was not permitted to be brought in on a stretcher, a plan proposed last week.

Representative Ederer, of Montgomery County, arrived in time to cast an "aye" for the bill. He used airplanes from Florida to Harrisburg.

Proponents of the Sunday law change maintain that these five votes will win if the reconsideration can be arranged. The "lost victory" came only after terrific pressure by churchmen's lobby, administration forces and church groups and Sabbath schools throughout the state.

Two men in their seats refused to vote, Kleckner, of Lehigh, and Graham, of Crawford.

ALLEGHENY VOTE

Carl Baldridge, of Edgewood, joined the liberal group, which numbered the entire Allegheny County delegation excepting Gochring, Hagmaier, Neely, McClure, Riddle and Storer. Those voting for the bill were Rooney, Bell, Baldridge, Tucker, Steedle, Stadtlander, Maloney, Soffel, Reed, Hoffman, Musmanno, Lynch, Grenet, Dwyer, Dunn, Dietrich, Gangloff, Metzler, Wettach.

The battle over the passage was started only after some differences in the camp of the liberal leaders, M. M. Musmanno suggesting that continuance of the fight be asked today.

COYNE RECALLS POLL TAX BILL

HARRISBURG, May 5.—Senator Coyne last night recalled from the Governor his bill to impose a 50-cent poll tax instead of the occupation tax which varies from $1 to $14 in Allegheny County. His motion said it is recalled for further consideration" and not for amendment which usually is the purpose of recalling bills which have passed both houses.

Measures looking toward a highway system entirely free of grade crossings were introduced in the Senate last night by Senator Frank J. Harris, of Crafton. One creates a commission to study grade crossings and devise a plan for their systematic removal. It appropriates $15,000 for the commission's expenses.

A companion bill, by Harris, prohibits creation of new grade crossings. It declares it unlawful to build a railroad across a highway or open a public highway across railroad tracks at grade.

BENTLEYVILLE SCHOOL BURNS

By MARGARET GARRAHAN
Staff Correspondent.

BENTLEYVILLE, Pa., May 5.—For the second time in 11 years the Bentleyville Junior-Senior High School was in ruins today, destroyed by a fire which late last night swept through the structure while firemen from four towns, hampered by lack of water, looked on helplessly. The building was destroyed by fire in 1920, and rebuilt a year later.

Mr. Lackey

Seven persons, including one spectator, were injured or overcome by smoke. They were:

Miss Sevilla Wise, 23, of Charleroi, knocked unconscious when she fell over a line of hose and struck her chin on a curbing; I. C. Lackey, supervising principal, overcome while trying to rescue records in the office; Fire Chief John Eiduke and Firemen Martin Jaron, J. B. Greenly, Gelindo Menego and Mike Demo, all injured.

Loss to the building and contents was placed at $200,000 by Lackey, who said the building was insured for $70,000.

PINCHOT OPENS TOUR THURSDAY

HARRISBURG, May 5.—Gov. Gifford Pinchot will open his speaking tour in behalf of his fair rate board bills, which would abolish the Public Service Commission, on Thursday in Montrose, the home of W. D. B. Ainey, P. S. C. chairman.

He will speak from the court house steps there at 4 p. m., and the same night will deliver his second speech at Towanda. On Friday he will speak at noon in Chambersburg and at night in Huntingdon. Saturday he will go to Altoona for a noon address, followed by talks in Bedford at 4:30 p. m., and in Somerset at 8 p. m.

Returning here Sunday, he will remain in his office Monday and Tuesday, resuming the tour Wednesday, May 13, with a night address in Greensburg. On May 14, he will speak in Washington at noon and then will go to Pittsburgh for an address over KDKA from 6:15 to 6:30. The tour will conclude with talks on May 15 in Butler, Meadville and Sharon, and on May 16 in Dubois and Bellefonte.

P. S. C. INVITED TO HEARINGS

HARRISBURG, Pa., May 5.—(AP.)—The House Utilities Investigating Committee invited members of the Public Service Commission to offer, at the hearing Thursday, any additional testimony they may desire.

The invitation was contained in a letter sent last night by Chairman D. Glenn Moore, of the committee, to Chairman W. D. B. Ainey, of the P. S. C.

The House Committee utilities was to meet this morning at which time favorable action is expected on the Nothnagle bill to suspend rate increases by public utilities until after the Public Service Commission has approved them.

License for Cats Proposed by Senator

HARRISBURG, May 5.—(AP.)—A bill to provide for licensing of all cats six months of age or older was introduced in the Senate today by Senator Leroy Chapman, of Warren.

The bill would provide a license fee of 50 cents per cat.

It would also permit the killing of any unlicensed cat entering private premises where poultry are confined. Thirty days' imprisonment or a $100 fine or both would be imposed for violation of these provisions.

Dry Referendum Bill Recommitted

HARRISBURG, May 5.—Prospects of a vote on prohibition in the House at this session failed today when Representative Sowers, Philadelphia, sent back to committee his bill petitioning Congress to call a constitutional convention to repeal the Eighteenth Amendment. The bill had been on the second reading calendar for two weeks.

Sowers said the bill was sent back to the Judiciary Special Committee at request of dry foes.

Reduced Auto Fees Bills Die in House

HARRISBURG, May 5.—Gov. Pinchot's recommendations for reducing the drivers' licenses and automobile registration fees were turned down today by the House roads committee. The fees will remain as they are at present.

The committee also removed from the amendments to the motor code the annual inspection of cars as a pre-requisite to registration. The speed limit remains at 40 miles on hour.

Old Mine Safety Bill Passes House

HARRISBURG, May 5.—The Riddle bill providing for fighting fires and sealing abandoned coal mines passed the House without a dissenting vote today.

Move for Transfer Of Traffic Control

Moving the master control board of the downtown traffic light system from the City-County Building to the Bureau of Traffic Planning garage at 617 Second avenue is included in an ordinance presented in Council. It is explained that traffic engineers will have a better opportunity to oversee the operation of the system in the new location.

If you're "picking cotton" for summer frocks, you'll want these

Fabric Shoes

OF COURSE you know about the fluttery cotton-frock fashion for this coming summer, and here's news of the accompanying vogue for fabric shoes. Nisley announces two new texture-developments for light, cool slippers in natural linen color. These weaves hold their shape well, whisk clean with a cloth dampened in any good cleaning-fluid, and blend in tone with every sprightly summer color.

There's "BUCKLIN"—a poplin weave with dull surface. A good water-shedder, as its name implies, yet soft enough to fashion a dainty slipper.

And "TOSCA"—a shantung weave with a rough silky feel. Stunning in combination with soft leather. Ask to see it in the model shown here.

The Nisley Policy is this:*

To make all our own shoes and sell them to you at one profit . . . to buy choice materials in large quantity and keep down manufacturing costs . . . to shape every shoe over a true-fitting last and carry a wide range of sizes.

FAITH IS URGED IN FUTURE

"PRICE OF WAR"

"The economic depression is, in part, the price we pay for war. I have lived through several crises, and the conclusion I have come to is that they have been caused, either directly or remotely, by serious dislocations which were due, as a rule, to wars and their aftermaths."

Mellon said that he did not believe in any quick or spectacular remedies for the ills from which the world is suffering. Nor does he share the belief that there is anything fundamentally wrong with the social system. Capitalism, he said, may have defects, but it has supplied an abundance of food, clothing and the necessities of life.

DEFECTS TO VANISH

Defects in the economic system will be overcome by degrees, according to the Secretary, "as we find some way to achieve greater equilibrium between production and consumption and a better distribution of labor. He declared:

"Conditions today are neither so critical nor so unprecedented as to justify a lack of faith in our capacity to deal with them in our accustomed way.

"These temporary setbacks do not obliterate the progress made during the forward movements. When the upward trend is resumed again, we shall start, not from the old level, but from the new."

European Economists Ignore Hoover Warnings

WASHINGTON, May 5.—(INS.)—Politely ignoring the warning of President Hoover, three of Europe's outstanding economic leaders led the sixth congress of the International Chamber of Commerce into controversial issues today by urging cancellation of world war debts and elimination of American tariff barriers, while pleading for international co-operation in restoring world prosperity.

First, Alberto Pirelli, Italian capitalist and friend of Mussolini, chided the United States for its tariff walls.

Then, Sir Alan G. Anderson, director of the Bank of England, urged "free buying" between nations, another way of disposing of American tariffs. Next, Sir Alan boldly suggested cancellation of war debts as a measure certain to hasten the day of recovery.

Lastly, J. S. Edstrom, managing director of Sweden's great electrical trust, blamed the concentration of capital in the United States as one of the causes of world depression. He also condemned government aid for industry or agriculture, a polite method of condemning American farm policies.

DEWEY TAKES OFFICE

HARRISBURG, May 5.—(AP.)—Pennsylvania's eleventh secretary of internal affairs today was inducted into office. At noon the oath of office was administered to Philip Hastings Dewey, of Gaines, Tioga County, by Secretary of the Commonwealth Richard J. Beamish.

Dewey succeeds the late James F Woodward, who died Thursday, five days before the completion of his third term in office. Woodward's death prevented him from achieving the record of being the first secretary of internal affairs to serve three full terms.

Dewey was manager of the State Workmen's Insurance Fund under Fisher. He was dismissed last January when Gov. Pinchot was inducted into office. He also was formerly master of the State Grange and in 1921 represented his home district as a member of the House in the General Assembly. He is 62 and was born in Mansfield.

$4,090 VERDICT IN BOY'S DEATH

A verdict of $4,090 damages for the death of Antonio Foglie, 7, was awarded Mr. and Mrs. Carmine Foglie, 2515 Spring way, by a jury in Common Pleas Court, in their suit against the Pittsburgh Transportation Company, tried before Judge Harry H. Rowand. The boy was on his way to school June 18, 1929, when a taxicab ran over him, causing his death in the Allegheny General Hospital, it was testified.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer E. Powelson, 308 Penn avenue, Wilkinsburg, asked $25,000 damages for injuries to both in an automobile collision, in their suit against John Hufnagle, 1208 Electric avenue, East Pittsburgh. The collision occurred February 1 on Ardmore boulevard, Forest Hills, according to the suit.

ASK NEW 32ND WARD STREET

The East Brookline Community Club has asked Council to provide a street connecting the community with Overbrook. East Brookline and Overbrook are both included in the new Thirty-second Ward.

A letter from the club suggests completing paving of Jacobs street, extending Brookline boulevard to Sawmill Run boulevard, or improving Breming street and Fairhaven Hill road.

Season's First Melons Bring $6.25 Each

The city's first shipment of watermelons for the season, numbering two, arrived here yesterday and were sold to Leo G. Altmayer, produce dealer, for $6.25 each. The melons came from the Isle of Pines, and were the first ever received here from that place. Altmayer kept one of the melons for himself and said he would send the other to the Leech farm hospital.

A carload of melons from Cuba will arrive here later this week, it was said. It is understood they would retail for about $2 each.

ISLAM GROTTO PLANS SMOKER

Islam Grotto will sponsor a neighborhood smoker and entertainment at the Mount Oliver G. B. U. Hall, Brownsville road and Arlington avenue, tomorrow evening.

Prophets and their Masonic friends from Baldwin Township, Carrick, Brentwood, Overbrook, Knoxville, Mt. Oliver and South Side districts have been invited. Islam's officers, Walter F. Weberg, monarch; J. Clifford Franz, chief justice; Ralph H. Axthelm, master of ceremonies, and Fred C. Hopton, veiled prophet, will be present. The meeting will be in charge of the representatives from the above districts.

TREE PLANTING SATURDAY

As a tribute to George Westinghouse from the Westinghouse Society of Japan, 40 Japanese cherry trees are to be planted Saturday at the Westinghouse Memorial in Schenley Park. In sending the trees from Japan, I. Matsuse, sales manager of the Ryobi Denka Kaisha, Tokio, a member of the committee of the Westinghouse Society of Japan, said he hoped it would stimulate general interest in the decorative tree and its history.

Mr. Matsuse

The planting will feature a special program near the memorial at 2:30 p. m. Saturday. The ceremonies are to be under auspices of the combined associations of Westinghouse veterans. According to Paul Russell, government botanist, the Japanese have held the flowering cherry tree in reverence for centuries and have given the utmost care to growing and propagating the finer types.

Settlement May Get City's Used Material

A resolution has been presented in City Council authorizing the Department of Public Works to donate to the Brashear Settlement at 3 Holt street, 1,500 used block stones to be used in the construction of a retaining wall.

. . . and off she went to buy a dinner at McCann's

They moved (poor dears) and there was much to do the house to clean the rugs to lay the curtains to hang oh me . . . oh my!

Everyone was busy everyone was hungry and believe it or not there was nary a thing to eat in the house.

Now Mary had been
of making soft beds
from old, decrepit papers.

In opening them up and spreading them out
on one of our ads which described the delicious prepared foods
McCann's make and sell.

So she put on her hat and off she went to buy a dinner at McCann's

Now if you're moving—or housecleaning—
or planning a party—or just playing hooky from cooking—
it's a good thing to know that down at McCann's you can buy wholesome, delicious foods
all ready to serve.

Here are a few of the most popular

Fried Fillets of Haddock . . . . . lb. 29c crisp and sweet and good.

Loin Lamb Chops lb 45c
The meat of McCann's lamb chops is so tender it almost falls apart at the touch of a fork. Thick-meated! Small boned! Richly flavored! Rib Chops, lb. 40c

Iceberg Lettuce . 2 hds. 19c
Large, firm heads of sweet, tender, crisply cupped green leaves. Eat lots of lettuce. It's good for you.
FRENCH DRESSING . . . . . 8-oz. bot. 19c

Large Cucumbers 2 for 29c
These big, firm meated chaps will make excellent salads. Quarter tomatoes and stick cucumber slices betwixt the quarters . . . that's a salad for you.

Solid Tomatoes lb. 25c
Nice smooth-skinned, rosy-cheeked...but there! No need to tell you that. You know if these tomatoes were not the nicest of nice tomatoes, McCann's wouldn't sell them.

Scotch Tarts . . 6 for 25c
Miniature uncovered pies . . . that's just what they look like. Flaky, light-hearted crusts . . . assorted fruit fillings.

C. C. Vegetables, 4 cans 55c
Tiny sugar Peas, Country Gentleman Corn, Cut Green Beans and Tomatoes. Make up your own assortment.

Frying Chickens . each $1
The meat of McCann's chickens is firm, tender, pink-white and so juicy it melts deliciously in your mouth. Why not serve one for dinner? Average 2 to 2½ pounds.

Mocha and Java, 3 lbs. $1.25
It's genuine Mocha and Java with that heavy, full, rich flavor everyone wants and expects in a demi-tasse.

Halibut Steak . lb 29c
Sliced from that portion of the fish where the flesh is fattest and richest in flavor. Convenient! Tempting! Fresh!

DRIVE ON WATER DELINQUENTS

City Treasurer Roy D. Schooley today continued his war on delinquents on back water rent, following opening of a drive yesterday to force collection. A concerted effort is being made in the First Ward by employes of the treasurer's office. Delinquents suffer penalty of having their supply turned off until payment is made.

The drive, to continue until November 15, will embrace all of the city's 32 wards, Schooley said. The entire force will concentrate in one ward at a time.

Back bills as far in the past as 1914 will be collected, the city treasurer said.

Murder Case Figure Commits Suicide

NANT-Y GLO, Pa., May 5.—Alex Tanchik, 48, of Hooversville, committed suicide yesterday by shooting himself through the head with a revolver. Tanchik was the father of Catherine Tanchik, the state's star witness in the trial and conviction of four Cambria County men for the murder of Louis Hoffman, and who are now under sentence of death. No motive could be assigned for the suicide.

NERVOUS AND RUN-DOWN ... SLEEPLESS

—Lindenmuth Studio

EDWIN J. SHAFFER

Allentown, Pa.—"A few years ago I became nervous and run-down, slept poorly and my appetite failed, which caused me to lose weight. I knew I needed a tonic and builder. My wife and her folks have always been users of Dr. Pierce's medicines and she persuaded me to try Dr. Pierce's Medical Discovery. A few bottles fixed me up wonderfully well, in fact I noticed that I began to feel better after the first bottle and now am feeling splendid, thanks to Dr. Pierce."—Edwin J. Sheer NAVY-AND-WHITE FROCKS

$10.75

Fashion-Thrift frocks of Bemberg Svelda Chiffon Crepe, a fabric which will make life in town tolerable even in the warmest weather because it is delightfully cool. Also, it does not wrinkle easily and is washable.

And with blue the coolest color in the spectrum, and white the one cool neutral, think of something cooler than navy-and-white.

In the several models for women and misses, there are frocks for the street, for afternoon wear, and for rather important evenings at home. . . . Choice of elbow and three-quarter sleeves, and sleeveless frocks with capelets. Sizes 14 to 44.

These dresses may also be had in black-and-white and other fashionable color combinations.

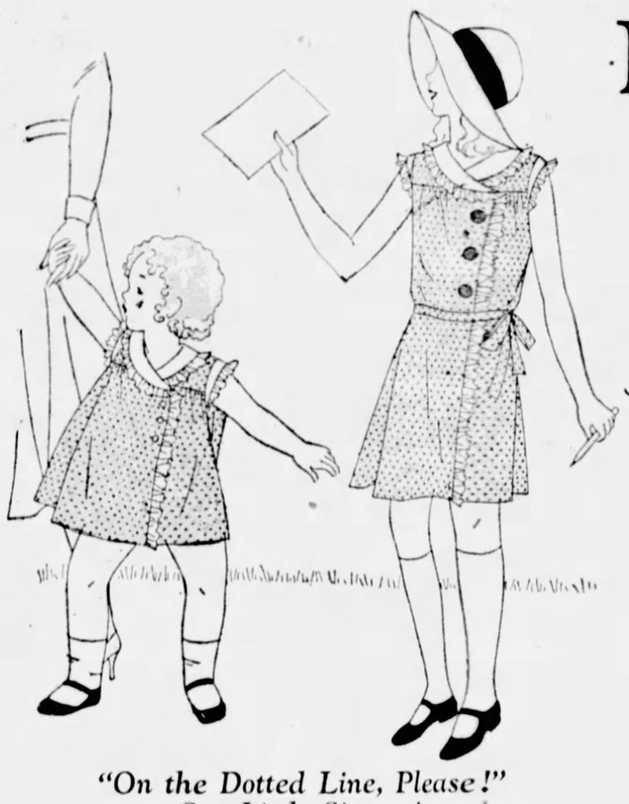
Ratine-Knit Outfits

—As Cool as Georgette—As Firm as Boucle



$17.50

Those who want a change from boucle, something more sheer, with a bit finer stitch, with a finely pebbled surface, and a semi-dull finish (and yet just as firm as the old friend boucle), should see these new ratine-knit outfits.

Tomorrow, The Sportswear Shop will show eight three-piece models for women and misses, at this special price . . . In white, pastel pink, blue, green, and yellow; also in black and guardsman blue.

"On the Dotted Line, Please!" —Say Little Sisters in

Matching Frocks

Mothers will have to "sign" for at least three outfits apiece, when big and little sisters see these adorable summer frocks of dotted Swiss. They're so dainty and flower-like, in white and lovely pastels, with petal collars, frills, and ruffles that seem to suggest birthday parties, and Sunday school, and sunny summer afternoons.

For Big Sister—sizes 6 to 10 years, $2.75.
For Little Sister—sizes 2 to 6 years, $1.75.

... Horne's, Third Floor ...

You'll Want Several Frocks of

Chiffon Voile 38c Yard

So sheer—so cool—so practical—dainty chiffon voiles add many charming frocks to warm-weather wardrobes.

Small-checked patterns, dotted designs, and dainty floral weaves are in this group—in colors suitable for all-day dresses, afternoon, or cool shopping frocks. All are 38 inches wide.

NEW!

Gartuk Hosiery

All the runners that come from garter tension—all the bulkiness in fit at the top of your stocking—are eliminated in the new Gartuk hosiery!

Women are enthusiastic about the Gartuk edge—an extra tuck which absorbs the garter strain, and doubles the wear of stockings. Sheer ingrain chiffon weight, 45-gauge, 3-thread silk—in Sandy Beige, Rose Beige, Putty Beige, and Dusky. $2.65.

A New Summer Shoe...

For Street and Sports

Fashionably styled, in the smartest fabrics for summer—and the ultimate in comfort (because it is a Foot Saver!) this new model is particularly appropriate for street and spectator sports wear. In natural linen with dark brown kid trim, and covered heel, or in white buckskin with black or brown kid trim and leather heel, at $12.50.

The new summer shoes are arriving every day—linens and the lovely light-color kids—and the ever-important white shoes, in models for street, afternoon, and evening, $7.50 up.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Many Attend Opening of Exhibit

This week Mrs. H. Bartol Register, of New York, is the house guest of Mrs. Hughart Laughlin, of Woodland road, Sewickley. Mrs. Register is sales director for Princess Alexis Obolensky, who is exhibiting hand sewing, the product of the Nancy Lincoln Guild, in the home of Mrs. Elizabeth A. Pickering, of Morewood avenue. The Guild is a clearing house for the needlework of the Kentucky mountain women, as I mentioned before, and yesterday, the opening day of the exhibit, there were a great many folks at the Pickering home admiring the gorgeous materials. The exhibition will continue through Friday.

From the East comes news of an engagement which will interest many Pittsburgh folks since the bride-to-be and her family have many friends here.

Betrothal Of Note

The announcement comes from the G. Clinton Fogwells, of Pelham Manor, N. Y., who make known the betrothal of their daughter, Dorothy Hazel, to Benjamin Appleby Weed, son of the John A. Weeds, of Noroton Heights, Conn.

Dorothy is a descendant of an old Quaker family which first settled in Pennsylvania. She is a direct descendant of Jacob Ridgway, who was consul for the United States at Antwerp, and founder of the Ridgway Libraries. These libraries he gave to the city of Philadelphia.

She is a graduate of the Friends' Select School, Philadelphia, and attended the American Academy of Dramatic Art, New York. And she's traveled extensively in Europe studying French and drama in Paris, Lausanne, Suisse and at the College of New Rochelle. Two years ago she made her debut in the Philadelphia Art Alliance. She's a member of the Three Arts Club, and a junior member of the Philadelphia Art Alliance, the Pelham Manor Woman's Club, and the American Woman's Club of Paris.

Her fiance is descended from one of the oldest families in Connecticut. He was graduated from the Hotchkiss School, Lakeville, Conn. And he's a member of the 1931 class at Princeton. He belongs to the University Cottage Club, Princeton, the Hubbard Heights Golf Club, and the Stamford Yacht Club.

There are any number of smart events taking place this week, and among the foremost is a series of entertainments in honor of a former Sewickleyan, Mrs. Theodore Varnay, of New York, who is the house guest of the Richmond F. Balls. They will give a dinner Thursday evening in their home for their guest. Today Mrs. James Dickinson Rhodes is entertaining at a buffet luncheon for Mrs. Varnay, and tonight she will be honor guest at a dinner given by the junior H. Raymond Freemans, in their home in Linden place.

Guest Is Honored

Mrs. Van Lear Perry Shriver, of Woodland road, will entertain tomorrow at a luncheon bridge for the Gotham visitor, and Thursday an informal luncheon will be given for her by Mrs. Frank R. Dravo in her home.

Friday another luncheon bridge will be given by Margaret Adair in her Edgeworth home, and the following day the Allegheny Country Club will be the scene of a luncheon in honor of Mrs. Varnay, given by Mrs. George Cass Hutchinson. That same evening Mrs. Chester Marsh Van Kleeck will entertain at the club.

Mrs. Varnay will leave Sewickley Sunday morning to be the guest of her sister, Mrs. William Maclay Hall, of Devonshire street, for some time.

Members of the board of managers of the Eye and Ear Hospital are active in supporting the performance of "Charm," which the Stage and Play Society will repeat on Thursday night in the Twentieth Century Club for the benefit of the hospital.

Sponsor Benefit

Mrs. William Scott, the president, is assisted in her official duties by Mrs. Howard Hale McClintic and Mrs. Edward B. Scull, vice presidents; John F. Crawford, treasurer; Mrs. A. W. McEldowney, secretary; Miss Alice Gray, corresponding secretary, and J. F. Walton, endowment treasurer.

Members of the board who will be seen at the performance include Mrs. William W. Blair, Miss Elizabeth W. Childs, Miss Eleanor Chalfant, Mrs. Charles W. Dahlinger, Mrs. F. Albert Dilworth, Mrs. R. Russell Huggins, Mrs. Louis B. Hays, Mrs. James D. Heard, Mrs. J. L. Kirkpatrick, Mrs. Clarence E. Lott and Mrs. Robert J. McKay.

Others are Mrs. John A. Murtland, Mrs. G. R. Nutty, Mrs. Edwin N. Ohl, Miss Anne H. Robinson, Mrs. William B. Rodgers, Mrs. Wallace Hurtte Rowe, Mrs. John F. Walton, Jr., Dr. William W. Blair, Dr. Ewing W. Day and Mr. J. H. McCready.

Miss Daisy C. Brown, of Hamilton avenue, East End, entertained at a bridge in honor of Miss Anne C. Lawrence, daughter of Mrs. William P. Lawrence, of Callowhill street, who will become the bride of Joseph Crossan, of Montier street, Wilkinsburg, on June 9. The decorations were in yellow and green. Among the guests were Mrs. Elizabeth Milligan, of Glasgow, Scotland, and Miss Laetitia McCord, of Coatbridge, Scotland, who are aunts of Miss Brown.

Dr. and Mrs. Samuel Warner, of Croton avenue, New Castle, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Eleanor Kathryn Warner, to R. X. Graham, son of Mrs. James Graham, of New Wilmington. Miss Warner is a graduate of Westminster College and for the past three years has been a member of the faculty of the Benjamin Franklin Junior High School, New Castle. Her fiance has been a member of the Westminster College faculty for the past six years. No date has been named for the wedding.

Announce Betrothal

MRS. ELIZABETH A. PICKERING . . . . . ON THE GLASS ARE THREE PITTSBURGH BEAUTIES

Mrs. Pickering, Morewood avenue, among exhibits of Kentucky mountain women's handicraft she is showing to Pittsburgh society women. On the bit of old Pittsburgh glass she holds are engraved the likenesses of three Pittsburgh beauties, their identities lost in the years.

CLUB NOTES

Officers elected yesterday by the Wilkinsburg Woman's Club are: President, Mrs. James I. McLallen; first and second vice presidents, Mrs. W. E. Brinker and Mrs. Harry D. Hasson; recording and corresponding secretaries, Mrs. Charles R. Beall and Mrs. J. E. McCullough; assistant secretary, Mrs. Frank M. Storer; treasurer, Mrs. W. E. Kiner.

The business meeting and program followed a box luncheon in the Y. W. C. A. Community House. Mrs. Nelle Moore Sprowls gave a delightful interpretation of Essex Dane's "Fleurette and Company," and the retiring officers, including the junior president, Mrs. Robert Hackett, and committee heads gave their reports.

Under auspices of the Sewickley Music Club a community "music night" for the whole Sewickley Valley will be held tonight in the Sewickley High School auditorium, with the expectation of making it an annual affair. The club committee in charge consists of Mrs. John H. Mitchell, Mrs. Alexander W. Dann and Miss Amanda Vierheller, who have arranged an especially full program.

Paul N. Critchlow will lead assembly singing; Mrs. Ralph W. Harbison will speak concerning music week; Gertrude G. Hespenheide will sing, accompanied by Marie Vierheller; Jessie Yuille Yon, with Marie Stritmater at the piano, also will sing; Alfred Flora, who won first place in clarinet in the Allegheny County Forensic League contests, will play. Sarah Scott accompanying him and Marion Sickeler, Allegheny County voice winner; the Sewickley High School Chorus, the Russian Orthodox Choir of Ambridge, the Ambridge and Coraopolis High School orchestras will add several numbers and Mrs. Arthur B. Sivitter, president of the Tuesday Musical Club, will speak of the Stephen C. Foster Memorial.

A garden dining room contest to be judged from photographs is being conducted by the garden division of the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women and awards will be made at the October convention in York. Awards will be based on design, continuous bloom, color effect, variety in plants and distinction. Ten prizes will be awarded, one of which will be a collection of perennials from the garden at "Locust Cottage," home of the chairman, Mrs. Frank A. Kaiser, in Scranton.

The North Fayette Township Garden Club of Oakdale has planned a colonial tea and antique exhibit at the home of Mrs. Gertrude McFarland, Hastings avenue, tomorrow and Thursday, from 2 to 5 and from 7 to 10 o'clock.

Press Club Told About Cruise

On a Mediterranean "luxury cruise" one buys beads and one buys them north, south, east and west, Miss Marie McSwigan, former president of the Women's Press Club, told the members yesterday. Miss McSwigan, who has just returned from a three-month "luxury cruise," had the most delightful things to tell of the people and places she had met and seen and she told them in her characteristically clever and witty way.

Life takes on a fresher color and a quicker tempo under such traveling conditions, she said, as she went on to speak of the many odd and ridiculous situations and incidents which had arisen on her trip—the woman who wanted to see the Four Horsemen on the Acropolis; the omnipresent peddlers from whom one can buy "everything from a grand piano to beads and more beads" and against whom nothing would avail but what Miss McSwigan said "must have been two $1.000 Arabic words."

Among the distinguished persons whom she had either seen or met, the speaker mentioned E. H. Sothern and his wife, Julia Marlowe; George Bernard Shaw and Rudyard Kipling, all of whom were in Cairo, and Vicki Baum, author of "Grand Hotel," whom she met on shipboard coming home. In Rome Miss McSwigan visited Marcella Comes, Pittsburgh artist, and in Paris she was with Miss Madelon Wildberg, who is also a Press Club member.

Mrs. Joseph Collins, just back from two months in Florida, told something of what she had been doing during her absence—a visit to the National Cathedral in Washington en route south, the jai alai games, the races, the Bok Singing Tower.

After their own meeting the Press Club joined with the Vassar Alumnae Association, the Authors' Club, the Pen Women's League and the City Club at the tea in honor of Miss Catherine Bauer, of Princeton, winner of the art in industry essay prize. Mrs. F. Orr Johnson and Mrs. F. F. Rohrer presided at the tea table.

Mrs. Henry E. Cole is chairman for tomorrow's meeting of the Woman's Alliance, First Unitarian Church. Mrs. J. O. Handy will discuss "Art in Living" and the program also will include a playlet, "British Guns," by Mrs. Sara C. Pettit. Alliance members of the cast are Mrs. Cole, Mrs. Thomas C. Clifford and Miss Sophie G. Keenan.

To Give Playlet

Mrs. Ellen Edwards is general chairman for the Trinity Branch, Girls' Friendly Society, production of "My Maryland" at the Nixon Theater May 22 and 23.

Mrs. Edwards

Judge Sara Soffel will address the regular meeting of the branch on Thursday evening, speaking on "Women in Politics."

The Mothers of Democracy Club of Allegheny County will have a luncheon at the Congress of Clubs on Friday in honor of the president, Mrs. Harry C. Miller. The principal speaker will be Judge D. Paulson Foster.

To honor Mrs. Barnett Davis, retiring president of B'Nai Israel Sisterhood, a luncheon will be given at the Rittenhouse Hotel on Thursday afternoon. An important feature of the program will be a series of tableaux showing the early days of the sisterhood nearly a quarter of a century ago, one episode of which will be in appreciation of the years of service Mrs. Davis has given. This tableaux will be given to verse written by I. A. Melnick, president of the Men's Club of the congregation. Mrs. N. Kaufmann, accompanied by Miss Sybil Young, will sing.

Honoring Mrs. Davis

The annual luncheon meeting of the National Park Seminary Alumnae Asociation will be held Friday at the Longue Vue Country Club, with Mrs. J. F. Lockhead, Mrs. John Byerly and Mrs. Kenneth Milliken as hostesses.

Tea will be served all afternoon as an unusual feature of the benefit "idge which the Junior Guild of Squirrel Hill will give tomorrow at the Pittsburgh Country Club. The tea committee includes Mrs. Richard Healy, Mrs. William J. McMoil, Mrs. A. L. Hattenback and Mrs. Frank Bailey. Mrs. George Heimert, Mrs. Cash Dunn and Mrs. R. C. Tinsley comprise the tables committee, and on the prizes committee are Mrs. J. C. Wellington, Mrs. Trevor Smith, Mrs. Ronald Q. Cleavenger, Mrs. Richard Brinker and Mr. Robert Whyte.

STYLISTS FORECAST CORAL AS POPULAR SUMMER COLOR

Sketched in Paris

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph,

PARIS, May 5. — Corral some coral if you would be in the mode. This most delightful stone has been growing steadily in favor and now seems to have definitely arrived as something more than a costume jewelry accessory. It is fast becoming part of the mode itself. Its most entrancing colorings lend it especially to both black and white. A quite plain black dress of crepe marocain or georgette provides a splendid background and foil for coral, particularly when it is in the delicate shade of pink that is peculiar to coral, while the deeper tones are alluring with a white outfit. The real coral enthusiasts wear long ropes of coral without any other stone or gem, while others use coral with diamonds or onyx. The last mentioned combination is extremely good and is fast becaming a favorite.

THE DRAWING shows how we are wearing our coral. The crocheted beret of silk is coral colored and so it is only fitting that there should be worn with it a long, heavy rope of natural uncut coral looped about the neck and finished off with two onyx balls. Similar balls of onyx dangle about them from the center of the beret in back. The gloves are of black suede with gauntlet cuffs with flat pleated folds of the suede. These most interesting accessories were seen at the Ritz recently.

Little White Lies

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Did you ever meet a man whose ambition was to be on the home grounds of an earthquake?

Well, you've met him now. Not a big, adult quake. But one of those baby tremblors that will curl your hair, shine your shoes and polish your nails.

We have listened to stories of hundreds of tourists who described the enjoyments of being at a table and watching their soup stir itself. It made us jealous.

It's not so bad when geography gets capillary tremors. After hanging around on the slopes of Vesuvius and other quake countries we finally realized our ambish.

One night at four we sat up suddenly in bed, jammed on the lights and wondered what it was all about. All we heard was a scraping sound and we couldn't locate it until we noticed a picture of Mona Lisa in a wrought iron frame.

Mona Lisa was hanging by a wire and the scraping sound was the iron frame swinging to and fro on the stucco wall. And moaning Lizze seemed to enjoy it for she was rocking gently and smiling.

The chandeliers were wafting clock-wise and the chairs did a modulated rumba. It was an imported tremblor. But it didn't last long.

Only about seven seconds they told us the next morning. But it gave us a selling point and our sales resistance became of secondary importance.

Like all other tourists, we started to build that short quiver up into a 12-reeler. We elaborated on the scenario until we had a drama that had sight, sound and color.

It grew into such a splendid and able lie that we finally had to copyright it.

Now we are thoroughly convinced that the seven-second message was a gelatinous convolution of the terrestrial carpet that lasted four weeks, wrapped buildings up in the landscape and threw rocks at astronomers.

And that our bravery on that occasion was so terrific that 17 republics, kingdoms and principalities decorated our best vest with medals commemorating us for not robbing the dead or selling oil stock to the wounded.

EIGHT POLICE BOATS ASKED

Pittsburgh is to have a larger "navy" if City Council provides the funds, Public Safety Director James M. Clark has asked for a motorboat and seven skiffs for the police. The total cost is $2,000. Council has been asked to transfer the necessary cash from the salary account to the equipment account of the department.

A resolution to pay the Manchester Boat Club $120 annual rent for the storage of the present police motor patrol boat was presented yesterday.

North Siders Ask For Playground Site

New Postal Stamp Pays Honor to Red Cross

WASHINGTON, May 5.—(AP.)—The symbolic figure of a Red Cross nurse will appear on 2-cent stamps on May 21, marking the fiftieth anniversary of that organization.

Postmaster General Brown announced the first day's sale would be limited to two historic places, Dansville, N. Y., where Clara Barton was born, and this city, where she organized the National Red Cross in 1881.

In two colors, black and red, the new stamp with its kneeling figure was pronounced by post-office officials one of the most attractive ever issued.

Fifty million of the new stamps have been made.

DAMAGE CLAIM APPEAL HEARD

The claim of Wicenty Rzasa, storekeeper of Groveton, for damages of $6,000 to $13,000 to his property through elimination of the grade crossing over the Montour Railroad at Groveton, was argued before the Superior Court of Pennsylvania here yesterday.

The claim was based on the closing of a traveled street, resulting in an additional half mile of travel to Coraopolis, and was refused by the Public Service Commission. The County of Allegheny intervened as an appellee.

The annual spring session here of the Superior Court, in its fourth week, is expected to conclude today.

Col. Bain to Speak At Cheswick Meet

United States Engineer Col. Jarvis J. Bain will be the principal speaker at a meeting of the Cheswick Chamber of Commerce tonight in the Cheswick School auditorium. Members of the Springdale chamber and citizens of Cheswick will unite for the meeting. Col. Bain is expected to explain the program for slack-watering the Allegheny River.

HEARST STOCK EARNINGS HIGH

NEW YORK, May 5.—(Universal.)—Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc., announced today that earnings of the company for the first quarter of 1931 were equivalent to $1.44 a share on the 7 per cent Class A participating stock, against dividend requirements for the same period of 43¾ cents.

These earnings are at the rate of well over three times regular dividend requirements on this 7 per cent Class A stock. According to the company, earnings for the last five years have averaged annually about three times dividend requirements.

The Class A stock is being offered to the public directly by Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc., and through other Hearst organizations. It has a par value of $25 a share, and the regular dividend, which is payable quarterly, is at the annual rate of 7 per cent. The last dividend was paid on March 15, to stockholders of record March 1. The Class A stock also has a participating privilege which allows it to share with the common stock in additional disbursements as declared up to another 3 per cent.

Danger to Health in risking doubtful substitutes for Kotex

IT'S a temptation, sometimes, to save a few pennies by accepting a substitute for Kotex.

But what a costly saving it may be! What guarantee have you of the hygienic safety of this substitute, if you know nothing of its makers? Is it fit for this personal use? How was it made? Where?

When your choice is Kotex, you're backed by medical approval. The best hospitals use it. They appreciate the splendid purity of Kotex, the exacting care with which it is made.

You should never consider sanitary protection of lower standards. Insist on Kotex. Genuine Kotex.

Comfort, too, is assured by Kotex. Laminated layers of Cellucotton absorbent wadding absorb scientifically—away from the surface—assuring continued softness.

Yet you'll find me at home with the folks"

And the folks will tell you that Chesterfield won them and continues to win smokers on its unvarying and dependable good smoking quality. Mild, ripe, choice tobaccos, mellowed by natural ageing, are blended and cross-blended to give to Chesterfield smoke an aroma, flavor, and smoothness that is just what smokers want. No mere claims will stand up against genuine quality, and more and more Chesterfield smokers are proving this for themselves every day.

FOR NINETEEN years, our Research Department has kept intimate touch with every new development of Science that could be applied to the manufacture of cigarettes. During this period there has been no development of tested value or importance to the smoker which we have not incorporated into the making of Chesterfield cigarettes.

LET ROAD CONTRACT

A contract for the Laketon road extension in Penn Township has been let by the County Commissioners to the Allegheny Constructing Company at a contract price of $82,862.

The Frankstown road district of Penn Township, which is fast becoming one of the largest suburban residential areas of the Pittsburgh district, will be greatly benefited by the extension, realtors say.

Laketon road was widened and improved about a year ago, but since then the outlying district has grown rapidly and the need for a new highway to bring the residents of the district into closer communication with Wilkinsburg and the East End of Pittsburgh has been stressed by township officials and realtors.

Among the larger home developments which will be improved by the extension are Frankstown Estates, Crescent Hills, Ritzland Place and Laketon Heights.

Applications for building permits follow:

Second Ward—Century Land Company, alterations, 130-34 Sandusky street, $1,000. S. Sunsero, concrete block addition and alterations, 2021 Penn avenue, $800.

Fourteenth Ward—C. Buechle, alterations, 1716-18 Murray avenue, $900.

All In A Day

By Mark Hellinger

NEW YORK, May 5.

FROM LOU HOLTZ, the column writing star of "You Said It," comes this very sad tale of the actor who left his boarding house on a recent evening and walked slowly up Riverside Drive. He had worries on his mind.

What was going to happen to him? Parts were few and far between. He was nearing middle age. His wife had left him flat a year ago. The few stocks he had owned had slipped away during the crash.

A gun was suddenly pressed into his ribs. The actor looked up. A man with a cap stood beside him.

"Walk over to that bench and sit down," muttered the man.

The actor was frightened stiff.

"What's that?" he questioned.

"You heard what I said," returned the crook. "Walk over to that bench and sit down. While you're walking dig into your pocket and get out your dough.

"Snappy now. One phoney move on your part and I'll blow your head off."

The actor stepped to the bench and sat down. The robber sat very close to him and again jabbed the gun into the thespian's ribs.

The player turned two pleading eyes on the crook.

"Good heavens, mister," he groaned, "do you have to rob me? I'm an actor—and all I have in this world are the few dollars I have in my pocket. Surely you can find somebody else who's not in such a tough spot as I am."

The crook shook his head.

"I ain't got time to look," he growled. "And what's more, I don't believe that times are any tougher for you than they are for me."

The thespian sighed heavily.

"Ah, my friend," he pleaded, "you don't know whereof you speak.

"In days gone by I earned me the sum of $150 a week. Each week that money came to me. I lived high and I lived well. But now what has happened? If I am lucky, I work 20 weeks in the year. And for the same work that once brought me $150, they give me $50 a week.

"This is the man, then, you have picked as a victim. And you tell me times are tougher for you. How can you say such a thing?"

The crook scowled blackly.

"How can I say such a thing?" he repeated. "Well, I'll show you."

He lifted his gun and opened it. The actor looked down and sat back in amazement. The revolver wasn't loaded.

"You see that?" grunted the robber. "Things are so tough for me these days I can't even afford to buy bullets!" . . .

THE STRANGEST evening of the theatrical season—and there have certainly been some pips this year—took place at the Fulton Theater the other night when Leo Bulgakov opened "Devil in the Mind," by the same author who turned out "He Who Gets Slapped."

Mr. Bulgakov has done some good work in the theater. He must be growing temperamental of late, however, for he pulled a highly nervous stunt during the dress rehearsal. Two stage hands were standing in the wings while Bulgakov was going through one of his very distressing scenes.

He saw them—and he stopped talking. Instead he picked up a chair and flung it in the direction of the astonished stage hands.

"I am an artist," he shrieked. "How can I act when stage hands are in the wings? Leave me!"

If that's what makes actors give bad performances, the theater must have been crowded with watching stage hands on the opening night of "Devil in the Mind." Bulgakov get a unique display of histrionics. He refused to speak above a whisper at any time during the evening.

In his review of the play, Robert Garland, wise and witty commentator of the World-Telegram, told the entire story in a few words. He said it was a play about a man with a pain in the head who gave the audience a pain in the neck.....

SAD, INDDED, is this story of a huge St. Bernard dog, who lived for eight years in a small town in Massachusetts. There were four children in the owner's family. And the dog meant almost as much to the family as a fifth child.

Last January three of the children were playing on a frozen pond. The St. Bernard sat and watched. Suddenly the ice cracked and the kids were plunged into the icy water.

The dog immediately plunged in after them. One child he was able to save—but the other two were too much for him. They went to the bottom. And when the horror-stricken family came running out they were unable to drag the dog from the freezing water. He kept swimming around and around and around as though he were still hoping the other two children might be helped. When they finally got him out, the St. Bernard was almost dead from exhaustion.

Last month, after the story had been told and retold many, many times, it was decided by the town to give the dog a medal. Various dog lovers chipped in and the medal was duly made. The animal's picture was in the papers a second time as he was brought to town to receive his award.

As the family walked in the direction of the mayor's office, another dog darted out at the St. Bernard. He was a little bit of a thing and the heroic animal never even looked in the other canine's direction. The small dog bit the St. Bernard in the leg and ran off.

A short time later, they had to fire a bullet into the St. Bernard's head. Rabies. He was buried with his medal—and not far from the spot where rested the two children he hadn't been able to save.

How Weak, Frail, Thin People Gain Needed Weight and Strength

McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets Increase Your Weight 5 Pounds in 30 Days or Your Druggist is Authorized to Return Your Money.

No more will weak, thin, unfortunate children cry in protest when the nasty, fishy-tasting, horrible-smelling cod liver oil is brought out.

Medical science progresses rapidly, and now you can get at your druggist's real, genuine cod liver oil in sugar-coated tablets that young and old can take with ease and pleasure.

Even the run-down and skinny grown-ups, who ought to take cod liver oil, because it really is the greatest vitamin food and builder of healthy flesh in the world, will feel extremely joyful when they read this welcome news.

Thin, rundown, anemic men, women and children who need to grow strong and take on flesh are advised to get a box of McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets, and if you don't gain 5 pounds in 30 days your druggist is authorized to hand you back the money you paid for it.

One woman gained fifteen pounds in five weeks, according to her own doctor—another ten pounds in three weeks. A very sickly child, aged nine, twelve pounds in seven months, and now plays with other children and has a good appetite.

Just ask for McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets. Any druggist will tell you that they are wonderful flesh and health builders. Only 60 cents for 60 tablets — and don't forget that they are wonder workers for feeble old folks.

Get McCoy's, the original and genuine, and beware of imitations.

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Stocks Decline — Local Market Steady

MARKET GOES INTO SLOW DECLINE

Selling Breaks Out in Coppers and Spreads to Other Sections of List

NEW YORK, May 5.—(AP.)—The stock market indicated today that it is still too feeble for prolonged exposure to sunshine.

The upward trend was carried over through the first hour of today's session, but the market then went into a slow decline. Selling broke out in some of the copper shares, and soon spread through the more important sections of the list. Early gains of a point or two were replaced by losses of similar extent.

U. S. Steel declined more than 2 points, getting down close to the year's low.

Finding little or nothing in the business or industrial news upon which a further rally might be based, bears again applied pressure in spots, but they were not aggressive. It was said in brokerage circles that at least two large operators recently identified with the short side had closed out their contracts and had retired for a vacation.

Wall street was interested in the suggestions of Melvin E. Traylor, president of the First National Bank of Chicago, before the International Chamber of Commerce. His suggestion that marginal transactions be limited to $10,000 or more was in line with a strong feeling in some quarters that marginal transactions should be restricted to persons with adequate means to take the risks. During the palmy days of the bull market, almost anyone could walk into a brokerage office and by depositing a certain amount of cash open an account. Few if any questions were asked. Some of the more conservative houses have of late adopted a policy of making fairly thorough investigation of prospective clients.

Mr. Traylor's condemnation of the activities of floor traders brought out the traditional justification of their activities—namely that they "make the market. By that, they mean that they keep stock moving and provide a ready market, or prevent wide price fluctuations between transactions. There has been a tendency toward curbing their activities over the past several years, and several bankers feel that more might be done.

Wall street was also interested in further unconfirmed reports of discussions looking toward an increase in freight rates to improve the railroads' credit position and help maintain wage scales.

DIVIDEND NEWS

General Gas and Electric.

General Gas and Electric Corporation declared the regular quarterly dividend of 7½c on the common class A, payable July 1 to record of July 1, and two quarterly dividends on the common class B, totaling 10c, payable July 1 to record of May 29.

Ohio Oil Omits Common.

Ohio Oil Company has omitted the quarterly dividend of 25 cents on the common stock, due at this time. The regular quarterly of $1.50 on the preferred was declared, payable June 15 to record of May 16.

Spear & Co.

Spear & Co. declared regular quarterly dividends of 1¾ per cent each on the preferred and second preferred stocks, payable June 1 to stock of record May 15.

American Power and Light.

American Power and Light Company declared the regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents in cash and regular semi-annual of 2 per cent in common stock on the common, both payable June 1 to record of May 14.

Crown Wilamette Cuts.

Directors of Crown Wilamette Paper Company have recommended the declaration of a dividend of $1 on the first preferred stock, payable July 1 in place of the regular quarterly payment of $1.75. This will automatically defer second preferred dividends as the first preferred is cumulative up to $7 annually.

Zellerbach on $3 Basis.

Crown Zellerbach Corporation declared quarterly dividends of 75 cents each on the Class A and Class B preferred stocks, placing them on $3 annual basis, compared with $6 previously. The dividends are payable June 1 to record of May 13.

Regular on Nickel Plate.

Directors of the New York, Chicago and St. Louis Railroad today declared the quarterly dividends of $1.50 on the cumulative preferred stock, series A, and $1.50 on the common stock, both payable July 1 to record of May 15.

More Gas Lines May Be Built Soon

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

ADDITIONAL PIPE LINE construction has been predicted for the near future as a result of further development of three of the largest natural gas fields. Earnings of the gas companies have reflected the business depression to some extent but there has been no interruption of their construction programs. In fact natural gas is the only major industry which has been engaged in nation-wide expansion during the past year.

Geologists believe that the limits of the new gas fields are far greater than are indicated by wells in production at the present time. But even if no new acreage is proven, the three principal fields are believed to have resources to supply their present outlets for 50 to 100 years.

While the construction of new pipe line facilities for the distribution of natural gas has been at a rapid pace, the discovery of additional reserves has been going on even faster so that the scope and the life of the recently revived industry have been materially extended.

Three Large Fields

THE THREE FIELDS which have been greatly extended by recent drilling operations are Amarillo in the Texas Panhandle, Hugoton in Southwestern Kansas and Western Oklahoma and Munroe-Richland in Northern Louisiana.

Estimates of the potentialities of these fields have varied widely. One survey made by Ralph E. Davis, Inc., a firm of natural gas engineers, shows the reserves, proven acreage and complete wells of the three fields as follows:

	Reserves (cu. ft.)	Acreage.	Wells.
Amarillo	22,000,000,000,000	1,500,000	533
Hugoton	10,000,000,000,000	1,060,000	128
Munroe-Richland	4,000,000,000,000	300,000	830

To the average person the fact that these reserves are measured in trillions of cubic feet is not particularly significant. The figures take a more tangible form, however, when it is realized that the entire gas reserves of the Appalachian region, comprising everything east of the Mississippi River and north of the state of Mississippi, aggregate 10,000,000,000,000 cubic feet or about the same amount estimated by Ralph E. Davis for the Hugoton field alone.

Half Reserve of Country

THE THREE FIELDS comprise about half the known gas reserves of the United States. The Amarillo field is about 125 miles long and 15 to 40 miles wide. The Hugoton field covers an area measuring 40 by 50 miles. All three fields are being extended by recent drilling activities.

The principal long distance gas lines now under construction are depending on Amarillo and Hugoton for their supply. One of these lines will serve Chicago, another, in which Columbia Gas is interested, will extend to Indiana and a third will serve cities in Nebraska and Iowa.

To Serve New Cities

THE LINES NOW UNDER construction will serve a large portion of the principal cities of the Middle West but the recent development of reserves indicates that the building of natural gas lines to additional cities will be feasible. By the end of the present year gas will be supplied to Chicago, St. Louis, Memphis, New Orleans, Atlanta, Birmingham, Denver, Lincoln, Des Moines, Sioux City, Davenport, Fort Dodge and possibly Indianapolis.

Additional markets are available in Minneapolis, St. Paul, Omaha, Nashville, Milwaukee and a large number of cities in Wisconsin. Some of these could be served by extensions of lines now being built but the construction of two or three additional lines would be needed to supply them all.

RADIO COVERS DIVIDENDS

NEW YORK, May 5.—Net earnings Radio Corporation of America for the first quarter this year were approximately equal to the net profits for the entire calendar year of 1930.

The report of David Sarnoff, president, issued today, showed net income for the quarter of $1,566,519. The statement disclosed earnings of $263,647 in excess of dividend requirements on the preferred stock. This balance was equal to slightly more than 2 cents a share on the common stock, compared with earnings of 2 cents a share on the common for the entire year of 1930.

Comparative figures for the corresponding quarter last year are not available, for the reason that, with permission of the New York Stock Exchange, no report for the quarter ended March 31, 1930, was issued, since it was felt that adjustments in connection with issuance of additional shares for facilities acquired from General Electric Company and Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company might have resulted in some confusion. For the first six months last year, however, there was a deficit amounting to 17 cents a share on the common stock.

Rubber Market.

NEW YORK, May 5.—Rubber futures opened barely steady: May, 5.90; July, 6.00; September, 6.10. New contracts—May, 6.00; July, 6.11; September, 6.25. Spot smoked ribbed, 6.

Treasury Faces $850,000,000 Deficit

WASHINGTON, May 5.—Secretary Mellon today invited offers for a $50,000,000 issue of 91-day treasury bills, which will bring to $2,510,000,000 the amount of securities sold by the government since March 15.

The Secretary said tenders would be received at Federal Reserve banks up to 2 o'clock next Thursday. The bills will be dated May 11 and mature August 10.

In addition to facing a deficit of possibly $850,000,000 or more at the end of the fiscal year on June 30, the Treasury must raise money to meet maturities of securities falling due this month and next.

A total of $60,000,000 in treasury bills falls due today and tomorrow, while $154,000,000 in treasury certificates must be paid on May 18.

'Chevy' Maintains April Schedules

DETROIT, May 5.—Chevrolet motor car May production will at least equal the April total of about 106,000 units and may run as high as 110,000, according to H. J. Klinger, vice president and general sales manager.

April Oil Well Activities Higher

OIL CITY, May 5.—The Derrick reports that April oil well completions east of the Rockies numbered 1,029 with an initial production of 1,666,284 barrels, 375 dry holes and 152 gassers, as compared to 895 completions during March, with an initial production of 485,020 barrels, 348 dry holes and 182 gassers.

East Central Texas had 242 completions during April with an initial output of 1,381,888 barrels. All other fields were curtailing drilling at the end of April, the report says.

At the end of April there were 498 rigs building, 2,169 wells drilling, as compared to 512 rigs building at the end of March and 2,326 drilling.

Women's Apparel Sales Increase

NEW YORK, May 5.—Mail orders for women's apparel and accessories reaching resident buyers in New York at the opening of the week were heavy, indicating that retail turnover of promotion and summer merchandise continues to gain headway. Favorable weather conditions at the close of last week in most sections of the country proved a stimulant to consumer buying and started the new month with favorable sales figures.

April Automobile Production Up 20 Per Cent

NEW YORK, May 5.—April automobile production by members of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, representing all important manufacturers except Ford, is estimated at 231,017 units, an increase of 20 per cent over March, but a decrease of 12 per cent from April, 1930.

During the first four months of 1931, production by the chamber members was 701,171 cars and trucks, against 906,580 in the like 1930 period.

Daily Average Oil Production Gains

TULSA, Okla., May 5.—(AP.)—The new fields in East Central Texas led the way for an increase of 38,892 barrels in the country's daily average crude oil production last week, the Oil and Gas Journal's report shows. The report estimates the total output at 2,480,731 barrels. In East Central Texas the increase was 44,457 barrels, boosting that area's production to 396,705 barrels.

SAYS COTTON TRADE DULL

MANCHESTER, England, May 5.—World cotton trade was described as "far from satisfactory" in a survey contained in the International Cotton Bulletin, official organ of the International Federation of Master Cotton Spinners' and Manufacturers' Associations.

The bulletin said the world's cotton mill consumption for the half year ended January 31 had decreased to 11,164,000 bales, compared with 13,202,000 bales used in the corresponding period of the previous year.

The world's total of cotton spinning spindles during the same period dropped to 163,571,000 from 164,108,000 during the half year ending July 31, 1930. France was the only European country to show an increase.

The decrease in the United States was from 34,031,000 spindles to 33,345,000, and in Great Britain from 55,207,000 spindles to 54,933,000. Increases were shown in all Far Eastern countries.

Liverpool Wheat Market.

LIVERPOOL, May 5.—The market was due ⅛ to ¼ penny higher, opened ¼ to ⅜ penny up, and at 1:20 p. m. was unchanged to ⅛ penny up.

NORMAL TRADE SEEN IN THIRD QUARTER '32

Slow, Steady Business Recovery, Starting in Fall, Being Forecast

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service

NEW YORK, May 5.—Although hopes of celar-cut trade recovery have now been deferred to the autumn, the newest fashion among economic statisticians is to predict that, despite any earlier improvement, business will not reach computed normal until well in 1932.

The statistical department of a leading corporation, which specializes in studies of this character for the benefit of its own operating executives, schedules normal business for the third quarter of 1932.

Mr. Rukeyser.

John Moody, in articulating the new expectations, points out in the Post:

"While I am as confident as ever that the longer outlook for the business interests of this country is in every way hopeful and constructive, yet I doubt very much whether we can be back to normal times, such as we had five or six years ago, until some time in 1932 or 1933. In the meanwhile, I think things may get slowly better so that the year 1931 should, judging by all current signs, close with much better prospects than it opened."

Business needs more statesmanship and leadership and perhaps fewer economic soothsayers. The batting average of economic forecasters has been singularly poor since the panic, as Mr. Moody has pointed out.

BUSINESS TESTED

Business recovery will be quickened by alertness in making promptly readjustments, which must be made ultimately, in any circumstances. The mandate of the times is for economy and efficiency. The right of numerous companies to stay in business is being tested.

Business in the large needs for revival a program of production.

It also needs genius in distribution to assure that the economies of cheap and efficient production are fully enjoyed by the ultimate consumer.

Leaks in distributive costs tend to put the economic machine out of balance, and cause unemployment and glutted markets.

Eastern Steamship Chairman Resigns

BOSTON, May 5.—Calvin Austin, former president of the Eastern Steamship Lines, Inc., resigned as chairman of the board of directors at a meeting today. He retained his membership on the board.

Jere A. Downs, member of the banking firm of Hayden, Stone & Co., and a governor of the Boston Stock Exchange, was elected to fill the vacancy. Austin has been identified with the Eastern for 56 years.

Screw & Bolt Net $3,192 for Quarter

Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt Corporation reports for the quarter ended March 31 net profit of $3,192 after taxes, depreciation and interest, compared with $778,763, or 54 cents a share, in the first quarter of 1930.

SIDEWALKS of PITTSBURGH

By William Pfarr

The legislative correspondents had their dinner at Harrisburg last week. The Governor was there, with his cabinet and most of the political notables of the Commonwealth.

There were speeches, but they were different—minus the usual bunk that a politician likes to recite—because everything that was said was said in confidence.

William Pfarr

However, we have the permission of Mark Shields, the head of the legislative group, to quote one speaker—Cy Hungerford, the cartoonist, who stole the show.

First it is necessary to understand that Gov. Pinchot, with his flowing mustache and easily caricatured features, is a favorite with cartoonists, who find him easy to draw. So when Mr. Shields called on Mr. Hungerford to say a few words, the cartoonist arose, cast a glance of uncertainty at Gov. Pinchot, and orated:

"Inasmuch as frankness seems to be in order, I would like to say of the Governor that he has a face that only a cartoonist could love."

The one who laughed most heartily was Gov. Pinchot.

Vin Barnett, who takes after his father, Luke, is not only back on the West Coast, but taken out, there, a license to marry a very pretty girl. However, even in marriage (which, incidentally, is scheduled for next week) Vin couldn't forget his role.

To the marriage license bureau Vin not only took his intended bride, but her twin sister. When the clerk asked him to point out which one he had chosen as Mrs. Barnett, Vin replied:

"I can't tell; you pick her."

With the aid of three of our spies and four of our thieves we have obtained a question which is being put to university professors in an intelligence test. Here it is:

"A business man had to make a hurried, last-minute trip to Washington. He received the call at night. He chartered an airplane. Before boarding the ship he went to his office building to get some papers.

"The night watchman greeted him and advised him not to make the trip. Said the watchman:

"'Last night I dreamed I saw a plane falling. When I got to the scene of the crash I saw you among the victims.'

"The business man disregarded the warning, made the trip, returned and fired the night watchman. Why did he fire the man?"

And the answer which the professors are supposed to know is:

Well, the night watchman was sleeping on the job, wasn't he?

PUPILS WALK MILES TO ATTEND

Lack of Funds for Better Buildings Blamed by Folk Living in Ohio Township

(This is one of a series of factual accounts illustrating the condition of public school facilities in the Pittsburgh district. Each will deal with a particular phase of educational work or conditions in a particular municipality.)

Approach of the end of the school year has revealed that the "little red school house," whatever its color, still exists in Allegheny County despite this district's reputation as an educational center.

Three tiny one-room school houses comprise the educational facilities of Ohio Township, a community within 15 miles of Pittsburgh, although the township school board has no bonded school indebtedness, C. E. Dickey, superintendent of county schools, said today. One teacher instructs her 25 children in 48 different courses.

This is one of the few school districts in Allegheny County in urgent need of an improved educational plant, according to Superintendent Dickey.

LACK OF FUNDS

A consolidated school could be built in a central location and would provide modern educational methods, giving the pupils an equal chance with children in the cities and towns. A bus would take them to and from school, according to the plan for consolidated schools outlined by Superintendent Dickey.

But the farmers of Ohio Township cannot afford to pay out more money to give their children a modern centralized school, according to Mrs. J. M. Urling, president of the township school board.

Mrs. Urling said:

"If we had to spend any more money, a lot of the farmers would move. I don't believe there is more than one out of 50 of us who favors a consolidated school at this time."

Superintendent Dickey said:

"There is no legal reason why this district cannot vote a bond issue for the construction and operation of a modern consolidated school. For each of the one-room buildings closed, the township would receive $200 anually from the state in addition to the $50 a month for each teacher."

The only change contemplated, according to residents of the district, is to divide the eight grades of the district into three sections so that each of the three teachers would have to teach only two or three grades. This plan necessitates the purchase of an automobile bus.

PUPILS WALK MILES

Meanwhile, when school resumes in September, the children will face another winter of trudging several miles in going to and from school each day.

And the school is not unlike that which the mothers and fathers of these children attended before them. They are of the same type room, heated by a base burner in the center.

It is at the O'Neil School that Hildred Mae Ford teaches 48 different courses to her 25 pupils.

UNPAID TAX BLAMED BY BOARD

Citizens Committee Orders Mass Meeting May 15 to Save Teachers' Salaries

Protests against proposed cuts in the salaries of McKees Rocks school teachers were made by 250 members of the McKees Rocks Citizens' Committee, headed by H. D. Hewlett, who appeared before the school board last night. It was declared that the cuts would mean a deduction of $10 per month for all persons receiving more than $145 monthly.

C. D. Levy, secretary of the board, said:

"We have about $40,000 in uncollected duplicate taxes. If we had collected all of our money, I think we would have been in a position to reduce taxes with conserving all around. Twenty of our teachers will get $10 raises; we are forced by the Legislature to do that. Seven are leaving. They will be replaced by cheaper teachers."

ACTS QUESTIONED

H. G. Haupt, president of the board, said:

"This is the first time in six years our actions have been questioned. Now, with taxes uncollected, we've got to count our nickels twice before we spend them."

The teachers of McKees Rocks, according to Levy, have always been started with $120 per month, whereas the State requires only $100 per month. High school teachers have been started at $140 instead of at the required $120 per month. This, he said, would offset any cut that might be made at this time.

Controversy arose over the purchase by the board of property adjoining the school property. Haupt asserted that the purchase of the property was essential when it was found that a prospective buyer intended to erect a garage on the premises endangering the school property. Levy declared that the cost of remodeling the school would be almost as much as the cost of the property.

INSURANCE HIGH

Insurance carried on the school buildings was declared to be "exorbitant" by Hewlett, committee chairman. The board, according to Levy, carries $800,000 insurance on the buildings.

Janitors' pay, maintainence costs and the salaries of the treasurer and the secretary of the board were also discussed. Janitors receive $165 and $200 per month, Haupt said. The superintendent of janitors and supplies receives $240 per month, the secretary of the board, $1,200, and the treasurer, $400 per year, he said.

A mass protest meeting will be held by the Citizens Committee at St. Mark's School May 15.

PUMPING UNIT BIDS OPENED

Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang opened bids on three large public improvement projects today. Sealed proposals were opened on the erection of a new electric pumping unit at Brilliant pumping station, at an estimated cost of $140,000, the largest of the three projects. Estimates on a bath house at Carnegie Lake, Highland Park, were expected to range around $30,000. The Twenty-Eighth street bridge, to be rebuilt at an estimated cost of $95,000, was the other project. The pumping station is to replace the present steam units, declared obsolete by city engineers.

Foch Maps New Drive For American Troops As Allies Force Foe

In yesterday's installment Marshal Foch told of the amazing letter he received from Premier Clemenceau on October 21, 1918, in which the "Tiger" complained that the American troops were not being employed effectively on the Western Front and urged Foch to appeal to President Wilson to have Pershing removed as commander of the A. E. F. Marshal Foch told of the reply he sent to Clemenceau and of his plans for further American offensives during the latter part of October, 1918.

By MARSHAL FERDINAND FOCH

Commander-in-Chief of the Allied Armies During the Closing Phases of the World War.

Translated from the French by Col. T. Bentley Mott.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

It was now important to pass from theory to action. For that reason Gen. Pershing was urged to hasten the launching of his offensive west of the Meuse:

"It is of the highest importance," the Allied Commander-in-Chief wrote him on October 27, "that the American 1st Army be ready to begin operations on the date decided upon, viz.: November 1, and that it be able to continue them until important and certain results have been attained."

I therefore prescribed that the attacks to be undertaken by the American 1st Army on November 1 should be pushed forward and continued without any pause until this army was in possession of Boult-aux-Bois, Buzancy and farther to the east, and had assured the occupation of this region as a first result to be obtained.

These attacks were facilitated by successive actions which the French 4th Army had been developing since October 13th east of Vouziers. These, having assured a bridgehead on the right bank of the Aisne between Vanay and Falaise, now enabled it to draw upon itself a considerable part of the German troops in the Argonne, thus relieving the pressure on the American army.

It was under these conditions that the American offensive was carried out on November 1. From the beginning it achieved brilliant success, capturing the first day the enemy positions as far as the Buzancy-Stenay road, while on the left, the French 4th Army extended its foothold east of the Aisne.

Orders were now given to develop without delay the advantages obtained, by continuing the combined Franco-American operations in the direction of Sedan and Mezieres.

Americans Praised

Severely shaken, the enemy, between the Aisne and the Meuse was not long in beginning a retreat. On November 2nd, Croix-aux-Bois, Buzancy, Villers-devant-Dun and Doulcon fell into our hands. On the 3rd, the entire northern part of the Argonne was cleared, the heights of Bel-

ARNOLD SCHOOL BREAKS GROUND

John Dangerfield Haxall, 6, youngest student in Arnold School, East End, turned the first shovelful of earth at the ground-breaking ceremonies for the school's new $100,000 gymnasium, a gift from R. E. Withers, president of the board of trustees.

With Withers' gift announced there remains $100,000 to be raised in the school's campaign for $200,000. In addition to the new gymnasium, a nine-room addition is to be built. The gymnasium is to be equipped with an auditorium and stage for school plays.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., May 5.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Well, we got a dose of our own medicine yesterday in the paper. We're always running off investigating some other country and coming back reporting the shape it's in. Well, some European woman (I think she was French), has been looking us over and reported our condition to the League of Nations. Course, what she says don't listen so good to us, but the old gal is about right at that. Our so-called prosperous times taught us bad habits and this depression has left us using cheap substitutes for expensive bad habits.

Yours, WILL.

DENTISTS OPEN SESSIONS HERE

Committee reports and outlines of the year's program were to make up the opening session of the Pennsylvania State Dental Society's sixty-third annual meeting at the William Penn Hotel today. The meeting is to last three days. Dr. A. C. Young, president of the society, was to preside at the opening.

Papers and addresses were to be given this afternoon. This year's program introduces several innovations, including division of the scientific work into sections to include a greater range of subjects, formation of a motion picture section and introduction of clinical case reports.

Among speakers listed are Dr. E. J. G. Beardsley, of Jefferson Medical College, Dr. J. R. Blayney, of the University of Illinois, Dr. W. H. Wright and Dr. Norman C. Ochsenhirt, of the University of Pittsburgh, Dr. Lawrence Curtis and Dr. Thomas J. Cook, of the University of Pennsylvania, and Dr. William J. Gies, general secretary of the International Association for Dental Research.

No Slot Machines Found In Police Crusade

Police Superintendent Peter P. Walsh's general order to confiscate all gambling devices, with particular emphasis on slot machines, was without results today when it was said that not a single machine or device could be found.

Walsh's order instructed patrolmen to visit every poolroom, club and confectionery store in their search for gambling devices. To show that he "meant business," the superintendent requested the signature of inspectors, captains and lieutenants on the order, something he seldom, if ever, asks, it was said.

It was said that the search was fruitless because most of the downtown clubs, those on the lower North Side, and those in various East End wards have been without slot machines since the beginning of the food probe.

WARNING CARDS GIVEN 274 BY PATROLMEN

12 Other Drivers Arrested For Being Unable to Replace Burned-out Bulbs

Twelve arrests were made and 274 warning cards were issued by Pennsylvania state highway patrolmen in the Pittsburgh district last night as the start of a state-wide drive against defective headlights.

Two of the arrests and 124 cards were from the Parnassus station, the others from the Keown Station Patrol working on the Perrysville Highway between West View and Perrysville.

ALL CARS HALTED

All automobiles on the highway were stopped and lights tested with the headlight screen for focus of high and low beams. Checks were also made on tail lamps, illegal devices, illumination of plates, and "one-eyed" cars.

The excuse of burned-out bulbs was not accepted. Drivers with one light out were arrested unless spare bulbs were carried.

DEMAND QUICK REPAIR

Other drivers were issued warning cards to be returned within 48 hours signed by an approved headlight station and certifying that the defective lights have been corrected. Failure to return the cards within the specified time will result in information being made against the offending owners for their arrest, the officers said.

Several arrest were also made by the patrol last night for reckless driving and driving without proper identification cards.

BUYING CENSUS WORK PUSHED

The city-wide canvass of Pittsburgh families for the R. L. Polk & Co. seventy-sixth city directory continued today, with 160 trained enumerators asking who lives in Pittsburgh and what they buy.

Coupled with the usual census this year is a general questionnaire as to the buying habits of Pittsburgh families. Brands of food, clothing, classes of homes and size of families enter into the canvass.

It is hoped, according to officials of the company, to form a good idea of what makes the Pittsburgh machine work. Enumerators will attempt to call on all families in all sections of the city. Enumerators who speak foreign languages will question families who do not speak English.

Merchants and advertisers throughout the country are said to be watching for the results of the census, which will be taken in every city in the country to see what holds the favor of today's American.

NEW CODE SEEKS TRAFFIC AID

(This is the fifth of a series of articles on proposed changes in the Pennsylvania motor code, now pending before the Legislature. The stories were prepared by the Pittsburgh Motor Club for the Sun-Telegraph.)

Several changes in the state motor code, designed to facilitate traffic and prevent congestion on the more crowded highways, are now before the Legislature.

All have to do with changing the law which now prohibits one car from passing another, headed in the same direction, on the lane to the right of the leading car. The changes would permit a car to pass on the right on any two-lane highway in a business or residence district.

At present the only time a car may pass another bound in the same direction, on its right, is when that car is stopped, preparatory for a left turn.

Violation of this law is punishable by a $10 fine or five days in jail.

OFFER FARMS FOR GARDENS

A farm of more than 100 acres in Mifflin Township a short distance from Homestead has been offered to the unemployed for use in war gardens. J. Clayton McClure, an official of the Monongahela Trust Company of Homestead, is owner of the property.

Mr. McClure announced today that anyone desiring to use a part of the property may apply to him at the bank.

More than 135 acres in Mt. Lebanon Township have been placed at the disposal of persons wishing to make "prosperity gardens." Persons wishing sections for gardens are requested to apply to Frank Cook. The project is sponsored by the Prosperity Garden Association of Mt. Lebanon. County Commissioner Joseph G. AUTO MISHAPS INJURE FIVE

Five persons were injured by automobiles last night and early today.

Charles Isler, 63, of 329 Virginia avenue, and C. H. Riddall, 57, of 1422 North Highland avenue, were hurt when their automobile crashed into a safety zone in Forbes street, in front of the Carnegie Library. They were taken to Montefiore Hospital.

Dorothy Bailey, 20, of 152 Grant avenue, Bellevue, was slightly injured when struck by an automobile being backed into a garage by George Dorsey, of 1429 Sandusky street. Dorsey took the girl to Presbyterian Hospital. She was sent to her home.

Garfield Lunsden, 23, Negro, of 248 Twentieth street, Munhall, was injured when his automobile turned over near Bettis Field last night.

Mrs. Irene Lantzer, 69, of 1124 Rebecca street, North Braddock, was injured when her automobile collided with another in Braddock. She was taken to the Braddock General Hospital.

ASK FIREWORKS ORDINANCE

Fireworks dealers in Pittsburgh through their attorneys have introduced in City Council an ordinance permitting the storage, sale and use of fireworks after June 15, under a license fee of $50.

A letter to Council from the group refers to the fact that the Legislature has passed no legislation to ban fireworks in the state and declares such action in Pittsburgh would result in bootlegging the explosives. Reference is also made to the service rendered by the manufacturers in supplying tracer bullets for aerial fighting during the World War.

The ordinance provides some restrictions as to storage. It limits the size of firecrackers to not more than four inches in length or three-quarters of an inch in diameter. It would prevent the sale of fireworks to children under 12 years.

CITY AND COUNTY TAX ON AUTOS URGED BY M'MAHON

FUNDS WANTED TO AID WORK ON STREETS

Present System Giving State All Revenue Unfair, Chief Assessor Tells Realtors

The Legislature should pass a law authorizing a city and county tax on automobiles to furnish the various municipalities with money for construction and improvement of streets and highways, Thomas A. McMahon, chief city assessor, told members of the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board at their weekly luncheon in the William Penn Hotel today.

Under the present system, which, McMahon said, is unjust, all revenue from motor cars goes directly to the state.

UPHOLD CITY TAXES

The chief assessor criticized influential citizens who, he said, band together to obtain many public improvements which are of no benefit to the public in general.

He also defended city taxation, constantly criticized as too high, saying it has increased much less than that of the county since 1912.

He cited figures to show the bonded indebtedness of the county in 1912 was $18,350,000 rising to $102,488,000 in 1930; and that the county collected real estate taxes totalling $3,441,000 in 1912, compared with $15,300,000 in 1929.

CITES CITY FIGURES

These statistics McMahon compared with the city figures which showed a bonded indebtedness of $29,800,00 for 1912 and $60,237,000 for 1930; and with real estate tax collections of $6,835,000 in 1912 and $22,640,000 in 1930.

He also said city school taxes from real estate in 1912 totaled $4,872,000 and $13,660,000 in 1930; and that the school bonds in 1912 amounted to $8,921,000 against $24,000,000 in 1930.

Appointees at Work While Those Meeting Standard May Get Jobs Next Year

Weeks after the filling of all vacancies, examinations will be held in June by the Civil Service Commission for applicants for summer work with the Bureau of Recreation. The names of those who pass the examinations will go on a list of eligibles from which selections for jobs can be made—next year.

The 20 vacancies this year were filled Saturday by Director Edward G. Lang of the Public Works Department, of which the Recreation Bureau is a part. Director Lang, explaining the appointments, said he had called on the Civil Service for a list of eligibles, but found there was none.

POLITICS DENIED

Announcement of the examinations was made by Secretary Thomas F. Hansberry, of the Civil Service Commission, following a protest of the Civic Club against "political appointments." Had the examinations been held earlier, the 20 appointments could have been made from the list of eligibles.

Secretary Hansberry said there were about 400 applicants for the examinations. He denied there was politics in the 20 appointments and said all were reappointments of persons who had served last year.

FOOLISH TO LET A CORN HURT YOU

What a painful mistake to make! Tormenting corns may come, try as you will to avoid them—but they need not stay. And you can stop their hurting instantly.

How? Merely by cushioning them from the pressure and chafing that cause the pain. Just let a velvet-soft Blue-jay corn plaster circle the tingling spot, and you'll almost feel the grateful relief surging to soothe your nerves.

Blue-jay is the safe, sensible treatment for corns, used by millions for 31 years. Far safer than rapid-fire "cures" or risky paring. It medicates the corn gently—gradually softens and detaches it.

You can rely on Blue-jay because it is a product of Bauer & Black, noted makers of surgical dressings. Keep a box always handy—stop corns at the start! At all drug stores, 25 cents.

FOCH MAPS NEW DRIVE FOR AMERICAN TROOPS

PETAIN PLEADS FOR YANKEE DIVISIONS

al were occupied and our troops ned the left bank of the Meuse as far as Dun.

On the fourth, the Franco-merican advance was continued yond Stenay and Le Chesne, enetrating into the wooded gion south of Beaumont and ogressing along the Meuse al-ost to Stenay.

I warmly congratulated Gen. ershing on the very important sults obtained, "thanks to the ility shown by commanders and e energy and bravery of the oops."

I urged him to continue his erations "in the direction of the euse around Bazeilles and up-ream from there," and to extend em as much as possible on the ght bank of that river.

He had already been asked a w days before, in view of the ithdrawal of the Austrian divi-ons from France in consequence the armistice concluded with ustria, to have the American econd Army execute, with the eans at its disposal, "local oper-ions sufficiently vigorous to connoiter the enemy and de-lop whatever partial success ay be obtained."

But now, what was happening ast of the Meuse?

Mention has already been made the action of the French 17th orps, reinforced by two American ivisions (33rd and 29th), in pro-nging during October 8-10 along he right bank of the Meuse the fensive being conducted on the ft bank by the main body of the merican army, and how, after ard fighting, this force had ached the line Sivry-sur-Meuse-eaumont.

Plan New Attacks

Continuing these operations on he ensuing days, it had met with onstantly increasing resistance rom the enemy, and the means t its disposal were insufficient to vercome the obstacles which its dvance encountered.

Its gains became more and more odest. The enemy seemed firm-y resolved to hold the right bank f the Meuse at all costs—an as-umption which was all the more lausible, since this was his sole hance of covering and assuring he retreat of his beaten armies on his right wing and center.

In order to frustrate this scheme by taking the Meuse defenses in reverse, the Allied high command decided that the time had come to make an attack along both banks of the Moselle in the general direction of Longwy-Luxembourg on one hand, and of the Sarre on the other.

On October 20, the following instructions were given Gen. Petain:

"The operations now under way are intended to throw the enemy back on the Meuse at Stenay and below the place. To overcome his resistance on this river by taking it in reverse, attacks should be prepared west and east of the Moselle, moving in the general direction of Longwy-Luxembourg, on one side, and of the Sarre on the other.

"The chance of prompt success for these attacks will be in proportion to the promptness with which they are made, since the enemy has at present in line 127 divisions west of the Meuse and only 32 divisions east of that river.

"Their chances are also increased by the fact that the enemy will soon be deprived of his principal transversal railway line from Mezieres to Sedan.

"Therefore, it would be well to utilize French troops released by the shortening of our line, to those parts of the Lorraine front, west and east of the Moselle, where our material and the nature of the ground permit immediate action.

"It would also be useful to examine in what way the American forces might best participate in these operations, as soon as they are rendered in part available by the advance being made on the left bank of the Meuse, and they can be oriented in a new direction."

Enemy Lack Equilibrium

This decision to attack in the Moselle region seemed all the more justified in view of the fact that a survey recently made by the Intelligence Branch of French General Headquarters had shown not only the lack of equilibrium existing between the German effectives on the two sides of the Ardennes.

Also the impossibility which would exist for the German Supreme Command to re-establish this equilibrium the moment it lost possession of the railway between Hirson and Mezieres.

On October 21 the Commander-in-Chief of the French Armies sent me his proposals covering the general organization of the projected attacks in Lorraine. Though judiciously conceived, this study nevertheless presented the drawback of interdicting a sufficiently rapid execution.

Especially was the action proposed west of the Moselle such as to require, for various reasons, a delay that was incompatible with the need of quickly seizing the favorable opportunity presented by the weakness of the enemy and his lack of reserves in this region.

East of the Moselle, on the other hand, conditions seemed better, and it was for this reason that I decided to utilize in that quarter first, and without delay, such forces as were immediately available.

I therefore gave up for the moment the action against Luxembourg, and restricted the scope of the original plan, but I still counted upon obtaining, even with relatively reduced resources, important results . . . "from the military standpoint, by capturing at small cost the entire depth of the defensive zone organized during four years, through a wide exploitation of our attacks; and from the moral standpoint, by making our first entry upon territory considered by the enemy as part of his own country and which we therefore ought to conquer."

Offensive Prepared

Gen. Petain was asked to prepare an attack which, starting from the line Nomeny-Arracourt and covered on the side of Metz, would move in the general direction of Saint-Avold-Sarrebruck. On October 25 he reported that this attack could be made around November 15, and he explained from what source he expected to draw the grand units required.

On the 27th he sent Gen. de Castelnau, commanding the eastern group of armies, instructions fixing the objectives of the offensive and designating the resources on which it could count for making it.

The execution was to be entrusted to two armies—the 8th (Gen. Gerard), already in position, and the 10th (Gen. Mangin), which would be removed from the Ainse front, transported eastward and placed between the American 2nd Army and the French 8th Army.

Twenty divisions (of which four or five were Americans), 10 or 12 regiments of field artillery, 180 to 200 heavy batteries, three regiments of light tanks and two groups of medium-sized tanks, one corps of cavalry and the air division, were to constitute the attacking forces.

As explained in Gen. Petain's orders, those operations were to constitute "not an assault delivered without pause against a fortified line, but a maneuver."

In addition, the Commander-in-Chief of the French Armies asked that "a certain number of American divisions" be placed at his disposal. Even under the most favorable circumstances he could not count upon the co-operation of more than six or eight American divisions, over and above the forces to be employed in covering Metz. This was to be entrusted to the American Second Army.

Armies Assigned

On October 30 Gen. de Castelnau issued his orders. He assigned analoguous missions of rupture and exploitation to the 10th and 8th Armies, one to operate north of the Gremecy Forest and the slopes of Delme, the other south of the Bezange Forest. In making this arrangement, Gen. de Castelnau supposed that those two armies would be nearly equal in force.

But the High Command made certain modifications in his plan, induced by the belief that exploitation would probably be much easier for the 10th Army, and that this army, in addition, would be obliged to cover itself on the sensitive flank towards Metz. Therefore, it was deemed wiser to assign to this army the major part of the troops available.

On November 5th Gen. Petain transmitted this observation to the commander of the Eastern Group of Armies and asked him to make the required changes in his original arrangements. This was done the next day.

Meanwhile, the Allied forces were being concentrated in Lorraine, and on November 6th Gen. Mangin and his staff arrived on the scene of preparations.

In spite of the desire expressed by Gen. Petain to have 10 or 12 American divisions assigned to him (four to cover the Tenth Army from the direction of Metz and six or eight for the attack itself), it turned out that such a large American participation could not be hoped for.

Americans Supplied

Moreover, it was added, "There is an obvious interest in beginning the Lorraine offensive as soon as possible, since the size of the force is less important than the moment chosen for action."

However, efforts to provide Gen. Petain with the greatest possible number of American units went on actively. Some were obtained by reducing the length of the American First Army's front as soon as it arrived on the Meuse.

I also wrote Gen. Pershing asking the co-operation of six of his reserve divisions, and I wrote him again a few days later to reassure him:

"The general commanding the French 10th Army, who will have these divisions under his orders, will take measures to see that they operate as much as possible on his left and, on my side, I will give orders to have them promptly replaced under American command. It is a case before everything else, of moving quickly. That is why I again insist with you."

I also asked Gen. J. Haller, commander-in-chief of the Polish Army, to authorize the participation in the approaching offensive of the Polish 1st Division which, after serving on the front in a quiet sector, was now capable of taking an active part in the battle.

MILLER RESIGNS AS MANAGER

Paul J. Miller, familiar figure in Pittsburgh radio, resigned yesterday as manager of KQV. For some time Mr. Miller has been in ill health. His condition was aggravated not long ago when his mother died. Mr. Miller's experience dates back to 1920, when he gave up operation of his own amateur station WMBU to organize KQV. Not long after KDKA broadcast the Harding-Cox election returns on November 2, 1920, KQV came on the air with special daytime programs for the few merchants who then sold radios. Miller's rise from first operator of the station to manager was testimony of his ability.

Mr. Miller

Notable among Mr. Miller's achievements in Pittsburgh radio were special stunt broadcasts from athletic fields and indoor arenas. Although his plans for the future are indefinite due to his health, it is believed that Mr. Miller will enter the local broadcasting field when he recuperates. He was perhaps the youngest active station manager in America at the age of 26.

G. Frank Slocum has been named supervisor of the station, with Jack Buchheit acting manager.

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

Let's travel tonight. Board the WJAS bark at 9:30 and set sail for the open sea with Howard Barlow's Symphony playing the Overture to Wagner's "Flying Dutchman," the thrilling voyage of a phantom ship. Next, go skyward with good old Rimsky-Korsakov's popular "Flight of the Bumble Bee." Then into the Alps with Charpentier's "On Muleback." Now conjure a scene of the Germanic hero Siegfried in search of deeds of valor, for the next Barlow selection is the greatest of all musical journeys, the Rhine Journey from Wagner's "Gotterdammerung." A monster engine thundering along at terrific speed, a dynamic description of power, steam and steel—"Pacific 231"—brings us home in a locomotive. Don't miss this exciting trip. It's free.

Miss Campbell

If you've heard Galli-Curci sing "La Pinera" (The Wren) then you know that Eeln Glen Campbell stops at nothing in bidding her Pittsburgh admirers goodbye. It's a tough number and all yours on WCAE at 11 when the petite Eeln bids this country farewell for a vaudeville tour in Scotland. God-speed, Eeln!

Like Ferde Grof last night? He's a real fellow and somewhat of a humorist. When Paul Whiteman played Syria Mosque a couple of summers ago, Ferde scribbled on the back of our invitation: "You Mosque come over!"

QUESTION A DAY:

I noticed your review on Peter Dixon's book, "Writing Radio." Could you tell me how much writers receive for producing plays and sketches on the radio?—V. W., Ingram.

Answer — Those working steady at NBC and CBS receive $80 to $100 weekly. Special scripts written by free lances are purchased for $50 to $75 apiece.

Tom Waring, of the poetic expression, is said to be receiving $600 for eight KDKA appearances, or $75 a broadcast, or $5 a minute. Ho-hum!

But Arthur Pryor is the boy who sounds "do" with an ff. Each time Sir Arthur raises the baton in Columbia studios, and that's twice a night, it costs a cigar company $3,200. Yes, sir, the price is a mere $2,000,000 for 624 broadcasts.

We have never heard anything so pathetic and soul-stirring on the radio as that Amos 'n' Andy episode last night.

WWSW is conducting tests from its Hotel Schenley studios. . . . Opening date scheduled May 25. . . . Several familiar names may be linked with the station . . . Among them C. A. (Tony) Wakeman, Mal Marshall and Paul Miller

KQV's young blood deserves a round of applause for its initiative in picking up programs from unique points—such as the stunt in the lobby of a downtown theater last night at the premiere of "Dirigible"—a swell picture.

Listeners certainly must have caught the spirit of the thing with a bugle and drum corps blaring outside, high officers being coaxed to the microphone and celebrities nailed here and there for a few words of comment by the agile announcer, Lewis Abel.

Hellmut H. Hellmut, Germany's ace announcer, got his greatest thrill in America atop the Empire State Building and his most pleasurable moment interviewing President Herbert Hoover, he told us yesterday while at KDKA.

European countries are far ahead of Americans in "spot" broadcasts, declared Herr Hellmut. Microphones have been carried into the pits of mines, undersea and overhead for descriptions of disasters, he said. Hellmut was the first radio reporter on the scene in Beauvis, France, when the English dirigible crashed.

The LOUDSPEAKER

—By LOUIS REID—

NEW YORK, May 5.—When the Broadway melody men gave voice to the ditty "Moanin' Low" they did not realize how sooon the tune would be their theme song. Today the wail is continuous in the songshops, for the radio sea is pounding them against the rocks.

Once the melody men regarded the microphone as their greatest friend, a new and easy road to fortune. Today they look upon it as their greatest menace, for they say it has brought sale of sheet music to the vanishing point.

Can't the melody makers be held largely to blame for their present predicament? Isn't constant plugging of new numbers on the air the very reason why people no longer buy sheet music with the same zest they used to? Why buy a song to learn the words when the repetition of the number during a period of, say, 48 hours will make the words familiar to even a casual listener?

Come now the piano teachers crying that the publishers have killed their own goose by dinning their tunes into the public's ears for hours on end. Hark, for example, to Prof. Anthony L. Work, of Morristown, N. J., who, in a note to this listening post, writes:

"By continual plugging of songs the publishers have only gained the ill will of the American public. There are many songs that are not worth the paper they are printed on, and they are forced upon the public because a stale composer under contract hacks it out of the piano.

"Repetition is the curse of music broadcasting. The American public has repetition on every program, orchestras playing the same tunes hour after hour, night after night.

"Do artists give a good song a broadcasting on its merits? The answer is no. They sing and play only those tunes they are getting paid to sing and play. Thus they transform their art into a racket. Fortunately, there are artists who cannot be bought, and they will continue to hold their popularity on the air. The others will lose out eventually because their programs have become monotonous."

This correspondent, to our surprise, refutes the charge that radio has brought an end to the study of the piano.

"As a piano teacher I can say that there are more children taking up the art of playing the piano than ever before. Radio"—the radio titans will be glad to hear—"has created an ambition in them to study music, to understand it. The publishers are climbing up the wrong tree when they state that the demand for sheet music has dropped because people have given up piano playing."

There is no question that overplugging is largely responsible for the present heebie-jeebies of the music men. They have believed that constant airing of a new song over a period of a month or more to an audience of some 50,000,000 would bring a rushing torrent of gold to their counters. They did not reckon upon the effect of the constant airing.

END YOUR STOMACH TROUBLE
Don't Suffer Longer

Stop suffering from Sour Stomach, Gas, Belching, Acid Indigestion, Heartburn, Nausea and other forms of distressing stomach disturbances caused by hyperacidity and fermentation. They often result in headaches, sleeplessness, acidosis, pain after eating that torment your life and make it a sorrow, instead of a joy.

End these trouble with ACIDINE the new prescription that succeeds even in bad, difficult cases—when other known remedies have failed. It is positively amazing the way ACIDINE soothes inflamed stomach and intestinal membranes, neutralizes excess acid in stomach and blood, digests certain starchy foods that cause trouble. ACIDINE is unequaled to put you on your feet after overeating or overdrinking.

Hundreds write about the marvelous things ACIDINE has done for their suffering stomachs. "I was in terrible state for years with acid indigestion," writes Mrs. No-lie Cruse of Kansas City, Mo. "After eating I had such terrible pains it felt my stomach I thought I'd die. I would get nervous and numb and my heart would nearly stop beating. Nothing helped until I tried ACIDINE. Now I can eat, sleep, and enjoy life again."

Five million packages used by stomach sufferers prove how good ACIDINE is. Doctors are prescribing it. Ask your druggist for ACIDINE today. End suffering right now. Maker guarantees you will be satisfied with ACIDINE or returns your money without question or delay.

PHENOMENAL SALE OF 2000 TABLES

Regularly $18 to $34.50 —at an Amazing Price

$8.95

We are alert to grasp opportunities that mean such sensational savings. When we were offered a choice of all these tables at a variety of extremely low prices, we went a step further and offered the maker a flat price for the entire group—over 2000 tables in all. This offer was finally accepted. The tables are now here and we are ready to stage the most remarkable table sale in the city's history.

Look over this listing of the various types of tables offered. Every one is smart and style-right — the very styles you will see in groupings pictured in decorating magazines.

Twenty-Four Beautiful Styles

Lamp Tables End Tables
Octagon Tables
Occasional Tables
Book Tables
Console Tables
Hall Tables

Made by one of the best manufacturers in the country. Every one durably constructed with five-ply veneers of walnut and mahogany with beautiful and lasting Duco finish. There are also tables of solid Stratford oak.

Use them singly or in pairs, which is a smart new note in the use of tables. Many homes will want several types for never, we believe, has such an attractive assortment of really fine tables been offered at such an extraordinary low price!

More Than 200 Tables in the Collection Would Retail Regularly at $34.50.

Think of buying at $8.95 a fine walnut coffee table—a convenient revolving book table—a handsome walnut octagon table with smartly grained pollard oak center and rose wood and mahogany border. There are 166 of these octagon tables in the group at $8.95. It isn't possible to describe all the styles—some of them are illustrated—tomorrow at nine o'clock the store opens for this sale and we urge you to come as early as you can, for values like these will be eagerly bought.

NOTE—To prevent dealers from buying in quantities we limit the number of tables to six to a customer.

Relatives Should Repay What They Owe You

How about Loaning Money to the Folks—

Must we do it . . . must we let 'em share our roll, whether they're deserving or not, just because they're relatives?

Katherine thinks not. And so far she has stood by her guns.

But Dad 'n' Ma and Cousin Lemuel are calling her a stingy piker . . . and so the war is on . . . with Katie's conscience chipping in with the family.

Family Wants Loans

Katie's family isn't the only one that's carrying on a ruckus over this question. Chances are you've stewed 'n' steamed over it yourself, unless you're an orphan—

"My Dear Miss Martin:

"I have a problem which I think will be of interest to a great many other readers as well as myself. It has been troubling me and stirring up arguments in my family for some time now, and the thought finally came to me that I know of no one better than yourself to throw some light on it. So here I am.

"It is the problem of loaning money to your family . . . yes, and to your friends, too.

"I am working at a fairly good salary, and I have managed to lay aside a small bank account.

"I also have an older sister with two children and more or less extravagant tastes. Although her husband is earning on an average of $50 a week, she is continually in debt, so they have no savings.

"Just now, because of sickness and their lack of savings, she will have to borrow money. And that's where I seem to come in. My family has come to me, because of my little savings account, and told me that I should be the one to lend to her.

Doesn't Pay Back

"I don't want you to think I am stingy, and I would gladly let her have it if she would take some responsibility in the matter of paying me back . . . but she won't. I know that, because I have loaned her money in the past and was unable to ever collect it from her. So I know that the matter of paying it back won't worry her at all. I might just as well call it a gift and be done with it, if I let her have it . . . So I've refused. And not being able to get it from me, she has made arrangements to get it elsewhere. But now I am wondering if I did do right. The family thinks I should have let her have it, and now my conscience is bothering me about it. I feel that maybe I am stingy and selfish. So I would like to have your opinion.

KATHERINE.

Should you let her take you for a ride just because she's your sister?

I can't see any reason why you should, lady. And, as a matter of fact, it's liable to do her serious harm if you do . . . because it's up to her to learn to stand on her own feet. And it's quite likely she'd be doing so now if you hadn't stepped in and relieved her of the consequences of her foolishness in the past.

Should Meet Obligation

Of course, if she were really up against it . . . if she'd been doing her best and had met hard luck that wasn't her fault, and had got into a bad pinch . . . it would be different. Then it would be up to you to hold out a helping hand as you would do to any friend . . .

But even in that case it would be up to her to pay her debt to you . . . just as it will be up to her to pay her debt to the person she is borrowing from now.

People should pay their honest obligations to relatives as they should to strangers . . . and if they take advantage of relationship to crawl out of those obligations, they should be treated like any other dead beats.

That's my slant on this argument. But maybe it isn't yours.

Do you think Katherine should have rushed to sister's assistance, in spite of the fact that she failed to pay back what she borrowed before . . . or do you think she did right to refuse?

Think it over—then let us know your side.

Character, Not Clothes, Denotes Real Class Among Men, Says Fay King

By FAY KING

Character, not clothes, denotes real class.

Yet nine women out of 10 are inclined to have entire confidence in well-dressed men and be suspicious of those whose suits are shabby!

That is why clever crooks who swindle women are always well-dressed and well-mannered.

With all their pride in their intuition women seldom see the worth in a humble young man until he has made good in the world. And they are willing to believe the best of a fashionable one no matter how little they know about him.

Girls will accept an auto lift from strangers in classy cars, but run in fear from a shabby looking man walking their way minding his own business.

Pay attention to character—not clothes.

Hectic Days for Madge as Christmas Celebration Nears

"But Mr. Ticer," I said as our neighbor made his generous offer to finish up the basement for the Christmas surprise after his own Christmas Eve celebration was over "we can't let you do that work so late as that. Why you'll be up——"

"Pretty near all night," he finished with a broad grin. "Sho that hain't nothin'. I've danced many a Christmas Eve till morning and thought nothin' about it."

"But this is work not dancing," Dickey protested.

"It's a lot of fun and excitement that we couldn't have any other way," Mr. Ticer answered. "We wouldn't miss it for a farm."

I nudged Dicky and he made no further protest. But we both warmly thanked our simple, big hearted neighbor and with a final direction or two concerning some minor details came upstairs with the assurance that our surprise for the boys would be completed in every detail when Christmas morning arrived.

I do not think I had an opportunity to exchange a dozen sentences with Dicky in the next six days. The young people at The Larches where Helena Brixton was planning an old-fashioned Christmas like our own were constantly running in and out at the farmhouse, bringing Marion home or coming after her — sometimes Ronald came alone but usually the whole crowd trooped along. And whenever they left Mother Graham with a groan would call Katie to put down rugs rolled up for dancing, to fluff up crushed sofa cushions and put back chairs, books and phonograph records scattered as if a baby tornado had invaded the living-room.

Helena, Lillian and I, tried putting them to work. We enlisted Mary and Noel as leaders and they engineered a candy-making evening in the big kitchen of The Larches, with Helena, Lillian and Harry as reserve forces. Upon the same evening, Katherine, Dicky and I had a similar work and frolic with the four boys. When we compared results the next day, Lillian and Helena shook their heads ruefully over the infinitely better showing made by the children at the farm.

"I would infinitely prefer keeping tab on a company of trained fleas," Lillian said. "They might stay put for five seconds at a time. I could not count how many times I hauled those girls and boys back from the living room to look at the candy. They'd disappear for a dance right when the sugar was ready to thread. Of course they ate most of what they spoiled, so unless they have to have a physician today there is not much loss. I'm glad your boys came to bat so nobly. The Christmas candy is safe, thanks to them."

It was an infinitely merry, homey time, however, and though we oldsters grumbled a bit, I do not think one of us would have missed a minute of the gay swirl in which we lived during the days just preceding Christmas. From Mother Graham, whose pride it was to send to Mrs. Brixton mince, pies and a plum pudding for her Christmas table, to Katie, who never lost her cheery grin, no matter how much she was called from her kitchen work, we reveled in getting ready for the great day.

And then at last it was the day before Christmas, and Lillian, Katherine and I went to the library after our early breakfast—we had risen before the rest—and planned our last day.

"There isn't a thing left but the decorations, that I can see," Katherine declared.

"And the Yule logs," Lillian amended. "They're going to have one at The Larches, too, Helena tells me."

"But they already have been located," I said, "and the boys brought home the Christmas trees yesterday, so they won't take long."

"Who's going to decorate here?" Lillian asked and Katherine winked at me.

"Why, you, of course, as the head decorator," she said, but Lillian had caught the wink and refused to be drawn.

"I know I'm a mess leaving you in the lurch," she said, "but I can't ask Marion to leave all the other young people over there——"

"Especially when the alternative would be Ronald's leaving his mother's Christmas flat," Katherine put in slyly, and seeing Lillian flush, I struck in for fear she might be hurt.

"Don't be an anointed idiot just because you know how," I quoted. "Of course, Marion must be over there for part of the Christmas celebration at least and that means, equally, of course, you and Harry must be there, too. But why can't you do this, come over here about 11 o'clock and watch Christmas in."

"Rather dance it in," Lillian said ruefully. "But I'm sure that's the solution. Indeed, I don't think you could keep 'em away."

"I'd know something was wrong with the farm house hospitality if they stay away," I told her. "That is all arranged then. But don't come until I telephone that the small youngsters are sound asleep. After they're once off, in that back room of theirs, the rest of the party can set off bombs in the living room and not waken Junior or Roderick."

"And probably will set them off," Lillian said resignedly. "It's the only thing they haven't done so far at Helena's. I suppose you're going to have Bill and Hank do the decorating over here. That's good, sound psychology; but I don't envy your artistic sensibilities."

"This is a children's Christmas," I said emphatically, "if the artistic nerves of our other guests suffer, I can't help it. But Mary and Noel have consented to give the boys an unobtrusive hand, and Dicky and I will be in the offing."

"All you need to make it complete is old Phil handing out some of his artistic ideas," Lillian said, with a side look at me.

Household Hints

To pick up broken glass easily, even the smallest pieces, pat gently with wet absorbent cotton, or a damp woolen cloth, which can afterward be burned.

The economical buy in bed linen is half-bleached linen. It is very much stronger than the bleached linen and will become absolutely white in a very few washings.

One of the most effective methods for cleaning mirrors is the use of a little spirits of camphor or alcohol. Rubbed on after the dust has been wiped off, the solution will brighten the mirror remarkably.

-:- The Beauty Box -:-

By HELEN FOLLETT

Lugubrious howlers tell us that the human race is going bald. Medical men claim that the human eye is retrograding, there being more imperfections now than in the past and more individuals in need of glasses. Enthusiastic walkers, deploring the general use of motors, say that bimeby we'll lose the use of our legs. We should weep about that sort of planting. Women are prettier than they ever were, they wear sensible clothes, complexions are better! We live longer, hang onto our teeth longer, laugh more, read more, have heaps more fun. Boy! Remove the mourners! We can't have them clouding up our beauty pageant.

Ugly red blotches on the skin, showing definite signs of inflamation, are not to be neglected. There are various skin diseases that show their presence in this manner. Beauty shops, not being manned by medical graduates, are not qualified to treat such conditions. They don't. They send the unhappy customer to a doctor who specializes in skin diseases.

Old age is entitled to wrinkles which are not always disfiguring, but young and middle aged women should be ashamed to let their portraits go to the wrinkle bow-wows. It is a question of prevention. At night, after bathing the face, apply a heavy cream, one that gives resistance to the finger tips. Pat the skin surface briskly with the finger ends, using them like hammers. Slap with the flattened palms. Begin the day, every day, with a cold water facial tubbing.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

'Head Noises' Sound Alarm of Other Ills

In prehistoric days head noises were believed to be the work of evil spirits. These "spirits," unless driven out of the head, would cause untold misery, it was believed.

Dr. Copeland

It was because of this fear that the practice of boring holes in the skull became popular. The "bone cutters," as they were called, traveled from country to country selling their skill. They left greater misery than they had found.

Head noises are a frequent complaint. This condition is not a disease. It is merely a symptom or sign of some disturbance in the body.

Often the disturbance is confined to the ear. Head noises are frequently associated with some impairment of the hearing apparatus. As a rule, "ringing in the ears" is the early symptom of ear disease.

When carefully examined by a physician, a foreign body may be found in the ear. In many cases, excessive amounts of wax pressing on the drumhead may produce this condition. In other cases, chronic disturbance in the circulation, or mild inflammation in the ear, will produce these unpleasant noises.

General ill health without any ear disease may bring about a similar effect. Such conditions as anemia, particularly pernicious anemia, diseases of the heart, high or low blood pressure, often cause head noises.

If you are a sufferer from head noises, take heed of the warning and consult your physician. He will decide what is wrong and apply the proper treatment.

Do not resort to patent medicine or to any one of the numerous ill-advised suggestions you will get. Neglect of a physical warning often leads to some serious disorder which might have been avoided.

Answers to Health Queries

G. A. L. Q.—What treatment do you advise for asthma sufferers? Would the close proximity of a dog have any effect upon such a patient one way or another?

A.—For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question. Yes. The hair of domestic animals as well as dust often affects an asthmatic patient.

P. J. Q.—What causes excess saliva?

A.—This may be due to hyperacidity. Rinsing the mouth after every meal with some alkaline solution will give increased comfort.

CORRECT MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

A Gracious Suggestion

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband runs a garage and he does a lot of work for a firm in this city. He has quite a business with them and is quite friendly with the manager. The manager has been to visit us a few times, and now my husband thinks that I should go and call on his wife. They have only lived here a short time and from what her husband says she doesn't know very many people. I am rather shy and would be at a loss to know what to say if I did call on her. Would it be better to have my husband invite them here for an evening? V. M.

Your husband has a very gracious idea in wishing you to make a social and human gesture to this woman who has lately come to live in your community. By all means follow this suggestion, for I am sure that it will make this neighbor very happy.

It is not correct for you to have your husband extend this invitation. You are the hostess of your home, and such an invitation should come from the hostess.

The very nicest thing for you to do is to write a note of invitation to this woman, inviting her and her husband to come to dine with you and your husband at some stated time. If it is not convenient to have them come to dine with you, invite them for an after-dinner game of bridge, or for some other simply-planned entertainment. Perhaps Sunday afternoon tea, or Sunday evening supper.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our club is going to give a party and each girl is to ask a boy. When the boy brings the girl home, should she thank him and tell him she had a good time, or should the boy tell the girl this, since she asked him to the party? SOME GIRLS.

The well-bred boy will be the first one to express his thanks, his thanks for the invitation and for the happy time that he has had. This is most important. Then the girl will tell her guest how delighted she is that he could come to the party, and that she is glad that he had a good time. She would add, too, that he was a delightful guest, and that he had made the evening a happy one for her.

For TEETHING troubles

FUSSY, fretful . . . . of course babies are uncomfortable at teething time! And mothers are worried because of the little upsets which come so suddenly then. But there's one sure way to comfort a restless, teething child. Castoria — made especially for babies and children! It's perfectly harmless, as the formula on the wrapper tells you. It's mild in taste and action. Yet it rights little upsets with a never-failing effectiveness.

That's the beauty of this special children's remedy! It may be given to tiny infants—as often as there is need. In cases of colic and similar disturbances, it is invaluable. But it has every-day uses all mothers should understand. A coated tongue calls for a few drops to ward off constipation; so does any suggestion of bad breath. Whenever older children don't eat well, don't rest well, or have any little upset, a more liberal dose of this pure vegetable preparation is usually all that's needed. Genuine Castoria has Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper. Doctors prescribe it.

INTRODUCING

RICHER—CREAMIER SEALED IVANHOE Mayonnaise

ORDER an 8 oz. jar (20c size) and your grocer gives you a 3¼ oz. (10c size). Use the small jar and if you don't agree that this Ivanhoe is the richest, creamiest mayonnaise you ever tasted, return the 8 oz. jar and get your money back—without question!

Made from a Real Home Recipe

First made years ago by a mother for her family's delight. Made in the good old fashioned way—no "skimping." Plenty of good fresh eggs went into this home made mayonnaise—plenty of hard beating made it rich, creamy, smooth.

Now a Nation's Mayonnaise

Finally so many folks asked for the recipe of this mayonnaise, that it was given a brand name—"Ivanhoe"—bottled in shining quarts and pints, half pints and 3¼ oz. jars, and offered for sale. The same home recipe is used. The same fussy care is taken in the making—that's why the nation's housewives have grown so enthusiastic over this flavorful, wholesome Ivanhoe Mayonnaise.

Now It's Your Turn

Be sure to take advantage of this liberal get-acquainted offer now. Ask your grocer for an 8 oz. 20c jar of Ivanhoe and he will give you a 3¼ oz. jar. Try the small one first and if you're not completely satisfied that Ivanhoe is the mayonnaise you've been looking for—bring back the 8 oz. jar and get your money back!

Offer Good for Short Time Only

Get your jar now. The supply is limited as well as the time. At your grocers.

This is the Special Introductory Package

Extra Safe—because it's SEALED

No one can taste it or touch it before you. All its golden flavor and purity are sealed in.

To Avoid Grease Scum on Glassware

BY MARY LEE WORK

An easier way to do dishes and 2 other hard jobs. Try it yourself and see

Most women are troubled with a cloudy, greasy film on dishes and glassware no matter how carefully they wash them.

You can avoid this entirely with a preparation called Climalene—used according to the directions below.

It's the same preparation that smart shops use to make the china and glassware you see on display shine and sparkle so marvelously... And in addition, it cuts dishwashing time in half and keeps one's hands lovely.

It makes two other hard jobs easier too—family washing and cleaning silver. You can get a package for 10 cents (12-oz. package) at any grocery store.

Women who use it save themselves hours of needless work. You too, can find time to enjoy life—shop, go to the movies, do many of the things you now think only a woman with servants can do.

To Make Dishes Sparkle Like Jewels

Add one teaspoonful of Climalene to a dishpan of water, use only ¼ the amount of soap you now use. It instantly cuts the grease from dishes and cooking utensils, makes glassware sparkle and china gleam. The Climalene-softened water, plus certain bland cleansing agents, cuts your dishwashing time ½ or more—saves ½ or more the soap you now use.

To Avoid Faded Gray Washings

Use 2 tablespoons of Climalene, and ¼ the usual amount of soap. Clothes emerge soft, spotless, utterly without fading. For soap fade and soap eat are ended this way. In recent tests men's blue shirts were washed 75 times without noticeable fade; sheerest French hosiery 100 times or more—to prove the blandness of this way.

To Clean Silver Without Rubbing

Add one teaspoonful of Climalene to 2 quarts of water in an aluminum pan. Immerse the silver—bring it to a boil. Then rinse silver, and wipe dry. That is all. All signs of tarnish disappear. Even the most intricate and highly embossed silver patterns are perfectly cleaned.

Why It Cleans

Climalene instantly takes all the harshness out of Lake water, medium hard water, and hard water, Makes it soft and gentle as rain water. So soft it does the work with ¼ the soap you now use. At the same time, due to certain bland cleansing agents, it instantly DISSOLVES all grease, dirt and grime, and thus cuts your working time ½ or more, in washing, cleaning and in the dishpan.

PULITZER PRIZE AWARDS MADE

NEW YORK, May 5.—(AP.)—The Pulitzer prizes in journalism and letters were awarded yesterday.

"Years of Grace," by Margaret Ayer Barnes, was chosen by the jury of awards as the novel published in 1930 which "best presents the whole atmosphere of American life." The prize-winning play was "Alison's House," written by Susan Glaspell and produced by Eva Le Gallienne at the Civic Repertory Theater.

Other prizes in the field of letters were awarded to the following:

In history, to "The Coming of the War, 1914," by Bernadotte E. Schmitt; in biography, to "Charles W. Eliot," by Henry James, and in verse, to "Collected Poems of Robert Frost."

The Atlanta Constitution was chosen as the newspaper which rendered "the most disinterested and meritorious public service" in 1930. The award was based on the fact that the Constitution conducted a successful exposure of municipal graft, with consequent convictions.

HIKES PLANNED FOR CHILDREN

Three outings will be held for children Saturday under auspices of the Audubon Society of Western Pennsylvania, in Schenley Park, Frick Woods and McKinley Park.

Miss Helen Blair will lead the children in the Schenley Park hike, the party meeting at the Carnegie Library entrance at 9 o'clock to walk through Panther Hollow and return. She will also conduct the hike in Frick Woods, the party meeting at Sterrett School, Reynolds street and Lang avenue, at 1:30.

Miss Ruthe Sellers, Miss Emma Evans, and Miss Alva Held will conduct the hike in McKinley Park, the party meeting at the shelter house at 8:30 a. m.

On Sunday Miss Held will conduct a party to Toms Run. The hikers will take their lunch and walk about five miles. The party will meet at Duquesne way. A week-end hike is planned for Saturday and Sunday, May 16 and 17. The trip will be to Latrobe, along Chestnut Ridge.

DINNER TRIBUTE TO ATKINSON

Dr. D. A. Atkinson, burgess of West View, will be honored at a testimonial dinner Thursday night, in observance of the tenth anniversary of his taking office. The banquet will be held in the auditorium of St. Luke's Lutheran Church.

Speakers will be Judge William H. McNaugher, District Attorney Andrew T. Park and A. V. Snell, executive director of the Allied Boards of Trade. William M. Dickson, president of borough council, will be toastmaster and C. A. McClain, borough secretary, will be chairman. The Rev. L. P. Spoehr of St. Luke's Church will pronounce the invocation.

McClain is chairman of the general committee, assisted by Walter H. Skiles, Harry J. Wagner, Jr., Dr A. E. Torrens and Howard H. Wilt.

Homestead Returns Street Paving Bids

All bids submitted to Homestead Council for the paving of Twelfth avenue extension, were returned last night at the monthly meeting of Council. The bids were returned after Council had decided to make several changes in the work to be done.

'The Play's the Thing' Was Smooth as a Peach In Sharp's Alvin

By GEORGE SEIBEL.

If there is any one who can use a large supply of charity and a liberal lot of allowances, they are at his disposal. Going to the Alvin Theater last night, to see George Sharp's Players present Ferenc Molnar's comedy, "The Play's the Thing," I took these commodities along. Knowing the company had been playing "Strange Interlude" for a whole week, a play that is two plays in one, knowing they had even done two matinees of that dramatic boa constrictor, knowing the Molnar play is no airy trifle itself, I was prepared to use that charity and those allowances in passing judgment upon the first performance.

George Seibel

But they were not needed.

The performance at the Alvin went as smoothly as any first night ever does. There was barely a hesitation at long intervals—or a bit of fluffing that might have passed for naturalness—and the delicate touch required to keep this comedy "respectable," to keep the players from brushing the down off the "peach," was shown in every scene. Perhaps the rehearsal in the last act was burlesqued a bit too strongly, but aside from that the performance was finished and suave as these delectable importations from Vienna and Budapest must be.

Three people distinguished themselves—Horace Sinclair, Paul McGrath and Gladys George.

OLD WINE, NEW BOTTLE

The idea of the comedy is one that has been used by various dramatists in various ways, but Molnar, assisted by P. G. Wodehouse, gives it a novel twist. There is the love scene overheard by the girl's new lover, which is explained as the rehearsal of a scene from a play. Molnar has made this love scene so compromising, has loaded it with so many things difficult if not impossible to explain, that the dramatist in the play, Sandor Turai, faces an appalling task.

That he solves it to the satisfaction of the jealous young lover, as well as that of the audience, is a high tribute to the ingenuity of Sandor Turai, in which role Molnar has modestly presented us with a portrait of himself.

This is the role played by Holbrook Blinn when he appeared in Pittsburgh in this piece. Blinn was an actor of finished and ripe art—to court comparison with him is foolhardy—but McGrath need not be ashamed of his achievement. It would have been heroic only to know his lines, but he knew his part. He put across the irony, playful with Ilona and bitter with Almady, as well as the elaborate comedy with Dworsitschek, with the precision of expert routine.

SINCLAIR CAN ACT

Horace Sinclair, who is the stage director, played the part of the ultra-polite Dworsitschek in superlative manner, showing that he can act as well as he directs. The scenes between him and Turai were done in delicious fashion.

As for Miss George, she too could hardly be improved upon. Perhaps a little more worry might be shown after she knows that her fate hangs in a most delicate balance. But she looks like the giddy actress who has just discovered her soul, and occasionally forgets it is there, and she puts in some touches of feminine comedy that sweeten her somewhat unpleasant role.

The still more unpleasant role allotted to Robert Fiske is played with his usual conscientious effort, but might be more debonair in the rehearsal scene. Mansky played by Fred Sullivan, is merely a foil for Turai, and has few real opportunities, which Sullivan availed himself of. Hugh Banks as the young lover and Billy Link as the secretary were satisfactory. But the real laurels of the evening were reaped by McGrath, Sinclair and Miss George.

No, you will not need to take your charity to the Alvin Theater to see "The Play's the Thing," and you'll not need to make any allowances.

Plays, Players and By-Play

Shredded wheat skirts will be the mode on the Alvin stage next week, when the George Sharp Players will offer "Bird of Paradise," with Hawaiian music and everything. "Aloha Oe," theme song of the piece, was composed by Queen Lilioukalani of the Hawaii that was before the pineapple canners, tourist trappers and Uncle Sam took it over.

CINCINNATI, May 5.—(AP.)—Wesley Howell rescued his wife and two children from a burning houseboat, then cut a tow line and let the craft drift from large pleasure boats. He refastened the tow to another cable and called the fire department. The fire was caused by an explosion of fumes.

GEORGE ARLISS FILM REMAINS IN WARNER

"The Millionaire," starring George Arliss, is being seen in the Warner for another week. It is based on Earl Derr Biggers' story and has won high praise from critics and public. The cast includes David Manners, Evalyn Knapp, Florence Arliss, Noah Beery and Tully Marshall. The second of the series of Bobby Jones' golf films also is on the bill.

"The Millionaire" and the golf film also are being presented in the Enright.

'Dirigible' Lands in Pitt With Grand Ballyhoo Marking Premiere

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

"Dirigible," movie melodrama of South Pole ice and heroic United States Navy airmen, swept into the Pitt last night with enough ballyhoo to send off an honest-to-goodness Antarctic expedition. There were parades, bands, crowds and microphones. Everyone was talking at once. It was, in the Hollywood vernacular, a gala event.

The picture marks another entertainment achievement for the Columbia studios. Not as powerful as "Submarine," not as impressive as "Flight," it none-the-less is a spectacle of warm, alive drama in a cold place. A dirigible cracking up in a storm, an airplane crashing on the ice cakes and another dirigible off to the rescue are things that put real drama into newspaper headlines and real suspense on the movie screen.

Jack Holt and Ralph Graves again are teamed up as the featured heroes, with the one woman angle entering into it all, just as was the case in "Flight" and "Submarine." This time Fay Wray portrays the lady, portrays her very well, too. As for Holt and Graves it is compliment enough to say they are as capable as ever.

A PUBLICITY HOUND

The story really takes the form of a couple contests: Dirigible versus airplane; love for publicity versus love for wife. Holt champions the dirigible and Graves is the man behind the airplane. Both, however, get a crack at the South Pole—Holt thinking of it in terms of aeronautic achievement and Graves in terms of front page headlines.

Graves likes to be hero-worshiped and so, while he's out hunting the headlines, his little wife gets lonesome and, for a time, it looks like she is going to get a Paris divorce and Mr. Holt is going to get her. This all happens while the young husband is lost at the Pole and by the time Mr. Holt talks the admiral into letting him take the Los Angeles to the rescue, the divorce idea is forgotten.

A couple of men are left behind—Hobart Bosworth as a veteran explorer being one, with his face staring ghastly from an icy grave—but Messrs. Graves and Holt return. Holt lands in one of those big New York parades of welcome and Graves lands in his wife's arms.

FAMILIAR MOMENTS

The picture has some keen photography, satisfactory direction and some glorious moments of flying. It starts off with the excitement of Navy Day at Lakehurst and its punch climax comes about in the middle when dirigible No. 1 cracks up. Then on are baby climaxes and anti-clamixes.

The story, though, isn't so very original. A dirigible was cracked up in the film, "Zeppelin," you recall, and then, also, the little woman at home was left hysterical with emotion before the radio. And the scenes of struggling, stranded men on the ice wastes, while well-conceived, aren't so far away from the old melodramas of the Yukon country, though, of course, in these modern days it is said with sound.

However, "Dirigible" is an hour and 40 minutes of spectacular entertainment. And though it isn't great, it proves that at manufacturing pictures and ice Hollywood knows its stuff.

Pageant to Depict Temperance Work

A pageant "Liberty Bell," depicting the course of the temperance movement in America, will be presented tonight in the North Side Community House, Union avenue, North Side, under auspices of the National Reform Association. A series of presentations is to be made here during the next week. On Monday night the pageant will be presented in the Sixth United Presbyterian Church, East End. There are 80 persons in the cast, directed by Wycliffe McCracken.

BEN LYON FILM FOR DAVIS TODAY

"Misbehaving Ladies," featuring Ben Lyon, Lila Lee and Louise Fazenda, opens today in the Davis for three days, replacing "Kiss Me Again."

"Misbehaving Ladies" is from a story by Juliet Wilbor Tompkins. The scenes are laid in a small town and the story concerns a young girl who marries a prince who has a castle thousands of miles away from the little village. "Misbehaving Ladies" was directed by William Beaudine and it marks Miss Lee's twenty-second talking picture role in the past year.

Nobody Loves a Skinny Woman

Gain pounds of weight in few weeks with new IRONIZED YEAST—a special combination of dried brewer's yeast plus iron—or pay nothing

Thousands are amazed at quick benefits of new Ironized Yeast. They gained pounds of good firm flesh in few weeks. Tired, weak, nervous people became peppy and strong. Blemished complexions changed to clear rosy smoothness. Constipation, indigestion disappeared. Why does Ironized Yeast work so smooth?

Ironized Yeast is two tonics in one—special weight-building dried brewer's Yeast and blood-enriching, strengthening Iron. The yeast is the same used in making malt and which makes malt so beneficial. It is specially cultured and concentrated to give the utmost in flesh-producing value. Double-tested for strength, purity and potency. Used by doctors and big hospitals.

To this concentrated dried brewer's Yeast is added three kinds of easily assimilated Iron to quickly make rich, red blood and tone up nerves and muscles. By this special-process Ironized Yeast is made more effective than yeast or iron taken separately. Has no starches, flours or gas-forming fillers.

If you are underweight, nervous, tired—if you suffer with constipation, indigestion, and your complexion is muddy or blemished, start Ironized Yeast today. Pleasant little tablets—no nasty taste, never upset stomach or cause gas or bloating. Never spoil, safe for all.

Go to any drug store today, get a full size treatment of Ironized Yeast, and take the little tablets as directed. If not delighted with quick results, your money promptly refunded by manufacturer.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years, and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing vegetable laxative, safe and pleasant.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated olive colored tablets. They help cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you should find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets.

Thousands take them every night to keep right. Try them, 15c, 30c, 60c.

'GHOSTS' WELL ACTED AS FINAL DRAMA OF 'Y' SEASON

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

The "Y" Playhouse of the Y. M. & W. H. A. last night began its season's finale, a presentation of Henrik Ibsen's "Ghosts," one of the least depressing of the dour Norwegian's realistic dramas. It was quite well acted, a fact which should make us grateful that there is in our midst such an institution as the "Y" Playhouse.

Although there is nothing that could be called an Ibsen cult locally, the hardy old Norseman, who rescued drama from the clutches of Romance and re-established it on the solid basis of the realities of life, certainly is worthy of our occasional attention, and the courageous "Y" is deserving of commendation for giving us an opportunity of viewing a play that was one of the group that led to the modernization of the stage.

FAMILY SKELETON POPS OUT

"Ghosts," as those who know their Ibsen are aware, is a play about heredity and the sins of the fathers, etc., a kind of a view of the family skeleton that won't stay hidden in the closet, but forces itself into view, a ghost of the past that pops into the scene at the moment best suited to the wrecking of a house of cards erected by a woman—one of the most noted of Ibsen's women, Mrs. Alving.

This role was exceptionally well played by Alma Lind. She seemed the actual personification of the woman who, to repay what she called the "purchase price" of having become the wife of a philandering husband, erected an orphanage in his memory so that she could not personally benefit from his estate, and sees her plan come to a tragic end with the burning of the institution on the eve of its dedication.

SON IS FATHER'S HEIR

Coupled with this is the tragic revelation that her son, whom she has given a shielded life, and is unaware of his father's real character, nevertheless is affected by it.

Others help much in creating the illusion that the audience is eavesdropping on family secrets. Besides the excellent characterization of Mrs. Alving, there are well-drawn portraits of the perfect fervid dominie by Alfred E. Smith, as Parson Manders; the hypocritical carpenter, Jacob Engstrand, by Milton Brauman; the neurotic son, Oswald Alving, by Phillip Greenwood, and the worldly maid, Regina Engstrand, by Helen Sisenwain.

The single living room set, with a background view of a Norwegian fjord, is most excellent.

The play, to be repeated tonight, is an impressive leave-taking gesture of Helen R. Stout, the director, and her husband, Frank Stout, who created the setting.

Pola in Hollywood Again, Tells of Love

LOS ANGELES, May 5.—(AP.)—Pola Negri, the temperamental, black-eyed film actress, is back to Hollywood today with the announcement that she is engaged and will be married within two years. She said:

"He is an American, not in pictures, and very prominent. We are deeply in love, and I am ready for the new adventure."

To Be Youthful, *Control Your Weight—*SAFELY

Too often rigorous dieting, in an effort to reduce, makes faces haggard and muscles ugly and bulging. Strenuous exercises may be detrimental to your general health and rarely are effective unless continued religiously over a long period. Neither should be adopted without doctor's orders.

Bathe regularly with Fayro Bath Salts and unneeded weight which has been stored beneath your skin and has robbed you of your normal, healthy, youthful figure, will disappear easily and quickly. Results are immediate and the method is pleasing and healthful. The pure mineral salts in Fayro will impart a new color and texture to your skin. Your body will take on a new vigor.

There is nothing to take internally. Nothing that can harm you in any way. Just relax in the privacy of your bath and allow Fayro to do its work easily and pleasantly.

Mrs. B., of Washington, D. C., is only one of the thousands of persons, including many physicians, who have voluntarily written* to tell us of the benefits of Fayro. She wrote, "I found the directions and used Fayro last night and lost seven pounds, and you can believe I am pleased. I am 63, weigh 214, and will continue to use Fayro."

You risk nothing by trying Fayro. It is sold on an unconditional guarantee that if you are dissatisfied for any reason your money will be instantly refunded. More than a million and a half treatments have been sold on this guarantee.

One dollar at drug and toilet counters everywhere.

*No testimonial for Fayro has ever been solicited or paid for in any way.

ROOKIE REJECTED BY PIRATES FAILS

THE ACTION OF Manager Bill McKechnie in removing Charley Wilson from third base in the lineup of the Boston Braves, and using Bill Dressen and Buster Chatham alternately at the position, bore out the opinion expressed by many baseball men, even while the Hubites were on a sensational winning streak, that the Wilkinsburg pilot would eventually have trouble with that part of his infield. It also vindicated the judgment of the Pirate officials in declining to make a deal for the player whom McKechnie has just benched and who, according to Boston reports, is soon to be sent back to Rochester.

Bill McKechnie

Though it never became generally known, it is a fact that the St. Louis National League club, which controls the Rochester plant, tried to sell Wilson to the Pittsburgh club last winter. The Pirate officials, however, acting on earlier reports from a local scout, refused to make the purchase, expressing the belief that the Rochester infielder would not be able to hit big league pitching.

FAILING TO FIND a market here for their wares, the owners of the Rochester outfit turned to Boston and succeeded in selling not only Wilson, but Outfielder Bob Worthington, as well. The latter has been showing up well for the Braves, and of late has been outhitting Wally Berger, but Wilson's work soon indicated that the Pittsburgh club had had the right dope on him.

In 14 games, the thirdbase recruit made but 11 hits in 58 times at bat, an average of only .190. Though Freddie Maguire at second base also is hitting under .200, McKechnie was willing to keep the latter in the lineup on account of his fielding ability, but he couldn't see his way clear to carry two such light hitters in his infield, so Wilson, who is said to have cost $30,000, is booked for a trip back to the minors.

OLD CLARENCE MITCHELL, at 40, continues to be one of the spring standouts. His six-hit 6-to-3 victory yesterday was his second successive victo y over the Robins and his fourth straight win of the year. He has started four times and gone the distance on every occasion.

Mitchell's four decisions this spring give him a record of 14 games won in succession, counting the 10 he captured in a row for the Giants at the tail end of last season. In his four complete games this year he has allowed a total of only 13 runs.

AS FAR AS the four surviving spitball pitchers in the major leagues are concerned, spring success has been by no means equally divided. Thus far it has been all on the side of two of them, with the other pair getting nothing but failure. Mitchell and Burleigh Grimes together have won seven games up to date without suffering a defeat, going the full route to victory in every start. In contrast, Jack Quinn and Urban Faber, the two other remaining moist-ball experts, have yet to win a game or pitch a complete one. Each started one contest, was lifted and charged with a defeat, and the two have since appeared only in relief roles.

Johnny Vergez

ONE FACTOR THAT helped the Giants to win five of their last six games and place themselves right at the heels of the leading Cardinals was the new third baseman, Johnny Vergez. There's a player who stands out among the most brilliant recruits of the season.

It had been expected that Vergez might make good for John McGraw in a fielding way, but in view of his .315 batting average in the Coast League last year nobody had looked for him to shine as a hitter. But that's where Vergez has been one of the surprises of the season.

INSTEAD OF PROVING a weakling with the stick, the Giants' new third sacker has been holding his own with the star clouters of the big circuits. In 64 times at bat up to date he has made 25 hits for the husky average of .391, and ranks third in the batting standing of the National League.

Evidently McGraw knew what he was doing when he broke up the best infield in baseball by moving Freddie Lindstrom to the outfield to make room for Vergez. Of course, the former Coast Leaguer is not likely to keep up anything like the clip at which he has been traveling so far, but there is a chance that he may prove to be one of those rare players who hit better in the majors than in the minors.

MAX SCHMELING, who won the world heavyweight fistic championship by claiming a foul, and who is to meet Young Stribling in a title bout at Cleveland on July 3, has just about decided on Conneaut Lake as a training site, but his plans may get a rude jolt from the Pennsylvania Athletic Commission. Schmeling's idea is to charge an admission fee of 50 cents when he is working out, but before he can make the customers pay at the gate he must obtain a permit from the commission, and that body has strung along with the New York commission in suspending the German and declaring his title forfeited because he failed to keep a reported agreement to give Jack Sharkey a return match in New York.

DISCUSSING THE POINT, Commissioner Havey J. Boyle said it was not a foregone conclusion that Schmeling's request for a permit to charge admission would be refused. He explained that while the Pennsylvania authorities have a reciprocal agreement with the Empire State officials, the right is reserved to make separate decisions on individual cases.

The Schmeling training proposition may be adjudged a case of that kind. There is a chance that the ban on Schmeling in this state may be lifted temporarily in order to let him carry out his training plans, and it is said that even the permanent lifting of the German's suspension in Pennsylvania may be given consideration.

WHEN AND IF Schmeling applies for a permit, fans will await with interest the reaction of Chairman Frank Wiener. It is recalled that Joe Jacobs, manager of Max, was quoted as having made some belittling remarks about the head of the Pennsylvania commission.

Wm. T. Tilden III

Jacobs is reported to have said that Schmeling would not consent to fight in this state so long as Wiener was a member of the commission. Now the manager and his fighter will have to get the O. K. of the board with Wiener at its head if they are to go ahead with their training plans.

THE ACTION OF Bill Tilden in joining the professional ranks may not have taken that famous name entirely out of amateur tennis, in which he was long recognized as the world's greatest player. Another Bill Tilden looms as a possible amateur star of the future. The latest is William T. Tilden III. He is a nephew of the famous Big Bill and first attracted attention in an interscholastic tournament on the River Field courts in Philadelphia last week when he fought his way to the semi-finals to meet Bernard Friedman, the defending titleholder. Young Tilden could not overcome Friedman's greater experience and bowed 6-2, 4-6, 6-1, but showed signs of native ability that caused good judges of tennis timber to rate him as an exceptional prospect.

GAMES TODAY

Section II
Allegheny at Carrick.
Oliver at Langley.
South Hills at Vocational.

Section I.
Carnegie at Dormont.
McKees Rocks at Mt. Lebanon.
Section III
Finley at Mt. Pleasant.
Section IV
Scott at Wilkinsburg.
Section V
McKeesport at Turtle Creek.

Allderdice and Langley High School baseball teams can play havoc with the status of the leaders in the respective sections of the City League today as the circuit nines resume operations after having rested since last Tuesday.

Triumphs for Langley over Oliver and for Allderdice over Westinghouse, and a victory for Allegheny over Carrick, will mean that Peabody will at least share possession of the lead in Section I and that Allegheny and Oliver will share the honor in Section II at the same time.

SCHENLEY MAY TIE

Schenley can tie with Peabody for the Section I top by beating Connelley while Westinghouse is losing. At present, Peabody and Westinghouse are dividing the leadership, with three games won and one lost each.

Langley stands a far better chance of beating Oliver than Allderdice does of knocking off Westinghouse. Langley has shown no little power and class in its games to date, and playing on its own diamond, may cause the Brighton road entry much trouble.

In the other City League fray booked for today, South Hills meets the suddenly aroused Vocational nine at Vocational.

W. P. I. A. L. rivals also are slated for important tussles today, the most important coming in Section IV, where Scott, defending league champion, meets Wilkinsburg. Wilkinsburg likely will send its ace hurler, Sloan, who twirled a no-hit, no-run game last week against Edgewood, to the slab against Scott.

In Section I, Carnegie tackles Dormont and McKees Rocks meets Mt. Lebanon. In Section III, Finley Vocational engages Mt. Pleasant, and in Section V, McKeesport and Turtle Creek battle.

CRAFTON WINS

If Mt. Lebanon is going to win today, the boys will have to hit and field better than yesterday, when the team was beaten by Crafton in a postponed tussle, 9 to 2. Mt. Lebanon tallied two runs in the first inning, but after that was completely thwarted.

Today is a big day at Shady Side Academy. Four of the academy's teams are in action at home: the tennis team meets Turtle Creek; the trackers take on Oakmont; the baseball team meets Peabody, and the golf team engages Oliver in a conference match.

Westmoreland Loop Opens Season Today

GREENSBURG, Pa., May 5.—The newly reorganized Westmoreland County Baseball League will open its 1931 season today. Games will be played on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

The league is made up of the following teams: Greensburg, Seventh Ward Firemen, Delmont, Youngwood, Wyano, Shafton, Claridge and Herminie, and is believed the strongest in its history.

(On request, sent with stamped addressed envelope, Ripley will send proofs and details of anything depicted by him in these cartoons.)

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: J. OSCAR HUMPHREY—Although M. Humphrey, auditor of the state of Arkansas, has been armless since childhood, he has accomplished much of the seemingly impossible. He is the state's best bird shot, plays golf, drives and takes care of his own car, writes with his feet and is an excellent fisherman. His home now is in Little Rock, Ark. THE LIGHTS NEVER ARE TURNED OUT IN MEDICINE HAT—Kipling once said: "Medicine Hat has all hell for its basement," as an expression for the tremendous supply of natural gas available. Although a small portion of the city now is electrically lighted, the major part has gas lights which have not been turned out since their installation, 30 years ago. To let them burn continuously is cheaper than employing someone to turn them out.

TECH TRACKERS MEET W.-J.

By JESS CARVER.

They've finally settled when and where the oft-postponed Wash-Jeff and Bethany College track meet is to be held, and as a result, Carnegie Tech and the Presidents are free to go ahead with their scheduled dual clash at Washington tomorrow.

The Prexies and Bisons have been trying to rub their dual engagement off the slate for three weeks. The latest postponement called for the affair to be contested today, but yesterday it was decided to push it back further. Now it is slated for next Monday. From the way they have been booting the poor little meet around, the boys are beginning to wonder whether it's worth holding at all.

SEEK FOURTH WIN

Carnegie will be out to make it four in a row by taking the Red and Black tomorrow. If they do, the Presidential hide will be hung alongside of those of Western Reserve, Cincinnati and the P. A. A. If they don't—well, why worry?

The wagering is even that the shot put record for the Pitt interscholastic track and field championships will be broken as the boys engage in the twenty-fourth annual renewal of the carnival here Sat'day.

Curt Young, of Beaver Falls, who set a new standard last year, already has improved on it in practice tosses. He started his record bustin' for 1931 by setting a new high in the Geneva relays last week.

Pressed as he will be by big Frank Muscavich, of Aliquippa, who is bound to get 45 feet or better, Young may be induced to heave the iron (and brass) ball better than 46 feet, two and one quarter inches, which is just what it will take to set a new mark.

INTRAMURAL MEET

An intramural track and field meet on the Duquesne University campus tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock will bring out the athletic representatives of all departments of the university. The meet is the first track event of the year for the Dukes.

Fight Results

N. Y.-Pa. Loop Opens Ninth Race Today

HARRISBURG, May 5.—(AP.)—The eight clubs of the New York-Pennsylvania Baseball League, each hopeful of finishing at the top of the heap when the 140-game schedule is concluded in September, will swing into action today for the ninth season.

The schedule for the openers:

Harrisburg at York; Williamsport at Hazleton; Scranton at Wilkes-Barre; Binghamton at Elmira.

Two of the clubs start with new managers. Heine Groh will wield his bottle-bat and play third base for Binghamton as well as having charge of the team. He succeeded Billy Webb. Hubert Fitzgerald will direct Hazleton.

BITING COSTS LEWIS TITLE

MONTREAL, May 5.—(AP.)—Henri Deglane, 220-pound wrestler, was declared champion of the world by the Montreal Athletic Commission last night after taking a fall from Ed (Strangler) Lewis, of Los Angeles, and then being fouled. Lewis was disqualified for biting Deglane's wrist.

Billy Sandow, Lewis' manager, stated afterward that he had signed a contract before the Athletic Commission for a return bout, his forfeit to be given to any charity the commission selected.

For 32 minutes the men battled on comparatively even terms. Throughout this period Lewis forced the pace and at the 32-minute mark secured three crushing headlocks that left Deglane apparently groggy. The situation was reversed in a twinkling when Deglane threw Lewis with a flying mare and held the Strangler's shoulders to the mat.

Referee Tremblay signified the fall. Sandow protested the fall was a rolling one and that Deglane had failed to hold Lewis down for the necessary three seconds. Sandow refused to leave the ring.

Finally Dr. Gaston Demers, chairman of the Athletic Commission, entered the ring, pointed out to Sandow that he had no license and instructed a squad of policemen to take him to the dressing room.

During the intermission the commission considered Sandow's protest and threw it out. After a short interval the match was resumed.

They wrestled for nine minutes then Lewis, to escape a hold of Deglane's, grasped the ropes. Deglane tried to pull Lewis back and attempted a headlock. There was a confused tangle and Deglane was found underneath Lewis with his shoulders pinned to the mat. Referee Tremblay awarded the former champion the fall and Lewis scrambled up, a broad grin covering his face, and went to his corner.

Deglane rose to his feet, holding his right arm. The referee examined the wrist and held a conversation with two members of the commission. It was then announced that Lewis had bitten Deglane when the Frenchman tried to get a headlock on the Strangler and that as a result Lewis had been disqualified and Deglane had been declared the winner.

Lewis filed a protest, denying that he had bitten Deglane.

"In 18 years of wrestling," he said, "I never bit a man and did not start tonight."

Mitchell Victor In Golf Ball Test Match

LONDON, May 5.—(AP.)—A match designed to test the comparative merits of the old golf ball and the new larger and lighter sphere adopted as standard in the United States, proved hardly conclusive yesterday as Abe Mitchell defeated young Henry Cotton, 1 up, in 36 holes.

Whatever advantage there was lay with the old ball as Mitchell gained his 1 up lead on Cotton while playing the old ball on the first 18 at the Wentworth club and then only held Cotton even in the afternoon playing the new. Cotton used the new ball in the morning the the old in the afternoon.

Firpo Beats Bruce In New Castle Go

NEW CASTLE, Pa., May 5.—(AP.)—Henry Firpo, Cleveland, outpointed Sam Bruce, Negro, of Buffalo, in 10 rounds here last night.

Jimmy Thomas, Pittsburgh Negro bantamweight, won a decision over Pete Mazeo, Cleveland, in six rounds. Marshall Couette, Cleveland, outpointed Al Gruver, Akron, O., in four rounds.

NATS CONTINUE TO PICK ON YANKEES

Associated Press.

Ability of the Washington Senators to trim their "cousins," the Yankees, just about as they please promises to be a great help to Walt Johnson's veteran team in its quest of the American League flag.

Of five games played between the two clubs, Washington has won four and one was tied. The Senators have been victorious in 21 of their last 26 engagements with the Yanks.

Although they were outhit yesterday, the Capital City crew opened their series in New York with a 7-to-3 win and moved into second place, a game and a half behind the Cleveland Indians. They collected only nine hits off three Yank pitchers, while Sam Jones gave up 11, but they bunched five of them for as many runs in the sixth inning.

The St. Louis Browns reduced Cleveland's lofty average with a 3-to-1 victory, their second straight. Walt Stewart, who has turned in three of the Browns' five triumphs, kept nine Indian hits well distributed while his mates made the most of their five off Willis Hudlin. Goose Goslin contributed a homer.

SOX BEAT A'S

Some concentrated stick work by Pickering and Rothrock featured the Red Sox 7-to-5 victory over the Athletics. Pickering drove in three runs with a homer and two singles, and Rothrock had a homer and double.

Detroit mixed eight hits off McKain with four White Sox errors to win, 9 to 3. H. Walker drove in three runs with a triple and single.

Ed Brandt, crack southpaw of the Boston Braves, scored the day's outstanding triumph in the National League when he limited the Phillies to three hits and posted his fourth straight victory. Pinky Whitney's second homer in as many days accounted for one of the scores off Brandt.

MITCHELL WINS FOURTH

Another hurler to hang up win No. 4 was Clearance Mitchell, the Giants' 42-year-old lefthander. He bested a pair of ancients, Adolfo Luque and Jack Quinn, to stop the Robins, 6 to 3. Terry and Ott each blasted a triple and double for the winners.

Rogers Hornsby's Chicago Cubs evidenced their relief at getting rid of St. Louis by slugging the Cincinnati Reds into complete submission, 13 to 1. After having been held in check for three days by the Card mound staff, the Cubs dealt misery to a quartet of Red pitchers. Hack Wilson and Bell hit homers, while Hornsby and Cuyler cracked three blows apiece.

St. Louis and Pittsburgh enjoyed an off day.

HELEN MAY PLAY AT WIMBLEDON

LONDON, May 5.—(AP.)—The temptation to tie Suzanne Lenglen's all-time record of five straight Wimbledon tennis championships has proved too great for Mrs. Helen Wills Moody to withstand, officials of the all-English Tennis Club believe.

In a letter received by Maj. D. R. Larcombe, secretary of the organization, the American star indicated she had reconsidered a previous decision not to defend her Wimbledon crown.

A victory for Mrs. Wills would give her five straight titles and match the record of Mlle. Lenglen, who won without a break from 1919 to 1923.

Says Nick Altrock

(Baseball's Comedian)

NEW YORK, May 5.—I see 35,000 turned out to a ball game in St. Louis. I'll bet the dog tracks across the river were so mad they had hydrophobia. Up to now, St. Louis clubs made the most money on stormy days when they collected rain insurance, but I guess the Cards have weaned them away from the whippets at last. Wes Ferrell has won five games for Cleveland already, which explains why they're holding down the Canary's perch. With a guy like that in the box, even the Browns would almost look like a seventh-place club. We, the Cincinnati Reds had a winning streak this week. They split a doubleheader.

By TOM BIRKS

Another banner list of sandlot games is carded this evening over which the fans may become enthused. The two leading leagues of the district, the West Penn and City, both have good battles carded that should be played to record crowds.

In the West Penn, the Linwood Club meets the Duquesne Traders at Hartman Park, and at Turtle Creek, the Comunity is putting on a big celebration at the Union High School Stadium, with Jack Fertig's Homestead Aces furnishing the opposition.

In the City League the fans have two games to see, both on the Allegheny side of the river. At Pleasant Valley, the boys will have opportunity to see the newly named North Side Buicks clash with Homewood, 1930 champion of the loop. This game should attract a large crowd.

CIVICS MEET THOMAS

Pleasant Valley fans also will be very much interested in the makeup of the team that Johnny Dunsky has gathered together to try and carry the North Side to a title.

Down at the Salt Works grounds, the ever popular Art Rooney will try and pilot the North Side Civics to the City title. Art has not been giving out much publicity regarding the makeup of his club, but with the J. L. Thomas trying to break into the win column after losing to Book Shoe, it is likely the fans will see a game worth while.

The Steel City League, classed as the best light first class loop in the Pittsburgh district, will flash three games. The East End Cardinals will entertain the Caruso Club of Hays Boro; St. Elizabeth makes the trip to Oakland to meet the De Pasquale Club and the third game finds Mifflin traveling to Snee Dairy.

The Duquesne Traders play Linwood on the latter's field.

BOOK SHOE WINS

Fair weather and good turnouts attended the opening tussles of numerous sandlot leagues last evening. In the City League, the Book Shoe nine started off on the right foot by hammering out a 7-to-3 victory over the J. L. Thomas outfit. Both teams tallied three runs in the opening frame, but after that, the Thomas club was helpless before the fine hurling of Jacoby.

In the Greater Pittsburgh League, Jenkins won over Edgewood, 6 to 3; Verona hammered out an 11-0 win over the Mur Club, of Wilkinsburg, and Fintex defeated the Smiths, 9 to 5.

The Grand Cadets downed the Williams outfit, 9 to 3, and Colteryahn won over the Republicans, 5-2, in the Central loop. In the C. and I. circuit's opener, Pittsburgh Coal nosed out the Horne nine, 2 to 1, Hale holding the Horne hitters to a single safe blow.

Tri-River defeated Cronewith, 4-0, and the Pathfinders downed the Becks, 8-4, in the North-South League.

In independent tussles, the Collier nine won over the P. R. C. U. aggregation, 6 to 2; the Homestead Grays walloped Wheeling Stogies, of the Middle Atlantic League, 22-0; Detroit Clowns took over Fairmont, also of the Mid-Atlantic circuit, 4 to 3, and Scottdale defeated Jeannette, 2 to 0. D. J. Brodericks defeated Mallin, 7 to 4.

In the West Penn League, fine twirling by Hurst helped Turtle Creek Community defeat Swissvale Community by a 5-to-1 score at Swissvale.

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

Kiski's crack golf team, led by Capt. Billy Marks, strengthened its position at the top of Section I of the Interscholastic Golf Conference by swamping Langley High's squad under a 25-2 defeat over the Thornburg links yesterday.

Marks, playing brilliantly, turned in a card four under par for the Crafton course, his fine 66 being the lowest medal score of the season. He was out in 31 and back in with a 35.

Had it not been for Joe Ragazzo and Musico, of Langley, the high schoolers would have been shut out, each of the former tallied one point. The scores:

Kiski—25.		Langley—2.
W. Marks	3—S. Musico	0
Kinder	3—F. Rogazzo	0
Newman	2—J. Rogazzo	1
Mercer	3—Ambrose	0
J. Marks	3—A. Watson	0
Simpson	3—Schmidt	0
McCoach	3—W. Watson	0
Stevenson	2—J. Musico	1
Graham	3—Beale	0

CARRICK, BELLEVUE CLASH

Today, Carrick, newly admitted to the Conference, opens its campaign by meeting Bellevue in a Section II match Shannopin. The addition of Carrick to the Conference has made necessary a revision of the Section II schedule, which now is as follows:

Today, Carrick vs. Bellevue at Shannopin; May 8, Bellevue vs. McKeesport at Youghiogheny; May 11, Carrick vs. McKeesport at Youghiogheny; May 15, McKeesport vs. Carrick at South Park; May 16, Oliver vs. Bellevue at Shannopin; May 18, Carrick vs. Oliver at Highland; May 22, Bellevue vs. Carrick at South Park; May 25, McKeesport vs. Oliver at Highland; May 29, Oliver vs. McKeesport at Youghiogheny; June 1, Bellevue vs. Oliver at Highland.

Al Avetta captured the low-gross honors yesterday as the Hotel, Club and Restaurant Golf Association inaugurated play over the Highland course. Avetta turned in a card of 73, with Bill Tovano and Otto Eberle, each with a handcap of 16, tieing for the loss net with 69's.

In the second flight, Tom Carey and Lewis Tesh tied with net 74's for the first prize.

Dr. R. L. Shaner, of Pitt's Dental School, won the championship of the State Dental Society's in the annual tournament yesterday over the South Hills Country Club links. Dr. Shaner won with a 174 for the 36-hole test.

LINKS IDLE TODAY

No golf competition is on the sport calendar for today, although the warm weather has sent innumerable last-minute players to the practice tees.

Greenkeepers are working hard to get their courses in shape for the formal openings at their respective clubs, at least at those which have not already held them, and apparently have succeeded admirably, for reports from every corner of the district are to the effect that the turf has survived the tragedy of last summer, the drought, far better than had been anticipated.

Al McBride, South Park's new pro, is enthusiastically building up his staff, while City Office Manager John Jay Burke is preparing to issue permits.

The news that Ross Thompson, of Nemacolin, is to play in the British amateur championship, was welcomed by district linksmen. Ross is well known here, and he will play abroad with the hearty well-wishes of district golfers.

Walter E. Reineman, chairman of the golf committee at the Wildwood Country Club, has announced the card for that club up to June 13. The schedule follows:

May 9, match play against par, ¾ handicap, and sweepstakes; May 16, medal play, best ball two ball matches ¾ handicap, and sweepstakes; May 23, match play, best ball two ball matches, ¾ handicap and sweepstakes; May 30, morning, match play against par, ¾ handicap; afternoon, medal play, ¾ handicap and sweepstakes; June 6, medal play, full handicap, and sweepstakes; June 13, match play against par, ¾ handicap and sweepstakes.

The links committees at Wildwood this year include:

Golf committee—Walter E. Reineman, chairman; Frank H. Hunter, Richard F. Rowley, William J. Lasquette, Ward L. Gable, Dr. D. Christy, Thomas Higgins.

Green committee—Thomas Higgins, chairman; James D. Boyd, Addison Lyon, Walter E. Reineman, Edgar E. Brotius, Frank H. Hunter, George A. Seavey.

TECH NETTERS BEAT W.-J.

It took a victory in the final doubles match of the day for Carnegie Tech's varsity tennis team to eke out a 4-3 win over Wash-Jeff in the Tartans' third engagement of the season yesterday afternoon. The matches were played on the Tartan courts.

Oddly enough, the Carnegie Plebes defeated the President Yearlings by the identical score, and it was a triumph in the final doubles battle that fetched the victory. The freshmen played at Washington.

The varsity performers were all even when Gesling and McCloskey, of Tech, took the courts against the Wash-Jeff combine of Horner and Graham. The Tartans made short work of the first set, winning, 6 to 1, but in the second were forced to 12 games before winning, 7 to 5. The summaries:

VARSITY Singles

Thompson, Wash-Jeff, defeated Deuger, Carnegie, 6-2, 6-3.
Boyd, Wash-Jeff, defeated Morris, Carnegie, 6-2, 6-2.
McCloskey, Carnegie, defeated Horner, Wash-Jeff, 3-6, 6-3, 6-3.
Bergahne, Carnegie, defeated Bullions, Wash-Jeff, 6-4, 6-3.
Gesling, Carnegie, defeated Graham, Wash-Jeff, 6-4, 6-4.

Doubles

Boyd and Thomas, Wash-Jeff, defeated Deuger and Bergahne, Carnegie, 6-2, 6-1.
Gesling and McCloskey, Carnegie, defeated Horner and Graham, Wash-Jeff, 6-1, 7-5.

FRESHMEN
Singles

Courshenhauser, Carnegie Tech, defeated Ludwig, W. & J., 6-4, 6-3.
Lowes, Carnegie Tech, defeated Streeter, W. & J., 6-1, 6-3.
Spiegal, W. & J., defeated Miller, Carnegie Tech, 6-4, 6-4.
Hartwig, Carnegie Tech, defeated Perkins, W. & J., 4-6, 6-2, 6-1.
Wirshing, Carnegie Tech, defeated Walker, W. & J., 6-3, 6-2.

No Foul Rule Fails In New York Bout

NEW YORK, May 5.—(INS.)—New York boxing's "no foul" rule was recorded ineffective today. Young Johnny Brown, English featherweight, was declared a winner over Willie Suess, New York, after he was struck low five times. Referee Jim Crowley stopped the bout and disqualified Suess, although Brown had not appealed to him.

SHEA DEFEATS SMITH IN GORY GO

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

Eddie Shea, Chicago featherweight veteran with the build of a Mickey Walker, hammered out a victory over Steve Smith, Bridgeport (Conn.) Iron Man, in a slow 10-round main bout at Motor Square Garden last night. It was a bloody battle on both sides, but, aside from this feature, almost completely devoid of interesting action.

Shea had Smith in a bad way from his hard blows to the body and head a number of times, but always let down when it appeared as if he might finish the thing in another punch or two, with the result that Smith went on to the end, cut and bleeding from the right eye, left ear and nose and mouth, but still futilely swinging gloves. Shea, for his part, was cut on the left eye in the first round and bled from the nose and mouth later.

BOUT LACKS CLASS

Smith had slight shades in the second and sixth rounds, in both of which Shea did little fighting. In all of the others, Eddie, walking slowly and heavily about the ring, punched when he felt like it and took Smith's comparatively light blows in return. In the seventh round, the crowd began to clamor for action. All it got in return was a lot of blood and messy slugging. There was no class to the bout of the order generally expected from main-bouters. The impression at the ringside was general that Shea was "holding up" his tough opponent, who wilted under blows and covered, only to fight back willingly when Shea would ease off and give him a chance.

It was the second meeting of the pair and Shea's second victory in 10 rounds. Both weighed 128 pounds at 3 p. m.

Battling Gizzy, of Donora, 136½, returning to the ring after a layoff of several months, was his usual wild man self in literally mobbing Windy Meyers, of Cincinnati, 134½, in the eight-round semi-final. Gizzy won every round and hit Meyers with every manner of punch. He was guilty of hitting after the bell in several of the rounds, for which he drew warnings from the referee and criticism from the crowd.

GOLDSTEIN BEATEN

The highly-touted Benny Goldstein, of Baltimore, 130, failed to show the form expected of him, and lost to Angelo Vergione, of Swissvale, same weight, in the six-round semi-final. Vergione was the aggressor all of the way, with Goldstein staking his chances on a right hand attack to the body in close.

Sammy Paris, of the Hill, 125½, outfought Johnny Haggerty, of Lawrenceville, all of the way in the six-round opener, but the judges disagreed and Referee Jack Henderson called it a draw. Judge Frank Ferris also voted for a draw and Judge Jock Simco for Haggerty.

Al Grayber divided the refereeing with Henderson. Harry Klaas did the announcing and the timers were Chappie Couch and Norman Borland. Bill Farren, the radio sports reporter, was introduced from the ring and received a hand. The gate was only fair and no show was anonunced for next week.

BENEFIT BOUTS TONIGHT

A professional boxing show for the benefit of the needy of the Fifth Ward is slated for the Moose Temple, downtown, tonight. It consists of five all-star bouts, each between a Negro and a white boxer.

Eddie Brannon

Eddie Brannon, Hill district Negro lightweight, meets Hal Murray, of Harrisburg, in the eight-round main bout. In three sixes, Carl Montebano boxes Jimmy Moore, Allen Beatty takes on Johnny Brown and Don Frazier meets Al Farone. Sammy Burns and Johnny Haggerty are in the four-round opener.

Frazier will be out to revenge a knockout defeat by Farone at Hickey Park last summer.

Between Rounds

An amateur show also is on tap for the Pittsburgh district fans tonight in Lithuanian Hall, McKees Rocks. Sparky Ewalt and Eddie Sago, heavyweight rivals, meet again in the main bout.

Jimmy Kelly, former local southpaw welterweight, boxes Jackie Moore, of Chicago, in a 10-round bout at Dayton, O., next Monday night. Coloman Johns and Joe Packo are in another 10-rounder and Henry Beatty and Little Dillon meet in a six-rounder.

Frankie Chatterton and Joe Schlund box the six-round semi-final to the Billy Wallace-Lope Tenorio eight-round bout in Cleveland, Friday night. Gene Stanton boxes Bob Moody, Frankie Bauzer meets Mike Lucas and Sergio Radam engages Jackie Ward in six-round preliminaries.

Davy Abad will appear against Danny Delmont on the revised card at the Chicago Stadium, Friday night. Young Jack Thompson boxes Bucky Lawless and Emmett Rocco meets King Levinsky in the two 10-rounders. Tommy Grogan boxes Ralph Lenny in a companion eight-rounder to the Abad-Delmont scrap.

The Tony Tozzo who meets Vincent Sireci in the 10-round semi-final to the Tony Herrera-Jack (Kid) Berg bout in Madison Square Garden New York, Friday night, is the kid brother of Rocky Kansas, former lightweight champion.

Duquesne Honors Floor Champions

Duquesne will pay tribute to its six championship basketball teams at a banquet to be held tonight in the Duquesne Methodist Church auditorium.

The six teams to be honored are the Duquesne Lafayettes, Allegheny County League champions for the fifth straight year; Duquesne Senior High, champion of Section VI of the W. P. I. A. L., Duquesne Junior High, Duquesne A. R. S., Duquesne Jaspers, champions of the Duquesne City League, and the Duquesne Lutherans, Church League champs.

Among the speakers will be Clarence (Buddy) Overend, graduate manager of athletics at Carnegie Tech; Dr. H. Cliff Carlson, Pitt basketball coach; John R. Davies, sponsor of the Lafayettes; D. C. Burroughs and S. G. Whorton, officials of the Duquesne Steel Works and Honus Wagner.

LEAGUE CHAMPS, BUCS TO MEET TOMORROW

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Except for some practice didoes on the part of a few Pirate pitchers, the Oakland Orchard was quiet again today. The Buccos are still barnstorming in West Virginia, but they will be back at the home port in the morning to greet the pace-setting Cardinals, who will be in town as guests of the Freebooters for the remainder of the week.

The National League champions are making their season's bow here tomorrow afternoon. One year ago, Gabby Street was having rough times largely on account of the manner in which the Ensmen were treating his club. But he is in a dictatorial position at present, and his flock of Redbirds are eager for more excitement. They probably will get what they are after while they linger in Pittsburgh.

SUHR IMPROVING

In the event that Gus Suhr is able to go back to his post, the Buccos will be in fair shape for the four hard fights. Suhr was painfully spiked and bruised Saturday in a jam play at first base. He did not make the jaunt to Cincinnati, and late reports on the firstsacker are favorable. His southpaw bat may be needed badly in the series with the league leaders.

Heinie Meine was among those who did not travel to Redland. That Heinie will be on Fogarty Knoll in the opening game appears to be a foregone conclusion. And this bit of news will hardly be comforting to the Redbirds as they ponder the doings of the Dutchman in his last joust with them. Heinie threw them for a shutout loss as he worked one of the best pitched games in the league this year.

The Buccos would not be at all surprised were they to tangle with Burleigh Grimes in the opener. The Wisconsin Wildcat is riding the crest this spring, he having copped all three of his starts.

Ervin Brame continues to improve, but the convalescent star may be unable to start against the Cardinals, much as Skipper Ens would like to have him on the slab. Brame, as a rule, is very effective against the St. Louis stars, being able to pitch to their weaknesses about as well as any sharpshooter you could name. But Erv's sickness was quite severe and he still feels the ravages of the cold and fever that had him in their grip. Meine, French and Kremer, however, should all be available to start while the Street athletes are in the city and there is a chance that Glenn Spencer will be called into action.

After this week ends the fans will not see much of the Buccos for a long time. At the conclusion of the Saturday fracas, the Rovers will swing toward the seaboard on their first eastern invasion. Brooklyn, New York, Boston and Philadelphia will entertain the Ensmen in the order named, but the team will not return to Pittsburgh in the traditional manner; instead it will move on to Chicago and St. Louis before returning to sport themselves at Forbes Field.

Yesterday the Buccos hammered out a 7-to-4 victory over the Huntington team, of West Virginia, newly admitted to the Middle Atlantic League. Four home runs featured the contest, Comorosky and Hemsley slamming out circuit clouts for the Pirates and Burdine and Stuart for Huntington.

The Pirates counted four runs in the second inning to put the game on ice. Lefty Bolton, a rookie, started and finished on the slab for the Bucs. Hardway, Eads and Signor toiled for the Middle Atlantic entry. The score:

PLAYER INJURED

CHARLEROI, Pa., May 5.—Frank Brodick, 14, Charleroi, is in the Charleroi-Monessen Hospital with severe head injuries, a broken left leg and lacerations as the result of a collision with George Peters, 18, a teammate, while chasing a foul fly in a ball game here yesterday. His condition is serious.

GRAYS BEAT WHEELING

WHEELING, May 5.—The Wheeling Stogies were victims in one of the highest score shoutout games ever recorded in this city when Smoky Joe Williams, ace of the Homestead Grays mound staff, blanked the local Middle Atlantic League entry 22-0 yesterday. Williams gave but six scattered hits, while Doljack and Chismar were nicked for 27 singles.

Long distance hitting featured the game, Harris leading the attack with a homer and triple, and Page getting a homer.

At the close of the practice game, Manager Tapson announced that pink slips would be handed out rather heavily in the next day or so, with some 10 athletes due to get carfare back home.

MUSHBALL TEAM OPEN

William Powell, 141 Bertha avenue, Donora, Pa., manager of a mushball team there, is eager to book games with first-class mushball teams.

RACE FIELD IS CUT

TWENTY GRAND, EQUIPOISE FAVORITES

BALTIMORE, May 5.—(AP.)—With Sun Meadow and Siskin declared out, the field for the $50,000 Preakness at Pimlico Saturday narrowed today to a dozen likely starters, with not a filly nor a Western representative in the lot.

Mrs. Katherine Hitt's Sun Meadow pulled up with a cough yesterday and was declared out of the running, and Dick Carman said that the Nevada Stock Farm's Siskin would be unable to start because of a lame shoulder.

The fate of a highly-regarded dark horse, Walter J. Salmon's Ladder, was in the balance today as he was entered for the first time at a distance of a mile and a sixteenth. He has won four sprints of six furlongs in a row.

EQUIPOISE RECOVERED

C. V. Whitney's Equipoise, co-favorite with the Greentree Stable's Twenty Grand for both the Preakness and the Kentucky Derby the following Saturday at Louisville, brought cheers from his backers by stepping a mile in 1:41 2-5 and a mile and a quarter in 2:11 yesterday. He is to be given a turn around the oval between races tomorrow to demonstrate that he has recovered from the slight ailment blamed for his miserable showing in his last start at Havre De Grace.

Twenty Grand and his stablemates, Anchors Aweigh and Surf Board, had a workout on the program today, though Twenty Grand's victory in the Wood Memorial Saturday at Jamaica was proof enough that he is fit.

Local handicappers today listed only 11 as most likely to start, as follows:

11 MAY START

Mrs. Payne Whitney's Greentree Stable trio, Twenty Grand, Anchors Aweigh and Surfboard; C. V. Whitney's Equipoise, A. C. Bostwick's Mate, Rear Admiral Cary Grayson's Happy Scot, Walter M. Jefford's Aceis, Walter J. Salmon's Ladder, M. L. Schwartz's Soll Gillis, Belair Stud's Ormsby.

Equipoise and Twenty Grand were held at odds of 4 to 1 today, with Mate, conqueror of both last year, at 7 to 1. Frank J. Bryan, racing secretary and handicapper at Pimlico, said the race appears "wide open."

BEECHVIEW DRILLS

The Beechview baseball team will work out on the Alton street grounds at 6:30 tomorrow evening and all players are requested to be on hand. A practice game with the Rieck-McJunkin team has been arranged. Best: Capti. Huddart, Bowland, Fitzgerald, Cole. Sheets and others who have signed are asked to be on hand.

Jaw Broken, Mack Stopped by Bass

PHILADELPHIA, May 5.—(AP.)—Benny Bass, junior-lightweight champion, scored a knockout over Eddie Mack, Denver, Col., in the third round of a scheduled 10-round scrap last night at the arena. Bass, whose title was not at stake, weighed 131 pounds, Mack 134½.

As Mack struggled on the canvas after Bass had nailed him with a left and then a right to the chin, ringside fans shouted, "His jaw is broken." Mack was counted out by the referee and Dr. A. Baron, club physician, called into the ring.

After an examination he said the Denver boxer had received a compound fracture of the lower jaw on the right side.

Hallahan Lone Card Lefthander

ST. LOUIS, May 5.—(AP.)—The St. Louis Cardinals will depend entirely upon Wild Bill Hallahan for lefthanded pitching for the rest of the season. The only other southpaw on the staff, Al Grabowski, has been released to Rochester, of the International League, on option.

ALBRIGHT GOES HOME

Bus Albright, Pitt basketball center, "checked out" of St. Francis Hospital today at 1 o'clock, after having spent several weeks recovering from an operation for appendicitis on April 20. Albright went directly to his home in Uniontown.

Govs Drop Five, Sign One Player

CHARLEROI, May 5.—Release of five players and signing of one infielder has been announced at the headquarters of the Charleroi Governors, of the Middle Atlantic League.

Pitchers Fred Swisher, Monty Wright, Harry Lasky and Clinton Bondelow and Infielder Henry Sharky were cut loose in the wholesale housecleaning.

Baltimore May Get '32 Amateur

BALTIMORE, May 5.—(AP.)—The possibility that the 1932 national amateur golf championship may be held in Baltimore appeared today when Harrison R. (Jimmy) Johnston inspected the five farms course of the Baltimore Country Club.

MASTRO READY AGAIN

CHICAGO, May 5.—(AP.)—Ear Mastro, Chicago contender for the world featherweight title, will make his first start at Louisville May 13, since undergoing an operation for appendicitis several months ago. He will meet Ward Sparks, of Detroit. Mastro has been out of the ring since last December.

PIMLICO MUTUELS

PIMLICO, Md., May 5.—(Special.)—The mutuels on the seven races at the Pimlico race track yesterday paid a total of $431.10.

TITLE GO MAY BE LOST BY CLEVELAND

CLEVELAND, May 5.—(AP.)—Possibility that the Max Schmeling-Young Stribling boxing match for the world heavyweight championship may not be held here has been hinted by City Manager Daniel E. Morgan.

During discussion in City Council Finance Committee yesterday on a proposal to waive the usual 6 per cent of the "gate" demanded by the Boxing Commission, in favor of a flat guarantee of $5,000, a councilman protested that the city's cut should be 10 per cent of the revenues, or in lieu of that, a $20,000 guarantee for use of the new municipal stadium, plus the 6 per cent cut.

Manager Morgan called attention to the fact that no contract has been signed as yet, despite the announcement of the bout for the night of July 3 and said he understood from William Carey, head of the Madison Square Garden Corporation of New York that negotiations have been renewed with Chicago as a possible site.

Action on the matter was postponed by the committee until next week.

Under tentative plans the city would receive $20,000 for use of the stadium and 50 per cent of the concession receipts.

The champion today will chocse either Cedar Point, O., or Conneaut Lake Park, Pa., as the site for his training for the July 3 title fight with Stribling, his manager, Joe Jacobs, said. Jacobs and Schmeling were in Youngstown last night for an exhibition bout, and expect to go to both Conneaut Lake and Cedar Point today.

Britons Name Seven Ryder Cup Players

LONDON, May 5. — (AP.) — Seven of the 10 golfers who will defend the Ryder Cup in the matches against the United States at Columbus, O., in June, today were selected by the British Professional Golfers' Association.

The list is headed by Capt. Charles Whitcombe, selected some time ago; Archie Compton, H. C. Jolly, Abe Mitchell, Fred Robson, Ernest Whitcombe, brother of Charles, and W. H. Davies, of Wallasey.

The association announced that the three remaining players would be selected in a fortnight, presumably after the Southport tournament, which opens Monday. The team will consist of eight players and two reserves.

Monessen, Redstone To Meet on Grid

MONESSEN, Pa., May 5.—Monessen High School sports officials today announced a change in the 1931 football schedule. Sewickley township, which was to have been met on September 25, has been dropped and Redstone township has been taken on as an opponent on that date. Monessen and Redstone played off for the W. P. I. A. L. grid title last fall, Monessen winning.

The game, to be played at Husher Field, will be Monessen's second home game of the season, and will be a night fray.

Ponzi Takes Lead In Billiard Tourney

NEW YORK, May 5.—(AP.)—Andrew Ponzi, of Philadelphia, went into the lead in the all-star pocket billiard tournament here when he defeated Onofrio Lauri, of Brooklyn, last night, 125 to 105 in six innings. Ponzi had won seven matches and lost one. Lauri has won seven and lost two.

In the other match, Arthur Woods, of Pawtucket, R. I., defeated Marcel Camp, of Detroit, 125 to 105 in 17 innings.

Killefer Changes From Nos. 13 to 33

ST. LOUIS, May 5.—(AP.)—Manager Bill Killefer, of the St. Louis Browns, no longer is wearing No. 13 on his uniform.

Early in the season, when the Browns looked good, Bill thought all the things said about No. 13 were untrue, but he changed his mind when the team lost eight of nine games on a recent road trip. His new number is 33.

Cards Score Win In Exhibition, 10-2

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., May 5.—(AP.)—The St. Louis Cardinals defeated the Springfield Red Wings, of the Western Association, 10 to 2, here yesterday in an exhibition game as 4,000 fans looked on.

SPORT SHORTS

WASHINGTON, Pa.—Paul V. Hoskins, W. & J. varsity basketball player who graduated with the class of 1929, has been elected head coach in charge of all athletics at Centerville High School. Since graduation at W. & J. Hoskins has been assistant of Olaf Taylor as coach of athletics at Ellsworth-Cokeburg High.

PHILADELPHIA. — (AP.) — Bernard Friedman, of West Philadelphia High School, retained the crown he won last year in the interscholastic tennis tournament at the University of Pennsylvania, by defeating Clothier Jones, Episcopal Academy, in the final yesterday. The scores were 6-4, 6-2, 6-0.

CHICAGO, May 5.—(AP.)—Friday will be "Joe McCarthy Day" when the former manager of the Cubs brings his New York Yankees to Chicago for their first series of the season with the White Sox. The program will start at Comiskey Park and close with a banquet after the game.

HOLYOKE, Mass.—(AP.)—Midget Wolgast, of Philadelphia, flyweight champion, edged Lew Farmer, of Brooklyn, in a non-title bout of 10 rounds at the Valley Arena here last night.

FRANKLIN, Pa.—G. Reid Pierce, for the last four years coach and teacher in Youngsville High School, has been elected a member of the faculty of the Rocky Grove High School and coach of the school's athletic teams. He succeeds F. Leslie Stewart, who has resigned.

LOS ANGELES, May 5.—(INS.)—Plans for a professional football league on the Pacific Coast were announced here today. It was announced that Los Angeles, San Francisco, Hollywood, Seattle, Portland and Oakland would have teams in the league, and that possibly Pasadena, Tacoma and San Diego also would enter.

THE SECRET SIX -:- By Frances Marion

Scorpio Found Not Guilty, Returns to Rendezvous

CHAPTER XXIII.

A sensational melodramatic story of the underworld, adapted from the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer-Cosmopolitan picture.

Scorpio, collar loose, eyes wild, sat nervously by Newton, and grim bailiffs watched.

"God! What's the matter with them? Out a day and a half," demanded the gang chief.

"I don't know—I thought everything was fixed."

Newton's brow was corrugated in a frown of puzzlement. What had gone wrong?

They sat in silent tension—and waited.

In the jury room 12 men were haggling, arguing and threatening to beat down the resistance of one man.

When the jury entered the room, one of their number, Miller by name, had promptly assumed charge of affairs.

"Gentlemen," he remarked, "I have been on a good many juries, and my experience might help you. Now, the first thing to do is to elect a foreman."

"Why not you?" inquired another.

One Juror Disagrees

"If you wish," Miller stated, and took the head of the table. He continued:

"Gentlemen, with taxes as high as they are, I think it's a shame and a disgrace to put us to the expense of a trial like this on such flimsy evidence. The prosecution didn't have one decent witness!"

"You're right—Newton certainly showed them up!" exclaimed another.

Jones, the small man at the middle of the table, interrupted.

"I think he ought to be hung. He's guilty as hell!"

The other jurors were on their feet.

"Are you crazy? What's the matter with you?" they chorused.

Jones shook his head stubbornly.

"He's a snake and ought to be hung!"

"He gave ten thousand to the Children's Home! He feeds starving people—look at his bread lines! He feeds a thousand poor devils a day!"

"He's a big-hearted guy!" insisted another juror.

Jones snarled at them.

"Horsefeathers! Horsefeathers!" he retorted.

From then on the battle had raged in the jury room. Jones had stuck stubbornly to his idea. He sat in a chair, coatless, disheveled, while by the hour the others hammered at him with arguments, with cajolery, with appeals to his "generosity."

"You'd see an innocent man hung—sent to his death on the lies of guttersnipe rats?" demanded Miller. "You're sticking up for the bootleggers who lied about him?"

"I'll fight to see him hanged."

"What bootleggers do you get yours from?"

"I make my own," snapped the irrepressible Jones.

They sent out for dinner. They resumed the battle of words. And into the night it went—Jones still holding out, the one man stubbornly set on conviction.

Waiting in the courtroom, Scorpio nervously tore paper into little dolls. Then he glared suspiciously at Newton.

"If you double-crossed me—if you framed to get rid of me this way—"

"Don't be a darned fool. If they stay out we'll get a disagreement anyhow—and I don't think we'll see a conviction. I have an ace in the hole in there that will be used as a last resort."

In the jury-room, Miller, the foreman, glanced at his watch.

If they remained out much longer there'd be a disagreement—a hung jury. He got up, and sauntered to the window.

Scorpio Freed

"Mr. Jones," he called, beckoning, "Will you come here a minute?"

The obdurate one arose and came over to him. The foreman whispered in his ear earnestly for a moment.

Jones started. A look of terror came over his face. He backed slightly away from the foreman.

"No—you sure?" he gasped.

"It's happened to three other jurors who stood out." Miller answered grimly. Jones whispered in his ear.

Miller turned to the other jurors.

"Gentlemen—I think that now we can reach a verdict," he informed the others. He grinned.

"Want cigarettes?" he inquired, bringing a large cigarette case from his pocket.

It was an ornate gold affair.

On it was a great jeweled "M."

There was a bustle in the courtroom, as word spread that the jury was coming in.

The jury filed in.

And Scorpio listened, almost in a daze, as the foreman recited—

"We find the defendant NOT GUILTY!"

Then a whisper started, increased, until it became a crescendo of anger. The judge rapped for silence. With an incredulous frown he turned to the jury.

"You are discharged from further duty as jurors, he declared. "In all my career on the bench I have never heard such an outrageous verdict."

Newton pulled at Scorpio's arm.

"Let's get out—quick!"

Newton hurried his client through the corridor and down the steps. Their big car was already waiting. Into it they rushed.

A stone flew from the gathering crowd.

It struck the bullet-proof glass of the car. Scorpio grinned.

"To Centro—to the steak house!" ordered Newton.

By now the shouts of the crowd had become a roar. Scorpio's car leaped forward into the night.

Carl Follows

"Can you beat their nerve," said Scorpio, "sore because an innocent man was set free. I'd like to toss a pineapple into that mob!"

Newton was worried.

"And that dame! Can you tie her gall. Where is she, Eddie?"

"In Centro—waitin' for you, Slaughterhouse. The boys are taking care of that tramp."

"How about Carl Luckner, chief?"

"Clever boy," said Newton, "a little too clever." And his words were prophetic of evil.

As their car rolled into Centro, a taxicab was following. In it was Carl. He waited until the three men had gone upstairs. Then he saun-tered casually into the steak house. The waiters all knew him, so his being there attracted no attention. Whistling casually he ambled over to the slot machine.

"Hello, beautiful," he said to the new cashier. "Where did you come from?"

"A stork brought me."

"I wish he'd bring me one. Change five dollars for me? I want to try my luck."

One by one he saw the gang steal in through the back door and start quickly up the steps to Scorpio's office.

It was evident that Newton had called them there.

Six, 10, 18 . . . within half an hour 30 men had gone upstairs—all the gang leaders.

Carl drifted back to the telephone.

"Mind if I use your phone, beautiful?"

"Go ahead! Shoot!"

"Main 1268. Give me station 43. Hello . . . this is Carl Luckner speaking . . . just came down to say hello to my old pal Scorpio. In fact all the boys have drifted in here to congratulate him. Sure. I'll phone you later. O.K."

Prepare for Roundup

Donlin at the other end of the wire turned to the six masked men.

"It was Luckner . . . phoning from Scorpio's headquarters. He says the gang are all there. Gentlemen, are we ready?"

"I'm ready for them! Here are warrants from the Department of Justice for all of them."

The district attorney leaned forward eagerly.

"What are they charged with?"

"Fraudulent income tax returns."

"And I've got them on arson," said the second masked man.

A third masked man stepped forward. "And here are deportation warrants for half of them."

"As representatives of the Bar Association of America, I can assure you that Newton will be disbarred."

There was a smile of triumph on the district attorney's face. "That means no more fixed juries."

"The secret service is back of you, gentlemen."

"And the American Legion."

"Are you ready, Donlin?" asked the district attorney.

"You bet I'm ready," from Donlin. "This time there is no escape." Every muscle in his body tensed as he shot his orders into the telephone. "Throw a dragnet around the town of Centro. Close in on Main street from the stockyards to the drawbridge. Close in a square block around Scorpio's headquarters. Yes, we've got them this time!"

(To Be Continued Tomorrow.)

Watch for 'Five and Ten'

Everyone will want to read Fannie Hurst's best story, "Five and Ten," which begins in the Sun-Telegraph next Thursday—following the closing chapter of "The Secret Six." John Rarick sold his goods for nickels and dimes. With his millions in profits he wrecked his family, and almost wrecked his daughter's life. Watch for this brilliant, inside-story of the ravage of sudden wealth.

DAILY TRUE STORY

'F. G.'

(All names of characters in this story are fictitious.)

Architect Whips Intended Brothers-in-Law

F. G. Walker came up from the city to engage in the lumber business.

He didn't tell anyone that his doctor had told him that sitting over a draughtman's board in a big office of architects was going to get him to only one place—into a coffin.

Walker wasn't proud of his physical condition.

He had, he knew, inherited a lung weakness, but he intended to fight it off.

And so, through Mr. King, head of the firm of architects where he had worked, Walker got the chance to go up to North G——— and work in a big lumber camp.

He would help out on the accounts in the office until he became a little more hardened, then he intended to go up into the woods in the winter.

F. G. Walker had been no mean athlete in college, and gave promise of big things before the lung weakness developed. There was no doubt but what he would fight this off up there in the great timberlands.

Mr. Lyons, head of the lumber company, had a summer home on the lake up there. In the summer his family, or part of it, came up for the fishing and riding and general fun of living in that wonderful climate and picturesque locale.

Lydia Lyons was the only daughter.

There were two husky brothers, Bill and Sam.

They were in France at the time Miss Lydia and her mother and father went up there.

Meets Lydia King

F. G. Walker, being tall and good looking, with manners superior to those of most of the thousands of employes of the big company, was noticed by Miss Lydia.

Walker was already feeling much better. This was August and he had been up there since late April. He had slept on a rear porch at the home of Superintendent Smith, exercised daily, performed his office duties well and there was color already in his cheeks.

Superintendent Smith took an interest in Walker.

And Walker took an interest in everything, including Miss Lydia, when she arrived.

Walker had been out on the lake fishing the day Miss Lydia first saw him. It was Saturday afternoon. She was also fishing, casting for muskies.

Miss Lydia tried to play her big muskie, but this was something she had never experienced, a 40-pound dynamo, it seemed.

After a while she called to Walker.

Walker got around, came alongside and fastened his boat to her own. Then he stepped in beside her.

"Don't dance in the boat—I believe he's tiring."

Walker was right. After a while the big fellow was forced alongside, half drowned, and Lydia gaffed him and lifted. Walker helped her lift.

Then Lydia sat down and began to cry a little, from excitement.

Walker let her cry, but bound up her fingers with a handkerchief, towed his boat and rowed her down to the landing. He knew, of course, that she was the daughter of the "Chief," for he knew they were coming that day.

Explains Reason

Mr. Lyons came down to the landing, fearing that something was wrong with his daughter when he saw a man rowing her in.

Lydia displayed the muskie and explained about the "kind young man" who had come to the rescue.

Lyons asked him who he was.

"F. G. Walker, Mr. Lyons, I'm an accountant in the office; Mr. King got the place for me. I am going into the woods this winter," he explained.

"Oh, yes, I remember, King said you needed—the open air, how are you?"

"Fit as a fiddle, already, sir."

F. G. Walker and Miss Lydia Lyons became friendly during the two months she was there. Not so very romantically intimate, but good pals; they hiked and fished and enjoyed each other's company on every moment of Walker's spare time.

Twice he dined at the Lyons Lodge and saw pictures of the husky brothers, Sam and Bill.

They were still abroad, but would be up there all next summer, he was told.

Mr. Lyons noticed that Lydia called Walker "F. G." One day he asked her why.

"Don't tell him I told you, dad, but you can scarcely blame him. He confessed to me that his name was Florence Gerald."

"Florence?" yelled Mr. Lyons, and then he grinned.

"It is occasionally used as a man's name," Lydia explained.

Walker Promoted

"Yes, I know. I knew a big Irish cop once in Manchester, New Hampshire, whose name was Florence Sullivan."

"F. G. is touchy about it. It was his grandfather's name and his mother named him. Because his mother named him he intends to keep it, but—well, you can't blame him for wanting to be called 'F. G.'"

When Lydia Lyons left for home, or the evening before, Walker was quite sensible about it. He told her that he had fallen in love with her.

"If I make good and you aren't married, I shall try to convince you that I should be the lucky man," he said.

Lydia surprised him.

She kissed him and said, "Make good—make good for my sake, F. G.—I'll wait. At least I'll wait a reasonable time."

All of which was a great help to F. G. Walker.

He went into the woods and became an expert axman. More than that, it was found that his judgment was excellent in regard to building sluices to run the logs down to the river from the mountain sides. His sluice stood firm where those the others had built collapsed under strain.

That was because he was something of an architect and knew things.

He was made foreman of the Number 7 outfit.

Meanwhile, come spring, Mr. Samuel and Mr. William Lyons returned from abroad. They had a nice, athletic, sporty English chap with them. He had quite a title and he fell at once for Miss Lydia.

Bill and Sam ragged Lydia and they were also disgusted.

"If you think we're going to have any little bookkeeper named Florence in our family you're crazy, Lyd," Bill said.

"You and who else have been delegated to select my man for me?" she asked.

Mr. Lyons, seeing the seriousness of it, told his sons to pipe down.

It was in July that F. G. Walker was made manager of the mills, for Lyons got out his own lumber at the rail head.

Bill and Sam had an idea. They would drive up a couple of days ahead, find this guy Florence, beat him up and send him on his way. Then they could send for their English friend and make the match with Lydia.

The brothers were a day late getting there.

They found Lydia on the landing waving something white and a chap was paddling a canoe up to the landing.

They hung back until Walker stepped ashore and kissed Lydia. This was too much.

"You look like the sort of a dumb sap who would be named 'Florence.'" Bill growled at Walker.

Thrown Into Water

Lydia turned white, bit her lip and remained silent.

"We do not allow Florences up this way," Sam put in, "so we are going to spank you with the canoe paddle and give you 24 hours to get out."

Bill reached out and grasped Walker's shoulder and then Bill rose slightly and fell down, from one of Walker's uppercuts. Sam let drive an awkward blow, well telegraphed ahead, and Walker socked him down.

Then he stood them up and as they rushed him he gave them the French Canuck bear-hug, bumping their heads together. After this he gave them a mighty shove into the water.

"You little boys may come out after you have each called me 'F. G.,'" Walker said.

"Ho—ho—it serves you right," boomed the senior Lyons, who had rushed down when he saw the first blow struck.

"Fish us out, F. G.—we apologize—we're going to be proud of our new brother," Bill said.

"That goes double, F. G.," Sam added.

He helped them up the landing. They extended their hands to shake, but had to wait until Lydia got through kissing F. G.

CAUSE OF DELAY IN MARCH OF PROGRESS

This is Espie D. McNilley, efficiency expert, who has completed an exhaustive survey showing that the average business man wastes 3,942 working hours annually looking in the wrong pocket for his hat check. Often, he concludes, this delay is a sub-conscious manifestation of the b. m.'s desire to remain in the presence of the hat check girl. Indeed, he says many men buy two-pants suits and carry the extra trousers just to provide more possible places to search for the check.

Card-Index Politics

Way to Check Up On Electioneering Work of County Employes Is Revealed.

Politics is adopting modern efficiency methods. The card index system will check up on employes. Those "placed" by the majority members of the Board of County Commissioners in that department of the county service have received their cards. A campaign is in the offing.

Ostensibly the pasteboard is an "Employes Compensation Record Card." Ostensibly it is no different from data cards used by many firms. One side contains space for name, address, telephone, salary, occupation and service date of the employe.

It is the other side that is politically significant. It is headed "Recommended By." There follow five lines for names and addresses of "sponsors" of the employe. So each employe, it seems, will be expected to obtain the names of five good and ready voters who will sign his card.

Of course, it is known that holders of "bread and butter" political jobs have always been supposed to view a campaign as a "time for all good men to come to the aid of the party." They were supposed to be door-rappers—vote solicitors. But did they do it? There was no way to be sure. All that is to be changed.

Great is system!

Summer Court Planned

Sessions in July and August Will Benefit Accused Through Earlier Trials.

It is stated that plans will be announced shortly for sessions of Criminal Court in July and August. The benefit of holding summer sessions of this court is expected to be twofold. Prisoners committed for trial will have their cases disposed of. The court, itself, which ordinarily resumes after the summer vacation to find a crowded calendar, will have lessened its work considerably.

Credit for the decision to hold court goes to George V. Moore, presiding judge of Criminal Court, Judge James H. Gray, who will sit in July and August sessions, and District Attorney Andrew T. Park, who made the decision at a conference. Judge Sylvester T. Snee will sit with Judge Gray.

The plan contemplates keeping the June grand jury intact so that it can be recalled in July or August to dispose of cases not considered at its regular session. The courts then will act on all true bills it is able to and discharge those ignored by the grand jury. Ordinarily it is persons who may be innocent who suffer when no summer court is held, except once a week to hear pleas, as has been the case heretofore.

The decision to hold summer court very likely means some sacrifice of vacation time for the judges who will sit. But it will expedite the court's business and give accused a chance to have their cases disposed of more promptly. For this the judges should be thanked.

Are You a Murderer?

Every Careless Motorist Is a Menace to Many Human Lives.

Summer weather is here and most of us are tuning up the old car in preparation for evening and Sunday excursions over this state's excellent roads.

Before starting it might be a good idea to do some thinking. How many of us are potential murderers while we are driving automobiles? A little observation shows that the average is high.

If you drive with poorly adjusted or worn out brakes you may find yourself to be a murderer. If you drive with glaring lights you are endangering the lives of others. If you pass other cars when there is not a clear view of the road ahead you may be responsible for the maiming or killing of other people. These are only a few of the more important risks.

Before you take your car out of the garage, make sure that you are not going to be a murderer.

Menace of Alcoholism

Noted British Essayist Says Prevailing Situation Is Jeopardizing United States.

"ALCOHOLISM HAS NEVER THREATENED DISASTER AS IT IS THREATENING AMERICA TODAY."

So says Gilbert K. Chesterton, returning to England after a visit of several months in the United States.

These are TRAGIC and arresting words, uttered by one of the foremost among living men of letters. His works are known and admired from one end of this country to the other. His words command attention and carry weight throughout the English speaking world.

He has shown in his writings and speeches, not only a clear understanding of our national character, but the most friendly appreciation of our life and civilization.

"THERE ARE NO INNS IN AMERICA," says he, "BUT THERE IS PLENTY TO DRINK."

And he adds:

"IT ISN'T NORMAL FOR GIRLS OF 16 TO GO TO DANCES AND DRINK RAW ALCOHOL."

Chesterton, the brilliant essayist and kindly visitor, with his trained gift of accurate observation, says only in substance what the Wickersham Commission says in its official report, summarizing the conditions which lead the commission to its official conclusion that NATIONAL PROHIBITION IS A FAILURE.

The Wickersham Commission speaks of "the new and larger field of corruption" which the liquor traffic has opened up:

"The serious obstacle to the observance and enforcement of national prohibition laws, arising from the adverse state of public opinion; the great margin of profit in smuggling liquor, in the diversion of industrial alcohol, in illicit distilling and brewing, in bootlegging and in the manufacture and sale of products, of which the bulk goes into the illicit making of liquor, and the increasing strain upon courts, prosecuting machinery and penal institutions, the invitation to hypocrisy and evasion."

Thus from divergent points of approach comes unison of judgment. The commission speaks the language of official expression. The literary artist finds words that bring his message closer to our sense of life's realities.

HOW LONG WILL THE AMERICAN PEOPLE SUFFER A CONDITION TO CONTINUE THAT EXPOSES THEM TO SUCH REPROACHES, AT HOME AND ABROAD?

What About This Statue?

Is It Art or Merely Ugly?

EPSTEIN'S STATUE, "MADONNA AND CHILD."

London and British artists that rule London's Royal Academy are discussing the admission to Academy membership of Jacob Epstein, who made the statue shown above.

Some say that Epstein is the greatest sculptor of many years. Others say he is a manufacture of monstrosities, exploiting publicity by offending artistic taste, a mere notoriety seeker.

Some of his works, notably a recent thing that he called "Genesis," would doubtless bar him from the Academy in the estimation of all, except a few that seem to have a relish for that which is hideous.

How do you feel about this statue, which, life size, was formerly exhibited in New York and is now on view at Messrs. Knoedler's in London.

The models used by Epstein were a Hindu woman and her child. The feet are unnecessarily emphatic in their size, to put it mildly. Epstein seems to like enormous hands and feet. His latest lady, "Genesis," has a hand at least three times as big as that of the Italian giant Carnera.

Can you see beauty, artistic genius in this statue? If so, you belong to a small and select crowd. If not, you are with the great majority.

Marry-Go-Round

Ritzy Greenwich Village

The passing of Greenwich Village, that "Latin Quarter" of New York, is one of the signs of the Jazz Age.

"The Village," as a writer recently remarked, "was a state of mind—not a locality." And "mind" cannot compete with the saxophone, the speakeasy and the dollar sign.

No longer can you climb the rickety stairs to Grace Godwin's Garret, and linger until midnight over a cup of coffee, rubbing brain-cells, and striking out sparks of wit and philosophy; telling each other your Big Idea, and dreaming your dreams of setting the world on fire.

Where the little basement coffee shops once welcomed you with candlelight and crackling open fires, there are only speakeasies, now.

And you cannot "linger and dream" in a speakeasy, unless you keep on buying drinks. Which rather tends to drown any Big Ideas, and befuddle the most sparkling wit. Dreams and alcohol won't mix.

Most of the quaint "characters" who were part of the glamor of The Village have gone high-hat. Some of them are selling bonds or singing in night clubs. And some of them have become famous authors and wear monocles and live in pent houses, on the roofs of fashionable hotels. Scratch a cynic and you find a sentimentalist. Hand a "bohemian" a few thousand dollars and you've got a super-snob.

Washington Square South, where so many artists and writers worked and shivered and starved and stoked open fires, has gone high-hat, too. All the old houses have shiny new stucco faces and steam heat and private "bawths."

And where are the lovers, who sat under the trees in Washington square or around the fireplaces, and argued so passionately against the tyrannical conventions of matrimony and Mrs. Grundy? Where are the lovers of yesterday?

I'll tell you where they are—but don't faint! They are all MARRIED! To each OTHER! And living out in the suburbs, where the air is good for the baby.

It's funny, isn't it, how we all start out for some fair Land-that-never-was—and wind up right back at the old hearthside?

FINDING THE POLE

By Archibald Henderson

To the layman, the finding of some imaginary object on the surface of the earth does not mean anything very significant. He would probably guess that the thing to do would be to take a map and a compass, and lengths laid on the ground, determine the position plotted on the map.

Unfortunately, the matter is not quite so simple. The earth is an oblate spheroid, and is divided by scientists into lines running entirely around it, "parallels" of latitude and longitude, although they are not really parallel. Positions have to be determined by taking observations on the sun with a sextant, just as a navigator does in sailing over the ocean. These observations have to be taken at known positions on the earth's surface, and at chosen hours. Then, by means of tables of the greatest accuracy and indispensable mathematical formulas, the required positions may be determined.

There are two methods employed by navigators in determining the successive positions of the ship. These methods are called, respectively, after the methods employed, namely: the dead reckoning method and the astronomical method.

First, take the dead reckoning method. Let us suppose a previous position of the ship is known. Then by measuring the distance, necessarily a curved line, and the direction, it will be possible to determine a new position of the ship.

Second, the astronomical method requires that observations be made upon the sun, or other of the heavenly bodies. It is not necessary to combine the method with the dead reckoning method, although this is frequently done. The object of using both methods is to secure greater accuracy, and to have the two results serve as a check upon each other.

The simplest problem of all is to determine one's position on land. The advantage arises from being able to remain indefinitely at one point and secure the desired number of observations, enough to secure accuracy.

A more complicated problem is that of determining the position of a dirigible or an airplane, since the observer is in constant motion in making the observations unless, under favorable circumstances, he is able to effect a landing.

Consider, for example, the methods employed by Peary in making an overland journey to the North Pole in 1909. He followed closely a meridian from the base camp at Cape Columbia, using dead reckoning for direction and distance, the object being to remain on the meridian. From time to time he would check his distance by taking meridian sights on the sun. In this way he finally succeeded in reaching Camp Morris K. Jesup, near the Pole. Here he took a meridian sight on the sun, which showed him that he had covered a distance which would have carried him exactly to the Pole—provided, of course, he had made no error in his dead reckoning.

As yet, he was unable to state, from this first observation on the sun, just where he was located on the earth's surface. Eighteen hours later, however, he took another observation on the sun, in a direction at right angles to that of his former observation. From this he was enabled to determine that his camp was five miles from the Pole. This determination was a check on dead reckoning, but in no way dependent on it. Taken quite independently, these observations on the sun told him just where he was on the earth's surface, regardless of how he had managed to get there.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Little, old Mahatma Gandhi, sitting by the Ganges, is feeling pretty sad. Gandhi had ideals for the Indian people—grand ideals of courage and wisdom, patience and self-control. He was sure those ideals would set the Indians free. He banked everything on it. And, for a while, his ideals seemed to work. Then, suddenly, the old stupid fury broke out again. The streets were filled with men running amuck—the river was filled with corpses. And Gandhi, watching sadly, sighs and says—"I despair of lasting peace . . . human nature is against it."

"I bet I know how he feels!" you say. "I've been through the same thing. Trusting people—doing everything for them—just to have them throw you down! That's what you get if you have ideals. Ideals don't pay."

You're wrong—and Gandhi would be the first one to tell you so. He's sad because the Indians are acting up but he isn't regretting his ideals—not one of them. For he knows that ideals are the best thing a man can have—that they're the only thing in life that does pay.

Life's a chancey thing for all of us. And humans are tricky. You can never depend on the other fellow—and for the best of reasons—HE CAN NEVER DEPEND ON HIMSELF. Generally speaking, he wants to do the square thing, but his soul isn't old enough to put it over. Any minute he may be trapped by some secret weakness, which he never suspected, and betray himself and all those who have trusted him.

And, by the same token, you can't depend on yourself. You're human—and as unfinished—as the next chap, and as apt to err. So it naturally follows that someone's always two-timing somebody else. And if you're basing your expectation of happiness on Perfect Performance, you're certainly out of luck. Wherever you look, you'll be disappointed. Wherever you go you'll find dishonesty and viciousness, stupidity, greed and incredible silliness. And—though it may peeve you to admit it—you'll be contributing your quota to the general fracas, partner.

Should you then decide that life is a muddle and humanity a mess and it's useless to believe in anything fine or good? Many have come to that conclusion. You've seen them, with their disillusioned eyes, their sneering lips. Ideals? Not for them! They're too smart! And probably you've been so impressed by their hard-boiled front that you've believed them.

Don't! Cynics aren't smart. Cynicism is the easiest cover-up for cowardice and stupidity. Every man must meet the mystery and misery of life. The cynic runs away—making faces as he goes. But the wise man sticks and holds on to his ideals.

He holds on to his ideals for two reasons. First, because he believes they are true . . . because he believes that beauty and honesty exist as well as ugliness and lies, and that a sensible man can pick his own scenery. And, second, he holds on to his ideals because he knows they are the best armor against the pain of existence.

The man who has ideals ALWAYS HAS SOMETHING. People may betray him. Sickness may cripple him. Circumstances may beggar him. Death may break his heart. But always within him he has a dream of beauty and strength and justice and immortal life that nothing can take from him.

Nobody can ruin Gandhi. He has built that within him which can't be ruined. Nobody can ruin you or me if we cling to that dream of beauty which is beyond all betrayal. That dream will always save us and protect us. For it isn't a fairy tale or a fantasy. It is actually the only real and lasting thing in life. The man who has ideals is betting on the deepest, surest thing there is.

Wise Words

The over-curious are not overwise.—Massinger.

From the lowest depth there is a path to the loftiest height.—Carlyle.

An idea, like a ghost (according to the common notion of a ghost), must be spoken to a little before it will explain itself.—Dickens.

Hypocrisy is a mask to deceive the world, not to impose on ourselves; for once detect the delinquent in his knavery, and he laughs in your face or glories in his iniquity.—Hazlitt.

Text For Today Wherefore he is able also to save them to the uttermost that come unto God by him, seeing he ever liveth to make intercession for them.—Hebrews, vi:25.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, May 5.—Few poets today are the long-haired dreamers in cob-webby attics. Samuel Hoffenstein is one of the town's snappy dressers. Dorothy Parker in a Paris frock is up front at first nights. And now they have flushed out a high-powered executive, a millionaire, as a versifier.

He is Wilfred J. Funk, head of the sedate Funk and Wagnalls Company, which owns the Literary Digest. He is the normal type of successful business man, married, has three children and commutes daily from the aristocratic suburb of Montclair, N. J., to his glass-topped desk.

Mr. Funk was the poet of his class at Princeton, but after graduation was cast for a cold business role in his father's big publishing establishment. He was forced to turn from leaping iambics to the weighty business conference and dry dictation of sales letter facts.

Yet secretly he clung to poetical dreaming. Now and then in a leisure moment he would dash off a poem and send it in a plain envelope to some magazine. As a result his name became quite well known to readers of College Humor, Harper's Bazar, Life, the New Yorker and Judge.

Attaining the maturity of the 50's, he has kept step with modern youth. Although a grave, tight-lipped figure in publishing councils, he is a deft delineator of slang, a wise-cracker whose sophistications are eagerly devoured by the collegiates.

The gossip is he gathered a group of his poems together and suggested to the directorate that his own publishing house print the volume. They coughed politely behind equally polite palms and changed the subject. Another house published the book and it sells like hot cakes on a frosty morning.

In a speakeasy de luxe the other evening a tipsy flapper turned in her chair and for no reason whatever flung the contents of a cocktail glass into the lap of an amazed lady at the next table. The flapper's male escort rushed over to the victim and gasped: "I'm horrified. I can only throw myself upon your mercy. I do not know what to do." The bespattered lady replied calmly: "There is nothing you can do except perhaps never offer a moron a cocktail again."

In the same place a gentleman was dining with a rather attractive pickup who had waited on him in another restaurant the night before. To his table came the man who owned the chain of restaurants where the girl was employed. He was introduced to her and observed: "Haven't I met you before?" She confessed she was one of his employes. He replied stiffly: "You won't be tomorrow." And left the table. All of which is a new altitude in caddishness, the pluperfect snob.

Stanley Rinehart, the young publisher, recently moved into a new apartment and gave a house warming for his friends. During the evening the Japanese servant was in a flutter. Finally he disappeared and returned in bright-eyed excitement bearing a huge cake frosted on top with the lettering: "Happy New Apartment."

In hash-houses along the water front on West street there is a hilarious jargon understandable only to the initiated. When a waiter cries "Clean up the kitchen!" the cook prepares a hamburg steak. A "McGraw" is a lamb stew. Spinach is "grass," milk toast is a "graveyard stew" and "Burn up a bull" is porterhouse steak. Incidentally, on West street a dish washer is a "pearl diver."

And speaking of food, Jay Price postscripts from Los Angeles: "I see you live across the street from Mrs. Waldorf's new boarding house. I understand she sets a good table."

With a new Waldorf and a Sherry's nearby and a new Delmonico's a few blocks away, New York has become a trifle 1920 again. Another Rector's would make it perfectly dandy.

With a maniacal shriek this morning I pounced upon a bank blotter on my desk and tore it to shreds. I feel better already and will probably be sitting up Thursday. For a month it has been before me, reading: "While summering abroad or at your country place let us take care of your securities."

Isn't It So?

Life wouldn't be so uncertain if it wasn't for sure things.

Charity begins at home, which may explain why it is so seldom appreciated.

Who buys hath need of a hundred eyes; who sells hath enough of one.

We live and learn. The older a man grows, the more chance he has of being found out.
